" Let Her Go, Gallagher!" the St. Louis Spectator. I find myself in the position to contribute comething to the current literature in regard to slang phrases. In the Sunday Saying of last week there is a paragraph to this effect: "I have wondered where the new slang rasce, 'Let her go, Gallagher,' and 'Chipnot particularly bright or meaning on a sal bearing, and I am at a loss to account r the universality of their usage. The first brase, "Let her go, Gallagher," I first eard in Kentucky several years ago, and phrase, "Let her go, Gallagher," I first beard in Kentucky several years ago, and have marked its gradual spreading. The droumstances under which it originated were these: In Harrodsburg, Ky., there was a terrible bully and desperado named Bob Gallagher, who had at different times killed some six or eight men, but under such circumstances that he always escaped punishment upon the pies of self defense. In his brawls he was usually abetted by his two sons, and the tric were a terror in the community. During the period of lawlessness which succeeded the war, he applied for the position of town marshal or policeman. The authorities thought it might prove a good thing, as he and his soms would be heid in obsek, to some extent, and they needed just such a person to deal with the unruly element which was causing so much trouble. He was sworn in and with good effect for a time. He inaugurated a perfect reign of terror, and for several years it worked like a charm. Finally one day some turbulent apirits came in from a neighboring county, and under the influence of liquor there was a charm. Finally one day some turbulent apirits came in from a neighboring county, and under the influence of liquor there was a tow which Gallagher and his two sons failed to subdue with the accustomed liberal use of their ciuba. Pulling out a pistol he threatened to shoot; quick as thought, the other fellow—Hanks, I believe was his name—pulled his pistol and snapped it so ciose to Gallagher that it burned the button on his yest, shouting as he did so; "Let her go," and killed Hanks instantly; he and his sons then fired a number of shots into the dead body of his victim. The murder and trial by which he was acquitted created a great sensition at the time, and the account of it was pread far and wide, coupled with the parae, "Let her go, Gallagher," Gallagher did "the her service become a by-word.

When We Demoralize the Stomach By excesses or imprudence in eating, we can not hope to escape the consequences for any great length of time. The most robust digestion must succumb to abuses of that important function. But sapposing that we have been foolish enough to enfectle the stomach, is the damage irreparable? By no means. The dyspeptic has only to do two things to insure his ultimate recovery. First, he should adopt an casily direstible diet. Second, he should use with regularity and persistence Hosteter's Stomach Bitters, the leading gustric invigorant of the age. The multiform symptoms of dyspepsia, and the almost invariably attendant die orders, billousness and constipation, will assuredly cease to persecute the sufferer if the When We Demoralize the Stomach orders, biliousness and constipation, will suredly cease to persecute the sufferer if above advice is attended to. Who that has a fered the torments that chronic indigestion flicts will neglect to take advantage of a reme which, if the most positive evidence of the me cal profession and the public is to be resolvent that the credence, is an absolute specific for complaint.

" The Little Tycoon,"-The production of the "Little Tycoon" this evening promises to be one of the leading amusement events of the season. The company is the original which first produced the opera at the Temple theatre, Phila delphia, where it scored a tremendous success. It is large and strong and the opera will be well given here. There will be a large and fashiona-ble auditors. le audience.

" The Cattle King." - This is the title of a new sensational piece which will be played in Fallon opera house on Monday evening next by James H. Wallick's company. The trained h rees are a big feature of the show.

Racing at Point Breeze.—On next Monday the great races at Point Breeze park begin. There will be $40,000 in premiums, and it will be the greatest meeting in the history of Pennsylvania racing. Excursion tickets will be sold on all railroads to Philadelphis.
