The Campaign Issues. The exhausted congressmen are being interviewed as to what will be the issues of the coming campaign; a subject upon which they are no better, if as well, informed as their constituents. Colonel Morrison says that the direct issue will be, as usual, to beat the other fellow; meaning that the success of party rather than printiples, is the chief aim of the partisan, and that any club will suit him that serves his purpose. It is very much so; it always has been and always will be. The politiclan, however, sincere in his devotion to les, seeks popular issues upon which to make the fight for his party, upon whose success depends the enforcement of his sincere views.

With a Democratic administration in the first years of its power, the political canvass will turn upon the general approval or disapproval of its course; and the Democratic party stands very fairly before the country in this regard, for it cannot be successfully disputed that President Cleveland's administration so stands. Whatever difference of opinion may exist, even n the party itself, as to the wisdom of in dividual acts, there is on the whole amount a strong balance in favor of the administration in the public judgment; and upon this the party must rest, and can afford to rest its expectation of endorsement. It is notable that the Republican politicians recognize the disadvantage at which they stand in this regard, and some them even incline to say that they do not think it would be a good thing for their party to gain the next Congress. They have not any prospect of getting it and the grapes are therefore sour. There can be no Republican success with the administration enjoying the measure of public confidence which it has. The talk of the campaign will be of the tariff, and the public lands, and the taxes and the expenditures, with a feeble Republican howl at the president's pension vetces, in a vain attempt to prejudice the soldier vote; and perhaps there will be a more exciting issue of foreign policy, if the Mexican cloud es are discussed, the deciding question will be whether the administration is ap-

Fielden's Audacity.

Fielden, the Anarchist, proclaims to the astonished world that he occupies the same position towards the present social system as did Washington, Jefferson and John Brown, toward the abuses of government of their times.

We are astonished, first that John Brown should be dragged into such illustrious company, and secondly that Fielden should the effrontery to compare himself with Brown. That he should speak of himself in the same breath with Washington and Jefferson, was doubtless too much for even his blunted sense of the eternal fitness of things, and he appears to have dragged in John Brown's body as a buffer; but it won't do. The collision of ideas is bad for Brown, but worse for Fielden.

Washington and Jefferson founded this nation; Brown by his violent fanaticism perilled it, but Fielden has avowed himself an Anarchist devoted to its destruction. He claims that the only object of his speech before the riot was to arouse the workingmen to exert themselves to obtain a more even division of the fruits of labor, and that though he believed in overturning the existing government by force, he had no idea that any immediate violence would be employed.

What matter whether immediate or not, he counselled resort to violence, when the workingmen have ready to their hand a far more powerful force; and if he were their true friend, he would have sought to lead them towards their object by the surest and safest; road. But no, to lead men in the use of the ballot, requires brains and courage, while dynamite warfare takes but little. In the latter the men who pass as leaders and talk the loudest do not throw the bombs, and their arguments consist of pictures of the wrongs of labor and questions as, why this thusness? with no logical attempt to remedy the evtl, and only a blind, unchristian shrick for re-

Washington and Jefferson compared with Anarchist Fielden! Can any more sublime absurdity be imagined? As well npare heaven with hell because both occupy positions relating to the future life of man.

Cutting's Sentence.
Of the justice of the sentence passed upon Catting there can be little doubt, and if the Mexican authorities had not taken their stand upon a principle we would have no

It is alleged that the libel for which the san has been sentenced, was printed in ish and English and circulated on the exican side of the line, but, as the Ameran refused to take any notice of the pros, the assertions of his enemies in uld be received with caution and se thould be received with cantion and se thould remember that he and his crime are of slight importance.

Through the neglect and carelessness of ar government in protecting the rights and lives of our citizens on the Mexican frontier, the people across the border have acquired a contempt of those rights, and now that we have a president and secretary of state determined to recognize and pro tect its citizens it is not surprising that border quarrel should arise. We are only surprised that it did not come sooner, as cases far more flagrant than that of Cutting have been of frequent occurrence on the border.

The court of Chihuahua has asserted its right to enforce penalties for the breach of Mexican laws, when that breach is committed in the United States. - It makes no difference whether Cutting's libel was performed in Mexico or Texas, they have claimed the right to try him in either case, and it is with this claim that we find fault. Until it be formally abandoned by the release of Cutting, whose seizure was based upon it, there can be no reconciliation, as the principle is vital in its bearing upon all our foreign relations.

A Good Cause.

On our first page will be found an interesting sketch of the laying of the corner stone of the mission chapel on the Welsh Mountain.

It is unnecessary to say what a good thing it will be for this county that some of the benighted citizens of this section be brought under the Christianizing influences of the gospel. What has been done in this line is most creditable to those engaged in it. Vastly more can be done if money is forthcoming.

The INTELLIGENCER will receive and acknowledge all subsciptions made to this worthy cause.

