BOSCHUR ALLET IN COLUMBIA A DUR JECT OF CONTROVERSY.

Citizens Bay It is Not Offensire White Others Declare) It a Nutsance-Butchers Invite jan Inspection of Their Smughter Houses and Suggests Sewerage.

Regular Correspondence of INTELLIGENCER. Columnia, Aug. 6.—For several years past, especially during the summer vacation, the people of Columbia have been regaled with agumenta, condemning Alley H, more commonly known as Butcher alley. The making committee of council have had their account of the columnian and the committee of council have had their account the columnian account of the council have had to be committeed to the terrible stench said to me from this alley. Several prominent issue of town have been visited in order that their views on the subject of Butcher alley could be obtained. The citizens live on Locust and Walnut streets and the rear of their properties face on the alley and in would be among the first to complain of the

The views of the citizens are not, as a rule, condemnatory of Butchers alley, and they appear to be very slightly troubled with the appear to be very slightly troubled with the so called nulsance, excepting when the butchers are rendering tallow, when the smell is very offensive. There are three butchers whose slaughter houses face on this alley, and they all endeavor to keep their places in such a condition that any objectionable smell will be avoided. One of the butchers advocates the sewering of the alley from Fourth street to the river, which would carry off all the blood and offal, and this would effectually prevent any offal from lying in the alley. The butchers invite inspection of their slaughter houses either by council or the state board of health. In spite of the views of these citizens and the butchers there can be heard many persons who claim that the place is a nuisance.

Runaway Boy Captured.

Runaway Boy Captured. Last night Officer Barnhold, of Lancaster. companied with a gentleman tron Philadelphia, came to town in search of a son of the who had left his home about three weeks ago and had been travelling with the Mexican Pavilion company. The runaway boy was found about the circus grounds last night and this morning went with his father to his home.

Committed to Jail, William Lawrence had a hearing at the office of 'Squire Frank, this morning on the charge of surety of the peace, on the com-plaint of Mrs. Ann Hess. Atter hearing the-evinenbe in the case Lawrence was com-mitted to jail to await a trial at court.

Went to York Farnace.

The members of the Columbia Rod and Gun club, accompanied by their wives, went to York Furnace this morning, where they will spend the day. The party left town in a special train at eight o'clock and will return home at six o'clock this evening. Town Notes.

Town Notes.

This morning the Columbians staying at the Laudisville camp returned to their homes. A new iron fence has been placed in front of the property of John B. Bacnman, on South Second street. The fence adds greatly to the appearance of the residence.

The Church of God campmeeting commenced to-day in Maryland. A number of members of this church went to the camp this morning. Excursion tickets will be sold thither during its continuance.

An Infant child of Jacob Deitz, living on South Fourth street, died at its home last night.

The circus has left town and went to Man-dem where they will remain for a few days. On Saturday afternoon a game of base ball will be played between the August Flowers, of Lancaster, and the Columbia club. This will be the concluding game between these clubs. Each has proved victor in one game. The visitors will present a very strong team. The regular monthly meeting of the Columbia fire company will be held this evening at their engine house.

About nine o'clock last night a ground circuit was formed at Locust and Market street by the contact of the telephone and commer-cial circuit electric light wires. Sparks were emitted from the place presenting a pretty sight. The electric lights were not effected by the ground circuit.

DANGEBOUS BLASTING

The Lives of Citizens Endangered by the Acts of Reckless Quarrymen. Some time ago the INTELLIGENCER called attention to the reckless manner in which ng blasted from the cellar excavation of Keller's proposed new hotel, east of the Pennsylvania passenger depot. The in the matter still continues. Thursday a heavy cross-tie, placed over biast to break its force, was hurled up among the telegraph wires and feil on the side-walk on Chestnut street. It is almost a miracle that no one was hurt by it. This morning during a heavy blast, timber and rock were thrown in all directions, one of the stones, his enough to will long the stones. stones, big enough to kill a man, being thrown all the way to North Queen and Chestnut streets.

Another stone, weighing several pounds, was thrown high into the air, and failing on the slate roof of John B, Wariel's dwelling. more than 100 yards away, went through it.
Another stone went through the root of
Mr. Sundhamer's stable roof on Marion alley.
Nearly all the residents on East Chestnut street, in the vicinity of the biasting, have suffered damage. A stone, large enough to kill, fell within a few inches of one of Mr.
Zell's children, who was standing in front of its father's shop. A stone was also thrown is father's shop. A stone was also thrown nto the laundry of Lee John, the Chinaman, 36 East Chestnut street.

It might be well enough for the police to look into the matter and see that residents and passers-by do not have their lives endangered by the carelessness with which the blasting is being done.

In Time for Court,

Contracter Bateman has been pushing the work rapidly in the upper court room and it will be finished in time for the first session of court to-morrow week. The frescoers will finish their labors to-morrow and on Monday the scaffold will be taken down. The paintera will finish sometime on Tuesday.
After that all that is to be done is a general brushing up and laying of the carpets. When completed the court room will be one of the handsomest in the state.

