POPPING AT PIGEONS. and Franciscus Shoot a Very Poor Match

Quite a good-sized crowd of sporting men ent into McGrann's park, on Monday, to witness the pigeon shooting match between Charles Franciscus and Theodore Beck. oth men are well known gunners and there as been considerable rivalry between them has been considerable rivalry between them. This match was made last Tuesday at the meeting of the Schuetzen-Verein, and it was for $25 a side. The Eighth ward was largely represented at the match, and there was considerable excitement. The match was begun about half-past two o'clock. There was a stiff wind blowing and the bad shooting was in large measuredue to it. Beck disappointed his friends by missing the first three birds. He did better work towards the last, while Franciscus fell off and missed his last three birds. The result was that the match was a te and as there was no more birds on the ground it could not be shot off. The following score shows how the birds were killed:

The two men have made arrangements to shoot again on next Monday. The money will be increased to $100 a side.

BRICORIANS WHO DIFFER.

ELIZABRITHTOWN, Aug. 17.—The author of the history of the Black Horse notel begs leave of Mr. Evans, of Columbia, to say in reply to his contradiction in Saturday's Intelligences, that when he came to this "Black Horse" stood on the same spot it stands now, and stood there away back in the Indian times, to which all the records, ditions and oldest inhabitants can testify traditions and oldest inhabitants can testify. The old "Black Bear." on the west side of the creek, became a home of entertainments in the latter part of the last century. There never was a Ruecksecker, or Redsecker, that did business or lived on the west side of the Conoy creek.

The famous Geo. Boyer, of the Black Horse, never saw the Black Bear as a tavern stand, and never lived in the building. It is evident that all the facts stated in Friday's INTELLIGENCER are true, for they are verified by the license granted by King George II. Mr. Evans is respectfully referred to "Dupont's Reminiscences of Elizabethtown Borough," published in the Chronicle, of this place, in deminiscences of Elizabethtown Borough, bublished in the Chronicle, of this place, in $80, or to the extracts taken therefrom by he author of the late "Lancaster County

Mr. Evans must be short in his recollec-Mr. Evans must be short in his reconce-tion, for in the days of his visits here, if we mistake not, he partook of many a sumptuous meal at the "Black Horse," and he never crossed the "Rhine" to get it. ELMER E. KILLIAN.

Mr. Evans Explains and Reiterates. EDS. INTELLIGENCER: 1 do not question any fact stated by your correspondent in re-lation to the "Black Horse," It was a slip of the pen on my part. I referred to the "Bear" tavern on the west side of the creek, which has an older history, and was a more famous house in provincial times than the Black Horse, which is four years younger. I have some respect for the memory of Capt. Geo. Redsecker, who was a captain in my grandfather's battalion, at the battle of Brandywine. I do not wish to detract an ots from the reputation of the Black Horse, or its hosts. But it was not the first hotel a SAMUEL EVANS. LANCASTER, Aug. 17.

WHAT CAUSED HIS DEATH? A Well-Known Chicago Physician Dies Under

Singular Circumstances. CHICAGO, Aug. 17. - Dr. Frank T. Trow bridge, a well-known physician of this city, met with death in a somewhat singular manner last night. The doctor, who was slightly under the influence of liquor, got into a wordy dispute on a street corner with a bar-ber named Frank Packard, who had for some days been on a spree. The doctor struck the barber, who returned the blow, and Trow-bridge fell to the sidewalk. An officer who saw the scuffle, picked the prostrate man up and he was carried to his office, where he died in ten minutes. It is learned that the doctor, who was a victim of the opium habit, was also the victim of heart disease, and it is thought the weakened condition of his system accounts for his sudden death.

With the Grant Family.

