THE INTELLIGENCER, Lancaster, Pa.

LANCASTER, AUGUST 31, 1886.

Not Wide Awake Yet.

Mr. Johnson yesterday paid to the city treasurer his moneys collected by him, less the sum he claims for fees.

It is the function of the INTELLIGENCER to waken up people of the Johnson kind, and his experience with him is that he needs a pretty heavy shock to waken and a steady shaking to keep awake.

It is in the function of the INTELLIGENCER to waken up people of the Johnson kind, and his experience with him is that he needs a pretty heavy shock to waken and a steady shaking to keep awake.

That imagination, he confesses, misled him into keeping $1,479.91 of the city funds to which he had no claim, because he thought the finance committee was satisfied, and delighted perhaps, to have him take care of it.

Mr. Johnson will shortly see that he has no claim to the $386.65 which he still holds. The ordinance distinctly states that the city solicitor shall have no other compensation than his salary.

There has been a good deal of talk about embezzlers of late about this town. Young Lawyer Evans was disbarred and is to go to jail because he borrowed a client's money and lost it in speculation, and could not repay it.

Now Mr. Johnson takes the city's money, and uses it and does not pay it over on demand; and when the thing gets hot enough to burn, he finds friends to raise the most of it.

The Sun's Eclipse. The chief interest in the observations of the eclipse made on Sunday will centre on the spectroscopic observations of the corona, and the emanations from the sun at the time of the total eclipse.

The emperor of Austria yesterday opened a new cavalry barracks at Pesth in commemoration of the taking of Buda from the Turks. This event marked the turning point in the struggle against the Turks, just as the taking of Buda by the Austrians in 1818 marked the crisis of the Austro-Hungarian struggle.

Mr. Henry Grover has clearly demonstrated the level condition of his head on at least one subject by requiring a petition from 30,000 voters before consenting to become a candidate for mayor of New York.

James's famous discovery in observing the eclipse of 1868, that the red flames of

THE FESTIVE SEDGWICK. They bring in a tale from Mexico as to how Mr. Sedgwick, the legal expert sent down by Mr. Bayard to Mexico, to find out all about the Mexican statutes relating to the Cutting case, was invited on his arrival to a club supper and how he became convivial and did not go home till morning, nor even when daylight did appear, but somewhere about two o'clock in the afternoon; and that he was covered with garlands and generally was a very gay Sedgwick for the time being; although when at home is a very different man and a very studious lawyer and never drinks a drop.

It is quite likely that this tale is true about Mr. Sedgwick, though perchance elaborated somewhat. We see no reason to dispute it. It runs quite in the nature of lawyers, dignified, learned and altogether imposing at the bar and in general society in daylight at home.

It is just wonderful how they change abroad, or when they gather around a festive board with the doors shut and no spectators around. Anyone who has ever seen the Lancaster bar at its annual dinner would not recognize the institution he sees in court; not at all, would he. And it is the most respectable, dignified, sober and stiff of them on the other 364 days in the year who are the lighter on this day.

But what of it? Mr. Sedgwick was not our ambassador to Mexico. He carried no credentials even to Minister Jackson. He was simply a lawyer looking up the law; who fell among a band of bloods who conspired to get him drunk; and had an easy time of it, because he was a dignified lawyer, not used to wines; that is the kind of man that comes to deepest grief about the festive board on the rare occasions when he gets there.

The Milk in That Coconut. Is not our esteemed contemporary, the Harrisburg Patriot, mistaken when it says Marshal Kerns is not removed because "Samuel J. Randall insists upon the appointment of his political pal, Samuel Joseph, of malodorous memory"?

In well-informed circles it has long been well understood and never denied that it is Mr. Randall's most implacable and inveterate foe, Mr. William Singler, proprietor of the Record, who insists upon the appointment of Samuel Joseph.

County Commissioner Myers is not disposed to let Judge Patterson walk over him comfortably. He says that the judge talked to the grand jury members privately and influenced their recommendation. That is evidently a charge that calls for notice from the judge because it was hardly a proper thing to do. It is quite a pretty situation between the judge and the commissioners, and may be musical if it is not pacified. We advise the judge to treatly around Brother Myers; unless he has his facts solid. If he has, he can make a good deal of money for the Children's Home under Mr. Myers' offer.

A NEW YORK professor, who has given some attention to the study of oysters, says that the influence of weather on the microscopic oyster food is great. In damp or cloudy weather this food sinks to the bottom of the sea, and the oyster in a short time will fairly burst with fatness. In sunny weather the food rises to the surface and the oysters are poor and flavorless.