A SLEEPING CHORISTER.

Asleep within the chancel rail,
Amid the surpliced throng,
A chorister, dark eyed and pale,
Who joins not in the song.
His weary eye and voice they rest,

What sweeter place for sleep ?
'Tis consecrate to peace, and blest
Where angels vigils keep.

Oh! wake him not! Enshrined in sleep Of beauty undefiled, Within the church all sacred keep

Within the enuren an sale.

Thine innocency, child.

Dream of some choir of heavenly birth—
Of chants by cherubs sung—
Of strains that breathe no taint of earth
By heaven's high chorus sung.

Enrobed in white, thou seem'st a soul
Just ready for the skies;
A wanderer from some winged roll
Where saints and scraphs rise.
Therefore sleep on in holy dreams
Of beaven and high desire;
No sweeter place than this mescems
Amid the surpliced choir.

for He Lost His Clothes While Fishing For Yesterday Assessor Vondersmith went out to Stoner's on Mill creek to fish for ball. Throwing off his coat vest and trowsers, and pulling on a pair of overalls he waded into the stream with his scoop-net and scon had the satisfaction of securing a nice lot of little fish and crabs, with which to of little lish and crabs, with which be returned to shore. He then looked for his clothing but could not find it. Believing that some thieving tramp had stolen it, he started along the bank of the creek in pursuit. He had not gone far before he saw a cow leisurely chewing the cud. She had entirely devoured his seersucker coat and vest, had got through with one leg of his trousers and was making a vigorous attack on the got through with one leg of his trousers and was making a vigorous attack on the other when she was discovered. She had tried to make a cud of his tin tobacco bex, and the marks of her teeth have indented it in a dozen places, but she gave up the attempt to swallow it. Jere feels happy that he saved his overalls, as he would have had an awkward time getting home without them.

The Helgramite.
From the New York Sun,
The angler's favorite lure for black bass is The angier's favorite lure for black bass is a hideous-looking insect which is found under the stones in every swift running brook in the Middle states. This insect is the larva of the cocydalis cornutus, a gauzy winged fly of enormous size and sinister aspect. The larva is called a heigramite, but he has as many allases as a Fourth ward sneak thief, and nearly all of his pet names are suggestive of the diabolical. Conniption bug and dobson are two of his easiest names, while begert and clipper are among the commonest. It is not to be supposed for a moment that any black bass was ever silly enough to imagine that a heigramite was good to eat. On the contrary, it is the general belief of thinking angiers that the santanic ugliness of the insect excites the anger of the bass and he charges upon it with the single purpose of charges upon it with the single purpose of crushing it out of existence. The helgramite is by no means defenseless, however. Pro-jecting from his head are two stout and sharp nippers which meet when he frowns. They are shaped very much like ice tongs, which they resemble, also in tenacity of grip. Old John Brown's Son.

Put-in-Bay Correspondence Cleveland Leader. Yesterday a party of us drove over to call on Capt. Brown, a son of the immortal John Brown. The captain is a fine-looking man, Brown. The captain is a fine-looking man, very courteous and very intelligent. He gave us a most interesting description of the island, retusing, however, to talk much of himself. His home is pretty and pleasant and full of evidences of a cultivated taste and mind. He is a surveyor by profession and a devoted student of geology. He invited us into his studio out on the beach. It is on an elevated stone, overhung with lindens. The walls are decorated with ivies and vines, while at your feet the water splashes and plays. In it he has a good sized table and comfortable chair. The sun never reaches it and it was delightfully cool and inviting. There he spends much of his leisure time reading or writing or studing, trying to resolve the geological problems and mysteries so abundant in this region. He took us to see some remarkable scratches on the rocks, traces of shorial action. There are included. remarkable scratches on the rocks, traces of glacial action. They are visible all along the Island wherever the stone is laid bare. The whole lake-bed shows conclusively that it whole lake-bed shows conclusively that it was dot out entirely by the action of the great masses of ice. The track of the glacier is as long and wide as the anti-climate bridge is long which is the whole length and breath of the lake. Strontian, a rare mineral used in manufacturing fireworks, is found almost everywhere on the island. It is usually found in pockets in the underlying rocks.

Capt. Brown is by no means an ordinary man, either mentally or physically. He took man, either meutally or physically. He took us into his "den," as he calls it, a little house of several rooms, built a short distance from his residence, and I noticed that his book shelves contained a number of well-selected shelves contained a number of well-selected books, few any but a man of intellect would care to read. He also reads and speaks French well. Prof. Orien, state geologist, is to be his guest next week, and together they will ex-plore more thoroughly the islands and their formation. At his house I met Mrs. Mac-gahan. Her husband was at one time war correspondent for Russia, and won his first distinction when in Bulgaria.

Dr J. S. Smith has returned from Landisville, where he and his family have been spending the last ten days.