From a Long Branch Letter, Colonel Fred Grant meets us at the door He has aged noticeably since the old days when he was such a figure in New York and Washington life. But he is the same frank amiable man. His brother Buck's wife is amiable man. His brother backs whe is quite iii. The doctor has been called but he declares the ailment to be merely a cold and some lurking traces of malaria. Mrs. Grant has secluded herself for the day. The first anniversary of the general's death has only just passed and she is very much depressed. The "memoirs" are still selling. The widow will receive at least half a million from that source alone. She wants to sell this cottage because of its sad associations. There on the porch overlooking the open sea sets the dead chieftain's chair. It is brought out every day and left just as if the one that is gone wer about to occupy it. Still, there's no nonsense about the chair remaining empty. Colonel Grant holds a bookkeeper's position in the New York Steam Heating company. He is New York Steam Heating company. He is beginning life over again. When the crash came not a member of the family had $100 left to bless nim or herself with. Neille Sartoris' $12,000, given by her father when she married, had been intrusted to Ward. It went with the rest. Chaffee died of a broken heart—wreck, ruin, misery. And, in the darkest hour, a man whom General Grant had heaped honors and favors upon turned upon him. Ah! it is a sad and as yet untold

Two School Children Married.

At Jefferson, Ga., Magistrate Pleasant J. Roberts was called to the residence of Mr. Cal. Smith to perform a marriage ceremony. There he found about fifty school children and learned that the bride and groom were of the number-William Thornton, aged fourteen, and Mattie Smith, aged fifteen. Thornton on his first visit to the girl asked her to be his wife. On the second visit he consulted the mother, and on the third visit gained the consent of the father. His own taiher, however, was violently opposed to the nuptials. Thornton had forgotten to get his license and confessed that he did not have the money to pay for it, whereupon the school children present took up a collection for the necessary paper, when Mr. Roberts duly pronounced the couple husband and

A Great Undertaking.
Yesterday morning, during a stroll about town, we paid a casual visit to the undertaking establishment of Mr. C. S. Herr, No. 57 South Queen street, and found him and his assistants as busy as bees, he having the funerals of the following a pair of the following the funerals of the funera as need, he having the function of the short space of three hours, between two and five in the afternoon C. Boettger, High street; a child of H. Kautz, Strawberry street; a child of M. Mar-sensalt, Middle street; a child of H. Aden, Plum street. As these funerals were located in dif-ferent parts of the city, it will be seen that it allowed but forty-five minutes to each, and therefore required great promptness and celerity of movement to be on time. But Mr. Herr has even exceeded this during the past year, he having in one afternoon, in three bours, attended to no less than fire funerals, and all started promptly at the time mentioned in the funeral notices. On another occationed in the inneral notices. On another occa-sion, he attended to four, with the same prompt-ness and dispatch, thus demonstrating that he thoroughly understands his business and is worthy of the constantly increasing patronage he is receiving. As he gives his personal super-vision to all funeral, the public can always de-pend that he will be there on time, and thus avoid any annoyance and disappointment on these solemn occasions. Mr. Herr is young, active, energetic and obliging—qualities which are sure to gain for him a large share of public patronage, while his low prices have worked a complete revolution in the undertaking business. The members of the Liederkrauz, who attended Mr. Boettger's funeral were loud i their praise of Mr. Herr's management on the occasion.

Thanks Offering Returned from the funeral of our dearly leved sen, Richard, we cannot emit to offer or heartiest thanks for the large attendance sympathising friends thereat, as well as for the nany beautiful floral offerings. Thanks also the Rev. E. AN AGGRAVATED CASE OF FALSE PRETENSE.

Several young men called on us last fall and had intended taking a Business Course, but on being informed that we do not promise situations to graduates, concluded to go to a school where this was held out as an inducement to enter. "Did they get the position promised them?" you ask. It is needless ito answer, but one of them called on us and solicited our influence in getting him a position. Cheeky, wan't it? He was an apt pupil and no doubt will soon follow in the footsteps of his promising instructors.

No " Gold Medals."

No " Guaranteed Positions," No " Cheap Life Scholarships," Are held out as inducements for young men Lancaster Commercial College.

We want Young Men to enter for the BENE. FIT DERIVED FROM THE COURSE OF IN-STRUCTION, and are safe in saying that to the deserving situations are always open. Fall Term Begins Sept. 6. 85" New Circular just issued. Call at College Rooms, NO. 10% EAST KING STREET, or ad-dress.