It has long been a subject of wonder, in view of the many crimes which have been committed under the compartment system in English railroads, that the latter has not given way to the more practicable and safer American railway cars. The construction of English railroads, in which separate compartments make it possible at any time for two men, strangers to one another, to be locked up alone, is plainly the main help to the robberies and murders which have been perpetrated. In such isolated compartments it is easy for a bold criminal to watch his opportunity and take his unsuspecting fellow-traveler as a helpless disadvantage. They have but one alleged safeguard, and that has never yet proved effective. There is, of course, a signal or train-cord in every compartment, but naturally the first object of an intending robber is to prevent his victim from making use of this means of protection. As most people go to sleep at some stage of a long railroad journey, chloroform can generally be employed to advantage. In this, as in many other things, our English cousins will do well to study the American system of railway travel.

To-morrow Mr. Oyster will meet his old friends and make many new ones.

The emperor of Austria yesterday opened a new cavalry barracks at Pesth in commemoration of the taking of Buda from the Turks. This event marked the turning point in the struggle against the Turks, just as the taking of Buda by the Austrians in 1818 marked the crisis of the Austro-Hungarian struggle. In fact Buda has always seemed the centre around which the whirlpool of war has revolved and has stood no less than twenty sieges in modern warfare its strategic importance is not so great, yet considerable attention has been given to its defense as the seat of a large cannon foundry and arsenal. The winning of Buda from the Turks was accomplished mainly by the charges of heavy squadrons of cavalry upon the Turkish infantry, and is memorable in military history as one of the last instances in which the use of cavalry in this way proved successful. It is therefore proper that the victory should be commemorated by the erection of a cavalry barracks, as the usefulness of this branch remains as great as ever, although the infantry now bear the main shock of battle.

MR. HENRY GROVER has clearly demonstrated the level condition of his head on at least one subject by requiring a petition from 30,000 voters before consenting to become a candidate for mayor of New York. He will not assure himself however that the signatures of the petition actually represent voters, and are not selected at random from the directory by the authors of the document. He may then feel sure that he is not to be fooled by the politicians.

GERONIMO offers to arrange terms of surrender. The trouble with Geronimo is that he will not stay surrendered.

EVERY Democrat who wishes to make certain of a victory should see that he is registered in the assessor's book, which is now open at the place where he votes. Thursday is the last day on which this important duty can be attended to.

TWO CELEBRATED OARSMEN.

William Beach, an Australian, the first man to defeat Hanlan.

William Beach, the first man to defeat Edward Hanlan, the noted Canadian sculler, in a match race is a native of Australia, being born in 1853. His connection with the aquatic sporting fraternity is of comparatively recent date. In 1881 he won an important skill race at the Woolloomooloo regatta. Not long after he rowed second to Rush in an outrigger and with Rush for a trike, soon after beat the renowned oarsmen, Trickett and Laycock. In July 1883 he rowed his first great race, being beat by E. H. Trickett, the Australian champion. They rowed the championship course, a distance of 2 1/2 miles 338 yards, for $1,000 a side. Although Trickett was victorious in 21 minutes 15 seconds, Beach rowed a remarkably good race. He was again matched against Trickett in August, 1883, the stakes being $2,000 a side. This race Beach won in 22 minutes 30 seconds. Trickett claimed that he was out of condition and challenged the victor to another race for the same amount of money. The match took place on August 27th, 1883, and again Beach was victorious, covering the distance in the remarkable time of 20 minutes 44 seconds. In an open regatta on November 1st of the same year, Trickett took first place and Beach second. They came together again on December 1st, but Beach was again defeated. Upon the arrival of Edward Hanlan in Australia, Beach was very anxious to meet him, and accordingly a match was arranged for the 10th of August, 1884, for $2,000 a side, the race to be rowed on the Parametoo river. To the surprise of everyone Hanlan was beaten by seven lengths. He claimed a fourth, which, however, was not allowed, so sure were Hanlan's friends of his success that odds of 5 to 1 were offered on him and his backers were heavy losers by his mischance. In August, 1884, Hanlan Beach gave the proud title of champion of the world.

WALLACE ROSS.

If Wallace Ross is not more honest than the average of mankind, he certainly is more so than the average professional oarsman. He can always be depended upon to row to win and in this particular stands out in bold contrast to others of his profession. Wallace Ross is one of the best oarsmen of whom America can boast, and previous to Hanlan's defeat by Beach and Teemer, he was the only one whom Hanlan had occasion to fear. Ross is characterized by his slight build; he has no superabundant muscle, but what he has is in the right place for effective work; moreover his limbs are long, lithe and supple and in this he has a material advantage. In the race on the Thames on Monday, Ross was beaten by Matterson, the Australian, and Teemer winning a race from the English oarsman, Perkins.

PERSONAL. SPECIAL AGENT SEDGWICK'S alleged discourteous treatment in Mexico, and his drunkenness while there are denied.