Panis dispatches tell of a rush of new ubscribers for the bonds of the Panama Canal company. If this report be true, it must mean that there is confidence in France that the government will eventually bolster up the company.

A TREATY with Japan providing for the extradition of criminals was sent to the Senate by the president on June 9, but that energetic body did not succeed in reaching any conclusion on it. A Washington letter to the Tribune says that, "this and other extradition treaties are the favorite schemes of ecretary Bayard. It is his purpose, so wellinformed people assert, to unite gradually in a network of extradition conventions the greater part of the civilized countries of the globe. His appointments in the Diplomatic service, it is believed, were all made with a view to that end. Already there are either pending or have been concluded a series of extradition treaties with some of the South American republics which beretofore have been the refuge of criminals from the United States." If this administration accomplishes nothing else than the establishment of extra dition with the countries that have always offered a safe asylum to refugees from American justice, it will have the approva of all whose approval is of value.

Going through the Wnirlpool Rapids getting to be a "chestnut."

In an authorized interview Hon. Wm. A Wallace announces that he is a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in the Democratic ranks. He reviews his past record in public affairs from his entrance into the state senate in January 1863 up to the time of the close of his senatorial career in Washing-ton. He takes a firm stand in favor of the enforcement of the provisions of article XVII of the constitution relative to railroad discririmination. He believes that the Republican party is going to pieces on the prohibition question and thinks the Democracy should lean to high license, but not so high as to be forbidding. He explains how he prosecuted o punishment men engaged in a strike in his own county, and to the objection that he is a monopolist declares that he became a railroad president to develop his lands and his section of state. With the large list of good men from which to choose, the Democracy car make no mistake in the selection of its stand-

THE Buddhists of Japan have been aroused to combat the spread of Christianity and have determined to carry the war into Christian territory by sending Buddhist mis-sionaries to America and Europe. This will only serve to demonstrate more clearly to the Japanese the vast inferiority of their ancient religion. Buddhism has long ago lost all the torce it ever had with the people and they have small regard for the idle priesthood, though they still adhere to the forms of worship.

They treat all religion with indifference, but the educated classes are urging that Buddhism should be laid aside with other relics of ancient days and the religion of the west accepted along with its civilization.

They propose to change religions as a mere matter of policy, for they think they see in the teachings of Christianity the secret of our progress, and there is danger that when China becomes Christian it will be only in name In reality a mere change in the form of superstition. We should lose no time in impress ing the fact upon them that the progress of Christian nations is only an incident, and that their religion cannot be used as a merpolitical engine; for its objects are beyond human life.

DR. ROACH having made a feeble and transparent attempt to arouse public indigna-tion against the secretary of the navy be-cause of the rejection of the Dolphin by failing in a most peculiar manner, has at last determined that the aspect of business warrants his resuming operations and announces his intention of doing so at an early date. It is said that the new business enterprise is to be controlled by a syndicate, but that Mr. Roach contemplates the retention of a large interest in the business and will remain the nominal if not the actual head. In other words, the Roach will crawl along as before, but will welcome any encouragement that capitalists are disposed to give him. He claims that he will be proof against the insect powder of the government, and will even venture to bid upon the new cruisers soon to be built. He is a bug with the nature of a coon that curis up and pretends to be dead whenever that policy appears wise.

Next day he was sufficiently recovered to walk about.

Died in Harrisburg.

The wife of Geo. W. Simmons, esq., of Harrisburg, died very suddenly Sanday morning from paralysis. She had been in apparently good health, but being large and very fleshy and well up in years, having reached the and well up in years, having reached the seventies, she was unable to move about with the case and grace that had been her wont.

Mrs. Simmons was born in Manbeim, and was a woman of many estimable qualities, and her death will be received with regret by all who ever had the pleasure of her acquaintance. A family of grown-up children and several grand-children, as well as her aged husband, survive her. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the family residence.

GRAHAM'S RIVALS.

TWO BUPFALO MEN SUCCESSFULLY RUN NIAGARA'S WHIRLPOOL.

rifteen Thousand People Witness Two More Coopers Gilde Through the Rough Water in a Cask-One Smoking a Cigar During the Rough Voyage.

Cooper Graham, of Philadelphia, who a few weeks ago successfully made the trip.

The barrel-boat, as it may be called, is ten feet long, but the barrel proper extends but six feet, a double cak bead four feet from the small end dividing it. The smaller end is again divided into air-tight compartments by two heads set at short distances apart, while the front head on the smaller end is made double and protected by a sheet of iron securely fastened to the keel. The barrel is made of staves of 13,-inch oak, the heads being of 2-inch oak. On the lower side of the barrel a strong oak keel has been fastened, the upper side of the barrel being slightly flattened. There is an opening on top, on which tened. There is an opening on top, on which is also a circular turret with glass-covered peep-holes. This is fastened from the inside by an iron clamp. The main heads of the barrel are 24 inches in diameter at the smalles part, and the heads at the pointed end are but 6 inches in diameter at the smallest part. A 12-inch propeller-wheel on the stern can be worked from the inside by its occupants. A sheet-fron rudder affords control of the boat's course in smooth water.

