Stolen Property Recovered. Intioned in the Intelligences of last night, the horse and buggy of Isaac Jacoby, living at Ephrata, were stolen on last Sunday night. The horse was driven very hard and was left at the home of Frank Hogentogier, was left at the home of Frank Hogentogler, tome distance from Rohrerstown, where another horse was taken. This horse and the buggy belonging to Jacoby were left at the farm of Solomon Zeamer, along the Marietta turnpike. The stolen team was seen about four o'clock on Monday morning along the pike, and the buggy contained two men. During yesterday Hogentogler got his horse, where it had been left and the buggy and harness brought to Columbia by Squire Evans. The party in Ephrata was notified of the property being in Columbia, and came to town last night and received the buggy and harness.

DEOWNED IN THE CONESTOGA.

The Sad Accident Which Befel a Little Daugh ter of D. S. Stauffer, Jennie, the eight-year-old daughter of ex-Underkeeper Daniel S. Stauffer, met with a and death, between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning. While playing at the Eden bridge she lost her balance, fell to the water below and was drowned. Her body was recovered shortly afterwards and Coroner Honama sent for. Her father keeps the Eden hotel, but she made her home with her grand-mother, Mrs. Susan A. Harnish, widow of the late D. W. Harnish, who resides near the the late D. W. Harnish, who resides near the foundry. A short distance above the home of Mra. Harnish the Conestega is spanned by a large wooden bridge, and it was there the drowning took place. The little girl left her grandmother's house about nine o'clock, to play with several other children of her own age. They went into the bridge, and in a short time the little girl fell through the orem space, which is between the end of the

The child was seen to fall into the water by several men, who were fishing near by. They ran to the foundry, some distance off.

and gave the alarm. A number of men hur ried to the place and jumped into the stream, which at that point is probably eight or nine feet in depth. They dived to the bottom and the child was recovered, a short distance and the child was recovered, a short distance below where she had fallen in by John W. Harnish. She was quickly taken to the house of her grandmother and every effort was made to resuscitate her. It was of no avail, however, as the vital spark had fled. The full name of the child was Alice Jen-nie Stauffer, and she would have been eight years of age on the 26th day of this month.
She was very much attached to her grandmother, and has lived with her for a number of years. She was the older of Mr. Stauffer's

What One Thousand Dollars Can Do.

om the New York Tribune. Five years ago last Christmas season a gen tleman living in New England, upon balancing his accoudts for the year, found that he had been unusually prosperous in his business enterprises; and, although he was not vet rich, he determined to devote $1,000 of his profits to charity as a sort of thank offer-His desire was so to employ this money that the benefit to be derived from it would not perish with its first use, but would con-tinue through many years; and he decided to send poor children from New York to country homes in the West.

Accordingly, through the excellent agency of the Children's Aid society, which had been engaged in this work many years, been engaged in this work many years, seventy-six boys and girls were gathered from the streets and from homes of dire pov-erty and sent to lowa, Kansas and other points where comfortable homes awaited them, and where industry and honesty were sure to meet such rewards as could not have been possible under the terrible condi-tions of the life from which they had been

Five years have passed since the children reached their Western homes. The older ones have grown to be men and women; the younger have developed sufficiently for a fair judgment of their future to be formed. It is nteresting to view the results as they appear to-day. Eighteen of the children were mem-bers of four families who went to places where employment and comparative abund-ance were assured them. The imagination can hardly picture the hopelessness of the life they left behind. One boy and one gird went to their widowed mothers and reported their safe arrival. A boy went to live with an uncle, but has sent no word. Fifty-five found their homes among stran

Fifty-five found their homes among stran-gers; from all except one reports have been received, though from many not of recent date. Of all this number, gathered as they were from the poorest of the street popula-tion of this great city, only two are known to have been thieves. Two have run away and two or three are spoken of as decided by bad. Nine have wandered off from the neighbor-hood where they were first placed and bayes Nine have wandered off from the neighbor-hood where they were first placed and have been lost sight of, but in doing so they exer-cised only the right that belongs to every American boy, and there is no evidence that they have not done well in the new homes they have found. Nothing but a miracle could have made them do well here. Six have returned to New York; one was sick and was sent back for treatment; three brothers were sent for by a married sister brothers were sent for by a married sister who had become able to maintain their and start them in business bere; and two came back, probably because New York street life bad still a fascination to their childish minds. I wo have died-a promising girl and an in dustrious young man. Fully thirty were re-ported at last accounts as doing well—some of them very well. The eighteen who were with their parents it is safe to assume have done fairly well.

This is a good record. Let any person familiar with the darker side of New York life estimate if he can the proportion of those boys and girls who would have escaped from criminal or vicious lives if they had remained here. One thousand dollars could hardly have been expended to greater advan-

Sleeping With the Head Low

Few persons, we suppose, sleep without a pillow or a rest of some sort to elevate the head a little above the level of the body, and very few, if any, would think of habitually going to rest with the feet raised higher than the head. Yet if we are to believe the writer of an article in Pfluger's Archiv, Nos. 7 and i, 1886, the latter is the only rational and proper position during steep. Dr. Meuli-Hilty is the advocate of this plan. He was engaged in studying the physiological effects of such a reversal of the normal position of the body, and found, among other results, that the circumference of the neck was in-creased nearly two inches by reason, chiefly, of a swelling of the thyroid giand. He frequently fell asleep while in this position and occupied in his studies, and found that he always awoke earlier in the morning, feit greatly refreshed, and was capable of much better work during the day than after a night's rest taken in the usual way. He has now slept with his feet higher than his head for the past four years, and his experi-ence leads him to commend the method most ence leads him to commend the method most highly. He says in this way the brain receives a more pientiful blood supply, and is consequently better nourished, while there is no danger of so much blood passing to the cerebral structure as to cause congestion. This danger is obviated by the enlargement of the thyroid gland, which holds back a certain portion of the blood in its dilated vessels, and which also acts as a regulator of the cerebral circulation by exerting pressure upon the carotids, and thus diminishing their calibre. Another advantage which Dr. calibre. Another advantage which Dr. Meult-Hilty claims for his method is that it is prophylactic against pulmonary phthisis. The apices of the lungs being dependent, receive a more plentiful blood supply, and are thus rendered stronger and less liable to be-come the point of origin of tubercular dis-ease. The writer's assertions may be correct, ease. The writer's assertions may be correct, and his method may, as he claims, be the only rational one, but it is likely to be a long time before he can induce mankind to regard pillows as a useless and harmful part of the bed furniture.
