The Duty On the Ores of Steel. Philadelphia Record says that it is ated that our importations of iron ore for the current year will exceed 500,000 ons, and declares that it is one of the gs which no business man can be th to understand, why this ore, which mary to keep our steel mills running. ould be taxed when it is landed at our harves. The "business man" may be med that the tax on ore is one entirely "for revenue;" which is supposed to be the only excuse for an import duty that the free-trader will hear to; and, sfore, we hardly understand why the ord howls against it.

We are in favor ourselves of free ore, but we put it on the distinct ground that the good of the country requires it to cherish efacture and that the omission of the duty on raw materials is a good and sap way to give a needed bounty to

But we are bound to confess that in this special importation of ores at the port of Philadelphia, the facts do not sustain our sition. Because the factories importing this ore do not need the bounty that would be given them by a release of the duty. Nor would they take one cent off the price of their product, if they got their ores in duty free. It is the steel rail factories at iton and Bethlehem that are importing ores largely into Philadelphia from their Cuba mines. They charge for their rails a big profit over cost. They can do it because of the demand and because of the duty on foreign rails. When the duty is taken off ore it needs to be lowered on semer rails at least.

The consumption of Bessemer pig iron has become so great that it commands its price, and all the furnaces making it have sold their product away ahead. All the grades of iron are taken at the same price. whether white, mottled or gray, and command eighteen dollars at the furnace, which yields a good profit, even though expensive ores need to be used. The chief source of these ores are the mines at Cornwall, which are the largest, of their kind, an ore sufficiently low in phosphorous to be used in making Bessemer pig metal. Very few other large deposits of ore are found in this country. and none in this neighborhood. The Cuba ore seems to answer, although shockingly sulphurous; but sulphur can be readily eliminated. St. Charles furnace, at Columbia, has just blown out to run on Bessemer iron entirely. Cordelia furnace has changed also and is running on a contract for ten thousand tons. There seems to be no limit to the demand for Bessemer iron, which is required not only in the rail manufacture but in the numerous steel plants that are being erected to supply the nail and other special manufactures in the trade that formerly consumed iron.

The steel manufacture seems to need reign ore, and if it is willing to drop mething of the duty on its product, we will say yea to a removal of the duty on Leveling Wages.

Andrew Lee, vice president we believe of the Iron Workers' association of the West has been traversing the Eastern part of Pennsylvania during the past week seek ing to persuade the rolling mill workers to strike for the Philadelphia scale of wages. According to a report from him which we find in the Philadelphia Record of to-day he does not seem to have made much sadway. He says that the Susquehanna all at Columbia is paying the advance, but the larger Columbia mill is shut down. The Lochiel mill is the only other one in the district which pays the Philadelphia figure, according to Mr. Lee. He has hope of the four Harrisburg mills; thinks there is a chance at the three Lebanon mills, and find that the men at the ster mill are thinking about it.

And so doubtless they are, just as are the men at all other mills; and just this Mr. Les should do. He should think about it. If he did he would understand why he has and such poor success in persuading the ing mill men in the country districts to smand Philadelphia wages. He would ad that the manufacturers out of Phila-alphia who have Philadelphia for their of or one of their chief, markets, must ake their iron at a less cost than it is ade in Philadelphia because they have to ay for the transportation there of their reduct; and that workmen can afford to medict; and that workmen can alrord to lake less wages in the country than in the sity because rents and food are cheaper.

Mr. Lee's plan of having a level scale of wages all over the country would congregate manufacture at the centres of trade and make the country a howling wilderness. Mr. Lee's further plan to bring iladelphia iron workers wages up to the el of the Pittaburg scale, would at once re Philadelphia manufacturers to the ere natural gas flows to make the a it poisons the seat of the iron manu-es. It is doubtless because of this stage of the West that Philadelphia is to hire her puddlers a dollar than in the West; just as, condistricts a scale lower than PhilaWhat Is Overlooked.

In discussing the action of our govern at in the Cutting case, we notice almost miversal tendency, among journals not in ympathy with the administration, to igore the surrounding circumstances. For a long time past the indignities and outrages perpetrated upon American citizens by the Mexican authorities along the bor-der had been allowed to pass unnoticed by our government; and, when the necessity for action in the Cutting matter presented itself, the long array of outrages that were recalled by it, led by the cold blooded murder of Lieutenant Crawford, and bought to a climax by the news of the Arresures horror, made the necessity of vigorous action so evident and the criminality of our long apathy so great that the only fault that can be found with Secretary Bayard is that of erring on the side of Any attempt to contrast the New England fishery troubles with the Mexican outrage can only succeed through an exaggeration and distortion of the facts in the former matter. Ten fishing schooners were seized by Canadian authorities for violation of Canadian laws in the waters of the Dominion; but of these, all but three were released upon payment of a $400 fine, which is now held as a deposit by the Canadian authorities pending the decision of the international dispute. No American citizens have languished in Canadian tails. No American citizens have been shot without trial by Canadian regular troops. The Canadian outrage. if outrage it be, has not been preceded by a hundred acts of lawless violence, coupled with open expressions of contempt for a government that cared not to protect its citizens.

