LANCASTER, SEPTEMBER 14, 1880.

Mayor Smith's Impeachment, The committee of Philadelphia councils are done wisely in reporting in favor he impeachment of Mayor Smith for nor and maladministration in oe. They could do nothing else. Theirs to inquire whether there was a able cause of action in the charges red against him, and they must have their eyes not to see that a prima case was made out against the erring

The gist of the charges against Mayor alth is that he held back from the city ary money that belonged to it, which ney he was using for his own private arposes. Out of these two main accusaon and a general looseness in the conget of municipal affairs that is most culile. The committee plainly thought that the explanations of the mayor did not ex plain; at least, they considered that the evidence of his dereliction was so grave as to require a trial in situation. It will now become the duty of the select council to try the mayor by imchment proceedings. This foreshadows s long and tedious trial, the outcome of which no man may predict. But whatever its result, there will be a more lawful administration of the mayor's office in the future; and all other public and private officials will have their connces quickened by the sad plight which Mayor Smith is placed by his own dereliction. The great credit for this most needful exposure belongs to the Philadelphia Times which fearlessly led the fight for a more honest city government, and dealt such stalwart blows that it compelled aton both within and without the state. Let none attempt to dim the glory that the Times has obtained in its conquest. It has proved anew that the faithful, fearless newspaper is one of the most powerful of weapons for the public good.

Two Kinds of Indian.

There are two widely different kinds of Indians. Allusion is not made to the dead Indian and the bad Indian, but to two living varieties of the noble savage. The bloody-minded Geronimo is the type of one sort, and the peaceful, simple-minded Indian so truthfully depicted by Mrs. Helen Jackson in her novel Ramona, is the reprentative of the other and least numerous

The Chiricahua Apaches are the very embodiment of savage war, treacherous, merciless, revelling in wanton murder ; of sperate bravery and unparalleled endurance, their civilization will probably never be accomplished, and annihilation seems the only fate before them. The Indians of Lower California have reached a civilization which gives ground for hope that they will develop into useful citizens, and their esservation will be due in large measure the unremitting labors of Mrs. Jackson in their behalf. This noble woman devoted the last years of her life to an effort to secure for these people the right to live in their homes, and to resist the operations of land sharks. She was partially successful. and her work is now being continued by the Indian Rights association, which has numed the expense of litigation for the Indians. The suit was lost in the Californis courts, and an appeal taken to the United States court, but an order of ejectment was at once issued against them to be enforced unless $3,300 bonds were furnished. The money was promptly for warded from Philadelphia and the savages still remain in the homes of their an-

Common justice demands that these ceful Indians should have equal rights with other men on the frontier and, if driven from their homes by the strict interpretation of the letter of the land laws, should at least be enabled to take advantage of those same laws to locate elswhere. Nearly all the good laud has been claimed and the refugees would be define to mountains and deserts, even in the event of the privilege of claiming land being accorded to them by Congress. The blood-stained followers of Geronimo are to be pensioned and nursed on a reseration, while the peaceful, industrious, Indians are in danger of being iven forth from their homes to die of er and thirst in the wilderness.

What Charleston Must Do.

country has come forward liberally a the assistance of afflicted Charleston, to that city of over sixty thousand people on that same secure foundation that supported it before the earthquake, unless the people themselves show that they have nergy and pluck. If the citizens of on display these qualities in as great abundance as did the men of Chigo after their great fire, the city may, iks the Western metropolis, take a new se of life from the disaster, and with the earth does not interfere. A few more shakes from that meddlesome third party will drive the citizens of Charleston to some more solid country, and ruin one of our most valuable Atlantic ports.

The Maine Result.

