THE CHRYSANTHEMUM.

A PROPRESIONAL'S REFLECTIONS CON URANING "THE OURAN OF AUTUMN."

Some Timely Hints to Those Proposing to Ex blott at the Coming Chrysanthemum Show. als-The China No Fear of Profession Aster and Its Qualit History.

The coming fall exhibition of chrysen themums promises to be the finest show of its kind ever held in this city or county-The members of the Agricultural and Horticultural society, under whose auspices the show will be held, have rented Lancaster hall, (formerly Lancaster rink), on West King street, and they are quite confident that there will be sufficient plants exhibited to fill the building. The amateur premiums offered are numerous and there promises to be a lively contest for the twenty-dollar premium, which the best collection of twenty-five plants, not more than one of a kind, will capture. A number of flower loving ladies of the city are making preparatons to exhibit, having grown some very fine specimens in pots from young plants purchased in the spring. Premium lists can be had by applying to F. R. Diffenderffer, be had by applying to F. R. Diffenderffer, secretary. Amateurs should bear in mind that they will not have to compete with florists, as no person who has grown any kind of bloom-ing plants for sale can enter their plants as amateur productions. The judges will be experienced and well known florists of Philadelphia, having no interests at stake, and no ase to grind. The florisis of the city and county, with the ex-ception of two or three, will be exhibitors, and therefore, the plants will be well grown. HINTS TO AMATEURS.

Institute to AMATERIA. Every amateur who has any named va-rieties of chrysanthomiums, and nice bushy planta, should endeavor to keep each in good condition, and train them caretally into well-shaped planta so as to be able to exhibit with some pride. Plants growing in pots, and also those growing in the open ground should now be caretally staked. Spread the branches as much as possible, to admit light and air. Every strong shoot should be thed to a neat into the middle of September chrysan-them bandled out and wanted for exhi-bitien should be carefully litted with balls of anthe and planted in large pots. Stand them in the shale for two or three days, and grad-ing the more light and then sun. Frost does not affect the flowers as much as water. By keeping the floreis dry and you will be able to preserve the flowers for a much longer period. ETHE CHINA ASTER.

THE CHINA ASTER.

A very pretty annual in bloom at the present time is the China aster, or, the botanical name as given by Prof. Asa Gray's botany, Callistephus Chinensis. The generic name is derived from two Greek words meaning beautiful crown," and truly it is a credit to the name.

the name. The flowers are of many colors and while they all resemble the chrysanthemum, in form of flower, they differ in the variety of color. Here it is we find the yellow which characterizes the chrysanthemum, wanting. But in place of it the aster supplies us with flowers of the various shades of blue. Nature seems to produce for us the proper colored flowers at the proper time. The blue this asters are much more appreciated now

China asters are much more appreciated now while we have the gaudy geraniums and other summer flowers with us. But when the fall troats lend a dreary appearance to the garden scenery, the chrysanthemum flower garden scenery, the chrysauthemum flower bads burst and gladden the hearts of all true admirers of nature with their gorgeous yel-low, from which this species of plants derives its name.

THE STORY OF A PLOWER.

But we must return to the China aster. as we are at to wander a few months ahead of time, when we write of the "Queen of Autumn." The first seeds received in Eu-

Autumn." The first seeds received in Eu-rope of the beautiful and majestic plant were sent to the royal gardens of Paris in 1730, by a jesuit missionary named Father D. Incarville, who was then laboring in China and Japas. The numerous colors and the star-shaped flowers of some of the varieties attracted the gay eye of the Germans who named them asters, and are now the most successful growers of this plant, with the ex-ception of the Chinese, and nave probably produced more new varieties than any other nation in the world. Hence the mistake which is common among some of our florists which is common among some of our florists who speak of German asters when referring to China asters. In the French "Language of Flowers," the to China asters. In the French "Language of Flowers," the China aster is made the emblem of variety, the variety of color giving significance to it. The Chinese, being more patient than "Young America," consume very much time upon their flower beds of China asters. They sometimes plant them in designs on the bulk sometimes plant them in designs on the hills by streams of water, where the whole skie of the hill is reflected on the water, making one of those grand and unique flower-garden effects, for which they have received a world-

effects, for which they have received a world-wide reputation. By inquiry you will find that the China astars have won a place in the hearts of the American people, who commonly speak of them as queen margarets, enough to excite the envy of nearly all the hardy annuals now grown in this country. Ten or fifteen cents worth of seed, of this species of plants, will produce with little or no attention, a magnificent bed of flowers during this period of the year. So next spring when purchasing your flower seeds, do not forget to include in the collection a packet of China aster seed. W. C. P.

The greatest diplomat of the age sat in his office the other day, meditating on his own greatness, when his confidential clerk entered with a dispatch. "Sire," said be, bowing low, "A telegram has just been received from the consular agent at Chignecto saying that an American citizen, John saying that an American citizen, John Smith, has been arrested for having broken a municipal law. The consul asks, 'What's to be done?' How shall I answer him ?' "How shall you answer him !" exclaimed the great secretary, flushing with patriotic indignation. "An-swer him that Mr. Smith must be instantly when the thin any string real or this groy released, with an abject apology to this gov-ernment and a salute to the flag of the United States. Say that unless this demand is in-stantly complied with the whole force of the States. Say that unless this demand is in-stantly complied with the whole force of the government will be employed to enforce his release and exact ample reparation for the insuit. Put it as strongly as words can make it; and—stay, give a copy to the Associated Press. We must show those impudent Greasers that the American eagle"— "Par-don, sire," said the confidential clerk, with another bow, "but you misunderstand the case somewhat. Chigneeto is in Nova Scotia, and Smith is captain of a fish "— "Ah, yes," said the great diplomat. "Then per-haps it would be better to say that the depart-ment will take the case into consideration. Warn the consult that he must do nothing to imperi our relations with a triendly power. Drop a line to Minister West saying, with my complimenta, that the government will apologize if the man Smith has trespassed against the laws of Canada. I wish," mused the great diplomat, "that those Canadians would not call their towns by such outland-ish Spanish-sounding names. It might tead to grave complications if an inferior man were at the head of this department."