The two men towed the boat down the river Saturday night to Chippewa, where it river Saturday night to Chippewa, where it was entered in the customs office as an American boat intended to navigate the Canadian waters. It was intended at first to start on the trip Sunday afternoon at 30 o'clock, buttheir preparations delayed the start nearly two hours. It had been publicly announced that they would go through, and an impatient crowd which filled every train on the way to the falls waited anxiously for the start. Not less then 15,000 people were at the old suspension bridge at the time announced. It had been planned at first to have the Maid It had been planned at first to have the Maid of the Mist tow the barrel-boat out into the current and down to the bridge, but her Mas-ter Captain Cotter refused, saying that he should feel as if he were a party to a suicide. A boat was procured to puli them out, and at 4:45 o'clock, with a small American flag hoisted at the stern, the carrel boat was towed into the river, with the two men inside and the manhole open. Two boats with friends on board accompanied it as far as the antilever bridge, when it was cast off, at 4:45 The barrel rode the water graveled which was above the suspension bridge, which was reached at 4:88 p. m., it was caught by the first eddy and hurried down into the rapids, the bridge was and passing under the bridge turning about and passing under the bridge stern foremost. Then the billows tossed it about, first on one side and then on the other, dashing up against its sides, now submerging it completely, and, at the in-clined railway station on the Canadian shore, turning it over in a complete somersault. 1 came up buoyantly every time, and the little flag floated triumphantly from its stick. Around the turn she struck the heaviest waves, and was out of sight more than half the time, the brown hull bobbing than half the time, the brown hull bobbing up serenely now and then, and the flag defiantly shaking the water from its folds. In two minutes after passing the bridge the boat had successfully navigated the rapids and was in the whiripool, entering it nearer the Canadian shore than did Graham. The craft made the circuit of the maelstom once, and then shot out down the river toward Lewistown. In the whiripool the man-hole was opened and each man in turn shoved his head out for a breath of air. Potts waived his hand on making his appearance. Those on the bank who saw them shouted encouragingly to the men, and the man-hole was shut down preparatory to the plunge through the lower rapids. They were past the most critical points in their journey and the end was soon reached.

At about 5:15 p. m. two or three boating parties from Queenstown and Lewistown who had been out looking for the adventurers saw the barrel tossing in the rapids above the Catholic college ground. She was tossing, pitching and rolling, but alws y righting herself after each lurch. The boat was picked up by Sam Hazlitt, a brother of one of the occupants; Chester Wadsworth and Archie Gilmore, and towed into Queenstown. During the latter portion of their yovage the two ing the latter portion of their voyage the two men climbed out on the deck of their craft and rode astride of it for several hundred GENERAL LEW WALLACE, late United States minister to Turkey, lectured at Chatauqua on "Turkey and the Turks" on Saturday. The general said there were no drunken Turks; that the Turks loved children and were kind to animals. They are afraid of women and are the politest of people. They are also the devoutest of people, and yet they are essentially and wholly a military people and are always brave and heroic. The lecturer corrected some errors as to the domestic life of the Turks. Polygamy, while permitted in Turkey, is not obligatory or even prevalent. The inmates of the harems are by no means slaves.

The Fast of Ab.

The Hebrew fast of Ab begins this evening after sundown and continues until dark to morrow. It commemorates the destruction of the first temple of Jerusalem by Nebuchad the first temple of Jerusalem by Nebuchad-nezzer, king of Babylon, about 2,300 years ago, and that of the second temple by Titus 1,818 years ago. Other disastrous events happened on the same day in later years, and the Ninth of Ab has ever since been ob-served by fasting and prayer. The syna-gogues are draped in deep black, and mourn-iul etegles are recited at the services this evening and to-morrow morning. At the atternoon service to-morrow comforting promises of leaish are read.

A Raptist Minister's Experience.

"I am a Baptist minister, and before I ever thought of being a clergyman I graduated in medicine, but left a lucrative practice for my present profession, forty years ago. I was formany years a sufferer from quinsy. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured me. I was also troubled with hourseness, and Thomas' Eclectric Oil always relieved me. My wife and child had diphtheria, and Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured them, and if taken in time it will cure seven times out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinate cold, or cough, and if any one will take a small teaspoon and half fill it with the Oil, and then place the end of the spoon in one nostril and draw the Oil out of the spoon into the head, by sniffing as hard as they can, until the Oil falls over into the throat, and practice it twice a week, I don't care how offensive their head may be, it will clean it out and cure their catarrh. For deafness and earache, it has done wonders to my certain knowledge. It is the only medicine dubbed patent medicine that I have ever felt like recommending, and I am very anxious to see it in every place, for I tell you that I would not be without it in my house for any consideration.