Indicting the Ex-Solicitor. Ex-City Solicitor Johnson admits that he has over $1,500 of moneys belonging to the city, and his only assigned reason for not paying it over is that the city owes him a portion of the sum. The city conceeds that it owes him some $200 and asks only for the remainder. Mr. Johnson says he should have $400 more, and therefore refuses to pay anything.

Clearly there is some $1,200 in Mr. Johnson's hands to which he makes no claim and which he has no shadow of excuse for retaining from the city. It is eminently proper that he should be tried criminally to answer to the city for the embezzlement of this sum; and it is by no means to be conceded that he has any right to retain the four hundred dollars in dispute between him and the city. It is a custom of attorneys to retain their fees out of their collections; but the best practice is not to do so without the entire assent of the clients. An attorney of average sense of honor would not retain his fee out of his client's money, if the client disputed that he had earned it. He would not be disposed to take any unfair advantage of his position of power in the possession of the money. But Mr. Johnson does not appear to have any ground for claining the $100 fees from the city since the ordinance especially provides a salary for the solicitor in lieu of fees.

We desire to give Mr. Johnson the benefit of every position that can be taken in his behalf. We have so often had occasion to animadvert upon his conduct that we are loth longer to touch the subject. We should like indeed to see it washed clean, if possible, that it may be a more agreeable object of contemplation. We wish Mr. Johnson a safe deliverance.

A Big Day in England. Yesterday in England was marked by occurrences of much interest in the great political struggle now in progress there. Gladstone issued a pamphlet explaining and defending his course in the matter of Ireland, and in support of Mr. Paruell's amendment, giving a history of the struggle of the Irish in Parliament from an English standpoint. It will be apt to strengthen the Liberal party by bringing back a great number of those who were led away by Chamberlain and Hartington. After a spirited speech in its favor by Mr. Sexton, lashing Chamberlain unmercifully, the Parnell amendment was lost, as was expected, but the rough handling that Mr. Chamberlain has received from Mr. Sexton, and his failure to reply, although present, will do much to weaken the feeble resistance of the Unionists to the attractions held out to them by the government.

Mr. Chamberlain is not the man to quietly submit to the treatment he is receiving from the friends he has deserted and he will doubtless reply in more bitter tone so that before long the small party that he leads must either go to pieces or be driven into the Tory ranks. It is evident that the Liberal leaders do not fear that the deserters will go over bodily to the enemy and have undertaken to drive Chamberlain to extremes that his followers may become disgusted with him and return to the Liberal fold. Both Mr. Sexton's speech and Mr. Gladstone's address point in that direction.

COAL is to be advanced from 15 to 25 cents a ton by New York companies on Monday next, a good sign that winter is not far off.

MAYOR SMITH, of Philadelphia, kept more than nine thousand dollars of city moneys out of the city treasury for months. Ex-City Solicitor J. W. Johnson, of Lancaster, retained city funds after his term of office had expired. What were these men doing with this money ?

THE Pennsylvania Economites have lately added to their great wealth by the suc-cessful driving of wells in their territory, and of the five so far sunk all have yielded either gas or oil. These and other natural advantages have drawn the attention of manufacturers to the place as well suited for the site of extensive manufacturing enterprises, and a syndicate of wealthy Pittsburg ron men are now endeavoring to purchas the property from the survivors of that dying community. Mr. Henrici, who is the supreme head of the society, will not hear of the sale, but at his death the whole organiza ne head of the society, will not hear of tion is bound to go to pieces. The enemy have been endeavoring to weaken the Democracy by the claim that some of its old war horses are offended by the ticket recently named in Harrisburg. Let them not lay that flattering unction to their souls. The "fire-tried" Democrats who wanted Wallace for governor are all in line for Black. Captain E. H. Rauch, one of the staunchest of the friends of the Clearfield statesman, says in this week's issue of his Mauch Chunk Democrat: "In the present situation we believe the ation we believe that the ticket, from Black to Brennan, will receive the earnest and most vigorous support of every Democratespecially of those who most earnestly supported Senator Wallace for the gubernational nomination. They are not mere croakers and political camp followers, but Democrats who have the nerve to stand up for principle make, in adversity as well as in prosparity."

