when we were boys together, in the school house on the hill.
Well I recall the nights at home, when side by side we sat Before the fire, and o'er these books indulged in whaper d chat, And how, when father chided us for idling time away. Our eyes bent to the task as though they'd never been astray.

The old-time proverbs scribbled here, the caution to beware ("Steal not this book, my honest triend")scrawled roughly here and there,
The blurs, the blots, the luncheon spots, the numberless dog's ears,

The faded names, the pictures, and, alas ' the stains of tears,
All take me back in mind to days when cloudless was the sky.
When grief was so shout lived I smiled before my tears were dry;

When, next to father's angry frown, I feared the awul nod
That doomed me, trembling, to advance and humbly kiss the rod.
How bright those days: Our little cares, our momentary fears, And e'en our pains, evanished with a burst of sobs and tears.

And every joy secured great enough to balance all our woe!
What pity that when griefs are real they can't be balanced so! The school house stands in ruins now, the boys have scattered wide, are old and gray like me, but nearly all have died.

And brother Will is one of these, his curly head Down by the brook, at father's able, beneath the willow's shade.

These books so quaint and queer to you, to me are living things:
Each tells a story of the past, and each a message brings.
Whene'er I sit, at eventide, and turn their pages

They seem to speak in tones that thrilled my beart in days of yore,
The schoolboy of to-day would laugh and throw these old books by:
But, think you, neighbor, could his heart consent it he were I ? - R. W. McAlpine, in the Christian Union.

A BRIDEGROOM JUMPS FROM A TRAIN. While on His Wedding Tour He Becomes Crazy and Leaps to Ris Death.

An exciting scene was witnessed on the midnight express train while running at a high rate of speed on the Lebanon Valley railroad, ten miles from Reading, Friday night. The passengers were suddenly start-led by a scuffle in the middle of the car. A well dressed young man named Levi W. Brobst arose abruptly, and in a loud voice "I'm tired of riding!"

"I'm tired of riding!"
His beautiful young wife beside him grasped him by the coat and said: "Sit down, we'll soon be at Reading."
"Not a bit of it, Gussie," he replied. "I'm going no further; see the lights dancing out onder?"; He then made a hasty move toward the He then made a hasty move toward the door of the car, when his wife seized him by his coat and implored him to sit down. The other passengers in the car at first thought it might simply be a personal misunderstanding, and they made no effort to interfere. Another lady of the party, a middle-aged woman, named Mrs. J. C. High, left her seat and ran to the wife's assistance. Both seized the excited young man and told him to be seated. By a powerful effort he tore away from the grasp of his wife, but Mrs. High kept hold of his coat.

Brobst now became furious, and literally dragged Mrs. High to the door. The latter shouted for assistance, but before any one had the courage to interfere Brobst tore his coat, and thus got away from the lady's grasp. He leaped for the door, crying out at the top of his voice:

"Good by. Here she goes."

the top of his voice;
"Good by. Here she goes."
EThe next second he jumped to the platform, and in the next instant leaped off into the darkness, while the train was speeding on at thirty-five miles per hour.

The young wife fainted in her seat, while her husband was being hurled headlong down a twenty-foot rocky embankment. The train was speedily stopped, and the victim was found dying among the boulders. His face and body were horribly cut. He was brought to Reading, where he died in St. Joseph's hospital next morning. His wallet containing $300, was lost when he jumped, and was not lound.

and was not found.

He was 30 years of age, and a handsome, well-built young man. He was married to Miss Gussie Leffler hast Wednesday in West Point, Neb., and they were on their wedding trip to Siatington. His body was taken there, where his parents live. The bride says she first noticed a change in her husband in Chicago. He had not been well, and had not eaten anything for three days. The excitement of his wedding made him very nervous. His mind gradually became unbainervous. His mind gradually became unba-anced. He raved and spoke incoherently, and at last jumped off the train.

A. B. C. CRANSTON, floor walker for Steri Brothers, 32 West Twenty-thiird street, New York, together with his wife, was troubled with malaria for upwards of two years. They were both entirely cured by taking one or two Bran-dreth's Pills every night for three months without interfering with their labor or household

Many vain attempts are made to repeat the remarkable success of Benson's Capcine Plaster.

This splendid remedy is known, sold and used This splendid remedy is known, sold and used everywhere, and its prompt action and unrivalled curstive powers have won for it hosts of friends. Imitations have sprung up under similar sounding names, such as "Capstein," "Capsteum," ctc., intended to deceive the careless and unwary. These articles possess mone of the virtues of the genuine. Therefore we hope the people will assist us to protect what are at once their interests and ours. Ask for Benson's Plaster, and examine what is given you, and make sure that the word "Capcino" is cut in the middle of the plaster itself, and the "Three Seals" trademark is on the face cloth. Any reputable dealer will show you cannot remember the name—Benson's Capcino Plaster—cut this paragraph from the paper. (1)

Cochran, druggist, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster.

O. M. Holcomb, of Bloomville, Ohio, rises to explain: "Had that terrible disease catarrh, for twenty years; couldn't taste or smell, and hearing was failing. Thomas Eclectric Oil cured me.