MISS LOUISE CASH, of Rhea county, Tenn., died Monday after a fast of seventy days and nights during which time she had not eaten a mouthful of food. She started out to fast ninety days.

REV. ALEXANDER J. DEVEREAUX, rector of Christ Church, New Orleans, died Monday at Washington, Wis., aged 45 years. Only a few days ago he was elected bishop of the Easton (Maryland) Episcopate.

Mrs. ELIZABETH ROGERS has been appointed master workman of district No. 24, Knights, Cleveland and her mother will be a position under the city government. Mrs. Rogers is 39 years of age, and the mother of eleven children.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND and party on Monday left Saranac lake for a few days' hunting and fishing in the upper lake region of the Adirondacks. It is not yet determined whether Mrs. Cleveland and her mother will go into the woods, or await the return of the party at one of the hotels on the edge of the wilderness. It is all probability they will make the venture, as Mrs. Cleveland has expressed a desire to rough it with the others. The party will not return before the latter part of the week, and the hunters will be beyond telegraphic communication.

JOE BLACKBURN, of Kentucky, lives in the pleasant little country town of Versailles, and on one occasion a member of the Lexington City Council came over to inspect some improvement or other, and the senator showed him around.

"Have you gas in town?" asked the visitor. "Not yet; but we are going to have." "No street cars?" "Oh, no." "Water works?" "No, but we've got one of the finest distilleries in the country handy, and that's good enough for us."

WHAT IS LOVE? It's a sort of palpitation, Passionate reverberation Of the vital habitations Of the heart.

Effervescence, oscillation, Inexplicable sensation, In continuous rotation Forms a part.

A respectful invitation To a very choice collation, Lowly rite of long duration In his court.

Confidential conversation, No attempt at ostentation, Never ceasing demonstration On his part.

Where You Sink into Death. From the San Francisco Inquirer.

It is an awful sight to see a man drown, but with foresight and skill no man need drown. Fancy a sea in which there is no swimming, and a sea into which you may plunge unawares. A man is loping over the green prairie looking out from under his broad sombrero at the lazy cattle and the prairie dogs playing in the sun. Suddenly there is a sound like a giant's throbbing, a swelling, a choking shout of terror. The prairie dogs run into their holes, and a moment later come out cautiously, curious and frightened. The sea-like grass is waving, waves come on horse and rider were just now. The ante-lope on the crest of the divide yonder look around them wondrously. But there is nothing to fear—no man in sight. He is going to town, that rider, with the waves of a hard winter's work in his pocket, riding his favorite broncho, dressed in the buckskins he had fringed in the winter evenings, ready to show the foolish girls how brave he looked in his ruder attire. Where is he now—he and his horse? In a grave, a grave, a grave, a grave—mud—alkali paste, blue with a nameless tint of putrid death, has filled his throat—covered his face before he was waving waves on horse and rider were just now.

What does this mean—some hideous freak of nature—some work of a devil endowed with a moment's powers? Only an alkali; only a natural well filled with a paste as yielding as water—retentive as hell. Picture to yourself the surface setting back to its normal position, the waves, the waves, the waves, a ghoul-like snaking of grave lips. A grave that supplies itself with dead—an alkali, a natural well filled with a paste as yielding as water—retentive as hell. Picture to yourself the surface setting back to its normal position, the waves, the waves, the waves, a ghoul-like snaking of grave lips. A grave that supplies itself with dead—an alkali, a natural well filled with a paste as yielding as water—retentive as hell.

The tenacity of this paste of mud is something incredible. I have never seen a man caught in a sink-hole, but I have seen a man ride to the edge of one, discover it too late to turn his horse, and shaking himself loose in the saddle, vault over the horn puntamel, and the pony was caught, striking the ground far beyond the sink-hole. There were twenty men there, and before the horse had sunk far there were half a dozen top-siders, all of whom were shouting, "Pull almost anything, but they could not pull the horse from the grave that was closing about his neck. It holds all its grass with a horrible tenacity.

Cleopatra's Drink Pearls. In her wine, and captivated Caesar with her beauty and magnificence. But pearls in the mouth are better, and our modern beauties may have these if they faithfully use SODIUM every day, and captivate all by simply smiling to show their pretty white teeth.

MEDICAL. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

Your Children. Are constantly exposed to danger from Croup, Whooping Cough, and diseases peculiar to the throat and lungs. For such ailments, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, promptly administered, affords speedy relief and cure.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for many years, and have found it especially valuable in Whooping Cough. This medicine allays all irritation, prevents inflammation from excessive coughing, and quickly subdues any tendency to Lung Consumption. I find no medicine so effective for Croup and Whooping Cough, as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It was the means of saving the life of my little boy, only six months old, carrying him safely through the worst case of Whooping Cough I ever saw.—Jane Malcomb, Piney Flats, Tenn.