THE INTELLIGENCER uses no cheap stereotyped plate matter in its handsome Saturday editions.

THE issue of this campaign is protection Protection of the people against monopoly and arrogance in every form, from the railroads that laugh at the law to the "pluck me" stores that dodge it. The issue is scoepted, and Democrats will strive as they have always striven for the protection of al who need it, whether by means of a just tarif or the enforcement of just laws.

GENERAL NEAL DOR

The Maine Prohibition Leader and Advocate of Total Abstinence.

The coming campaign in Maine will be an ntensely bitter one owing to the stand taken by Neal Dow, who repudiates his old ailies, the Republicans. General Neal Dow, the prominent Prohibition leader and ardent advocate of total abstinence, was born in Portland, Maine, in 1803, of genuine old Quaker, stock. The decree generally known as the "Maine Law" which prohibits, under stringent penalties the sale of all intexicating liquors was passed while he was a member of the state legislature, and mostly through his instrumentality. He was elected mayor of Portland and after faithfully fulfilling his term of office was re-elected to the same honorary position. He at one time served as brigadier-general of volunteers, command-ing in the department of the gulf. General Dow is classed among the persistent Prohi-bition advocates known even in Maine, that home of severe temperance frigidity. He declares himself as desirous of maintaining his prohibitory idea even at the risk of defeating the Republican party, if of Portland and after faithfully fulfilling his defeating the Republican party, if they will not sustain it. Hereto-fore the Republicans have generally voted for it and the Democrats against it. It is stated that Mr. Dow is so much in earnest that he will simply dis-own all political friends who are against his plans. The promises of the Republican party to place the question squarely before the pub-lic has been broken, and the Prohibitionists ic has been broken, and the Prohibitionists are going to teach them a lesson, as they intend running their own candidates, regardless of assistance or promises from any other party. In a temperance lecture delivered in Maine in the latter part of July, General Dow made a very radical speech, which was enthusiastically applauded by a multitude of attentive auditors. He assailed the Republican party in hitter terms which however. can party in bitter terms, which, however, elected no respone from among the promi-nent Republicans present. It was not his original intention to have the meeting assume a political turn, but many parts of his speech were as clearly directed toward Mr. Blaine that his hearers knew whom he meant, without having heard the name of Mr. Blaine mentioned.

A TALK WITH HON. C. F. REACK. Labor and Anti-Discrimination to Form the Issues of the Campaign. The candidates on the Democratic state ticket continued their conferences at the Girard house, Philadelphia, on Friday morning. Chairman Hensel was present. The nominees discussed the same matters as were touched upon at the meeting on Thursday night. There will be no stump speaking until the latter part of September. In the meantime the state committee will begin the work of securing speakers for the campaign. Lieutenant Governor Black said to Chair-Lieutenant Governor Black said to Chair-man Hensel that he would go wherever the committee directed, as he was entirely in the committee's hands, and had the utmost con-ridence in its judgment. When the lieu-tenant governor was asked what would be the leading questions discussed in the cam-paign he replied:

The labor and anti-discrimination questions will form the issues of the contest. Every paign he replied:

The labor and anti-discrimination questions will form the issues of the contest. Every declaration in the platform meets my warmest approval. We are pledged in favor of proper legislation to aid the laboring classes, and we mean to go before the people on those declarations. Anti-discrimination will be insisted upon, for the party stands pledged to execute the laws bearing upon the railroads as contained in our statute books. If I am elected governor, and I am confident I will be, I will consider it my duty to exert every power at my command to exact a compliance with every mandate of the constitution. We can go boldly before the people and ask for a continuance in power, because the present administration is above reproach. Governor Pattison has proven himself an able and wise executive, and the conduct of his office has been clean and honest. The people know this and appreciate it, and we are confident they will continue the party in power.

Mr. Black further said he was gratified with the generous expressions of support from all quarters of the state. He believes his party will be united and enthusiastic throughout the campaign.

Democratic Headquarters Opened.

Chairman Hensel, of the Democratic state

Chairman Hensel, of the Democratic state Chairman Hensel, of the Democratic state committee has opened the headquarters at the Girard house, Phitadelphia. He has telegraphed to Captain McCleiland, of Pittaburg, and E. P. Kisner, of Hazeiton, to report to the rooms as soon as possible. The gentlemen named with P. Gray Meek, of Bellefonte, will be the secretaries of the committee. Mr. Hensel stated that an earnest and active campaign will be made but the stumping work will not be commenced until necessary details have been arranged.

THANK TOU, GENTLEMEN!

