DOWN IN DRUMORE.

A Budget of News From the Lower End of

FAIRFIELD, July 20 .- Mr. James Long, of Liberty Square, this township, is quite sick and his friends scarcely hope for his recovery. He is in his eighty-fourth year. Following the binder in his son's wheat field a few days ago, he remarked that he had passed through and been identified with the most important period of agricultural improvement and adcement. In the good old times, that our old farmers remember so well and recall so often, he was a sickle-maker, and supplied his trade west of the mountains by swinging trade west of the mountains by swinging a bunch of sickles over his horse in front of his saddle. He saw the sickle evolve into the cradle and mankind taking a wider swarth. Next came the first resper from which men strained their arms and broke their backs raking the bunches; following this was the self-rake, and the men who followed it told wondrous tales of how many acresthey could bind a day. Now, with our perfect binders, or harvesters, the farmers are apt to less the noble art of miraculous binding and have nothing to lie about but corn husking. Verily, we farmers grow to be gentlemen fast.