The result in Maine is not calculated to calm the fears of the more sagacious of the Republican leaders that their party is tottering to its fall. Despite the most determined efforts of Mr. Blaine with all his personal magnetism thrown into the canvass, and despite the fact the Democrats were without means to push an active canvass, the Pine Tree state simply stays Republican by a reduced majority. In 1879 the Republicans carried the state by 21,176 plurality, and seven years before the plurality reached 32,000. Two years ago in the gubernatorial election the Republican ticket was chosen by a plurality of nearly 20,000. The best that is hoped for from the present campaign is a plurality of from 12,000 to 14,000,

The plain fact that all may see is that the Prohibitionists are the entering wedge that will split the Republican party. Two years ago in the September election they polled 1,157 votes. This time their number will exceed 5,000. All the efforts that Blaine and his lieutenants could make only sufficed to more than quadruple the Prohibition vote. Pennsylvania Republicans might as well get ready to look at the hand-writing on the wall that will be visible on the second day of November.

---"SIT down, Smith," is now the proper alogan in Philadelphia musical circles.

The abstract of a recent remarkable ethnological essay which is published to-day, will be read with interest by all who have noted the steady but sure drift of science and religion towards a reconciliation of their apparently conflicting teachings. Two truths ean not conflict, and the increase of human knowledge must reconcile them; but "art is long" and, meanwhile, faith takes its

THE most elaborate precautions have been taken to protect the coar during his fourney to the scene of the autumn maneuvers of the Russian army. He travels in a train of three sections taking care that all the window blinds, of every carriage in each section, is closed whenever a station is passed, so that no one not connected with his party can tell which section or car he occupies. Troops will line the entire route with leaded rifles as the train passes, and 50,000 of them have been detailed especially for this duty. Yet this man wields greater power than any other living human being. Responsible to no one and dependent on no popular assembly, his word is law, and its tremendous power is further augmented by the religious fanaticism and awe that is his due as the head of the Greek church.

A FEW more such victories as these in Maine and the Republican party will be un-

In ten or twenty years Pennsylvania will have lost its forest crown of oak timber and the Alleghenies will be but barren slopes covered with miserable scrub timber and laurel thicket. And yet it is hardly thirty years since the mountains of our state were sovered with the most magnificent timber. There is very little good oak timber left in the state and that little is being used up rapidly. The Pennsylvania railway company uses enormous quantities of it and one contractor, by no means one of the largest, has twenty-five saw mills engaged in cutting it. It is not 30 years since black walnut was cut into fence rails in Western Obio. Our waste of oak may appear equally criminal in the future, but the use of steel ties will in time relieve our forests of that enormous drain.

THE question of the legality of the seizure of the Canadian schooner Unward hinges upon the right of American authorities to assume that the seal found on board the vessel were killed within the three-mile limit. As seal cannot be caught three miles from shore this presumption amounts to a certainty, but the rule of the Atlantic fisheries is that fishermen must be caught in the act of taking fish from forbidden waters, and the English seek to apply the same rule to the taking of seals This is an attempt to sacrifice the spirit to the letter of the law, for the rule of the Atlantic is evidently devised to prevent seigure upon suspicion; but in Behring's Sea the fact that seal were found on the vessel is sufficient evi dence that they were taken from within the American three-mile limit which surrounds every island that the seal are to be found on, Had Russian vessels tallen in with the real pirates of their coast they would doubtless have promptly set the crew on shore and sunk the offending vessel as they have done in more than one instance. On the basis of a treaty between England and Russia before the sale of Alaska it is claimed by the Canadians that the subjects of the high contractng parties shall not be troubled in navigating or fishing in any part of the Pacific.

THE York Disputch, a Republican paper that keeps turning the grindstone for "weeping and walling Democrats," is turning Republican voters to Black. The axes of malcontents are being ground, but meanwhile the Democratic mill is in operation and grinding exceedingly fine.

THE QUEEN OF PORTUGAL wears the Paris life saver's medal. In 1874 she was bathing with her two sons, Charles and Alphonso, aged 11 and 9 years, at the watering place of Cascaes. A big wave carried off the two children, and the queen boldly swam out to their relief. The sea was running high, and the lady and her two boys were nearly lost in the surf, when the light-house keeper, seeing their danger, dashed into the water and succeeded in bringing all three to shore in safety. Her majesty wears her medal proudly as the reward of her bravery; but there is no record reward of her bravery; but there is no record of any medal or any other reward having been given to the lighthouse man.