Esteemed Contemporaries Below are given a few of the kindly remarks of a number of esteemed contemporaries concerning the change that has reently taken place in the organization of the

INTELLIGENCER: Has Its Best Wishes.

From the Harrisburg Patriot.
The retirement of W. U. Hensel, esq., from the editorial management of the Lancaster INTELLIGENCER removes from journalism an able and industrious writer. His faults and anote and industricus writer. His faults and mistakes as a politician were not conspicuous in the columns of the newspaper with which he has been connected for the last twelve years. Mr. A. J. Steinman, who has been one of the owners and editors of the INTELLIGENCER for a period antedating the connection of Mr. Hensel with that paper for some years, is a journalist of desired ability some years, is a journalist of decided ability and a Democrat of the straitest sect. Under his management the INTELLIGENCER will not only maintain its high character as a Democratic journal but will doubtless keep abreast with the spirit of journalistic enterprise. The INTELLIGENCER under its new publishers, Messra Steinman, Reilly & Clark, has the best wishes of the Putriol for its success and prosperity.

Its Shadow Will Not Grow Less.

From the Lancaster Examiner. Under the new firm, our esteemed cotemporary, the INTELLIGENCES, will have a great base ball editor-the greatest on earth. But let this go. We extend our good wishes to Messrs. Steinman, Reilly & Clark. Mr. Reilly had several years experience on the INTELLIGENCES, is a Democrat of the strict est faith, a young man with enthusiasm and brains and so can make his mark. It is need-less to speak of Mr. Steinman. When he wishes to buckle down to work he always writes something worth the reading. All in all we do not think the shadow of the 1x-TELLIGENCER will grow less.

What Will be Missed. From the Philadelphia Telegraph.

We are glad for several reasons that Chairman Hensel has retired from the Lancaster INTELLIGENCER. We shall of course, miss and miss greatly, the at once forcible and fa cile articles on the editorial page of the 1x TELLIGENCER which could only be attributable to one pen ; but, on the other hand, we shall be spared those embarrassing, and at times painful, explanations in the middle of the politicial canvass, to the effect that Mr. Hensel must not be regarded as the sole in-spirator—if the term may be allowed—of the policy of the INTELLIGENCES. Mr. Hensel evidently means to make the greatest effort of his life—and he will need to—during the coming campaign. In flinging aside the edi-torial harness, the Democratic manager would seem to indicate supreme confidence n the result of his labors, as, in case of suc cess, his own politicial future will be taken care of by his grateful friends Black and Randall. But how about this institution for the legislature and the United States senstorship? The little fellow from Quarryville aims high, and Brother Cooper may find the campaign full of surprises from beginning to the Philadelphia Record. Mr. W. U. Hensel has sold his interest in the Lancaster Intelligences to Mr. Richard M. Reilly and Robert Clark, and will devote himself until the day of the election to his duties as 'chairman of the Demo cratic state committee. Mr. Hensel's retire ment from journalism—if it be permanent— will be regretted by the trateraity, of which he was a bright and well-loved member. Agreeing with him or disagreeing, his friends and foes have always found him a stout ally

From the Altoona Times.

There was never a division of opinion in the editorial management of the INTELLI-GENCER, and it is announced that the charge in its proprietorship involves no change of editorial opinion or policy. Mr. Reilly, who assumes the editorial chair vacated by Mr. Hensel, is a college graduate and a member of the Lancaster bar. He is possessed of talents of the highest order, is thoroughly in local with his profession, and has a second love with his profession, and has already at tained a high place among the prominent journalists of the state. He is a worthy suc-cessor to the gitted Hensel. Mr. Clark will continue as business manager.

Giad To Welcome Him Back.

rom the Philadelphia Bulietin. We trust that Mr. Hensel's retirement from the Lancaster INTELLIGENCER will not involve his permanent withdrawal from jour-nalism. Mr. Heusel is one of the honest and intelligent newspaper men with whom the ranks of the press in this state are not over-burdened. His career in politics, if not as successful as it might have been, has been manly and honorable. Whatever may be his manly and honorable. Whatever may be his faults as a Democrat, he has always been a fair and courteous opponent. We are sorry for him that he has three months of laborious work before him in trying to achieve the impossible feat this year of electing the Demo cratic ticket, but when he shall have closed up his headquarters, we shall be giad to wel come him back to the field of journalism.

Fitted for Successful Journalism. From the Columbia Herald We are truly sorry to lose Mr. Hensel from Lancaster county journalism. He is un doubtodly one of the most talented, diligent and vigorous editors in the state of Pennsyl Mr. Hensel is warm-hearted and true as a friend and capable and clean as a political leader. He will deserve and win success in whatever field it may be his pleasure to labor. Mr. Hensel will be succeeded by Richard M. Reilly, esq. and Mr. Robert Clark. Both of these gentlemen have been connected with the editorial and business management of the Intelligences for several years. They are young, full of energy

Well Known and Highly Esteemed.

From the Lancaster Inquirer. Mr. Hensel is adapted to journalism and has made himself quite a reputation in that profession. Whether or not he will return profession. Whether or not he will return to it is, we understand, as yet undetermined. R. M. Reilly, esq., and Robert Clark are the purchasers of Hensel's interest in the INTELLIGENCER. The former has been a member of the editorial staff for some time and the latter is the present business manager. Both are young men well known and highly estemated in this community. teemed in this community.

eral years. They are young, full of energy and well fitted for successful journalism.

Will Continue One of the First and Best, From the Littiz Becord.

It is pleasant to have reason to believe that the profession of journalism will not lose Mr. the profession of journalism will not lose Mr. Hensel altogether. By his abilities as an oditor and his earnestness as a worker he has stamped his individuality upon the journalism of the state. His conceptions of newspaper work are of a very high order, and all he has done as an editor has strongly tended to elevate the dignity of the editorial page. The gentlemen who have purchased his interests are well known in Lancaster county, and we feel perfectly certain that under the new management the INTELLIGENCER will continue as one of the first and best papers in the state.

Leaves It in Able Hands

From the York Dispatch. The newspaper fraternity will regret the retirement of W. U. Hensel from the Lanaster INTELLIGENCER. Mr. Hensel is an aster INTELLIGENCER. Mr. Hensel is an able and brilliant writer and has made the INTELLIGENCER one of the brightest and best newspapers in the state. We trust it will not be long, however, before he returns to his first love and again enters the journalist's life. Having placed the INTELLIGENCER on the high road to prosperity, we are giad that he leaves it in able hands who will continue it on its present high plane. Outside tinue it on its present high plane. Outside of politics, we wish both the retiring editor and his successor a full measure of success

Venturing a Guess.

From the Delaware County Democrat.
W. U. Hensel, esq., has sold his interest in the Lancaster Intelligences to Richard M. Reilly and Robert Clark, and will devote sh. Relity and Robert Clark, and will devote himself until the day of election to his duties as chairman of the Democratic state commit-tee. What he may decide to do afterwards is not yet determined, but on a venture we would guess he will be secretary of state. He'll Be Busy Enough.

We are sorry for Mr. Hensel's retiremen from the Intelligences, but he'd be busy enough during the campaign, and won't be idle after it in working for the good cause. Both Clever and Handsome.

From the Lancaster New Era.

In Mr. Hensel Lancaster will lose the most talented, industrious and energetic of its young editors and the fical Democracy their most able and independent of their exponents. Their loss will no doubt be, at an early day, the gain of journelism in a larger field and under circumstances more congenial to Mr. Hensel's tastes and independent proclipities, as the fact has been known to us for some time that whenever he was free to accept an engagement on metropolitan journalism a desirable position would be open to him. As a journalist we wish him the full measure of that success which we believe he will achieve, because he will deserve it. At the same time we extend to him the full measure of our sympathy tor that failure which awaits him in his labor of the two intervening menths, to which he proposes to "devote himself exclusively." With all his cleverness he is not equal to the task of convincing the voters of Pennsylvania that Black is white, or that aristocracy and Pennocracy are identical. The young men who succeed to Mr. Hensel's interest in our contemporary are both clever and handsome, and they have the New Era's test wishes for success everything except their Bourbon politics.

Ability and High Character, From the Mauch Chunk Democrat. Mr. Chairman Hensel has sold his ball nterest in the Lancaster INTELLIGENCER to Messrs. Richard M. Reilly and Robert Clark, both gentlemen of ability and high character. Mr. Henset's alleged reason for his retirement is that he desires to devote all his refirement is that he desires to devote all his time and attention to the campaign just opened. If this change will really work a thorough organization of the party through-out the state, and unite and concentrate the several factions, or if such good work is Mr. Hensel's real purpose, then he deserves the commendation of the entire bemocracy. He is unquestionably an editor and cultivated cenunquestionably an editor and cultivated gen-tlemen of the first class, and of very rare natural ability.

May it Continue to Hold Its High Place.

From the Bedford Gazatte Chairman Hensel has sold his half interest in the Lancaster INTELLIGENCER to Richard M. Reilly and Robert Clark, two gentlemen who have for a number of years been con-nected with the paper. That the INTELLI-GENCER may continue to hold in journalism and public favor the high place which it now occupies is the best wish which we can extend to the new management.
