

TO PRESERVE THE SOFTNESS OF FLANNEL GARMENTS, FOLLOW CAREFULLY THESE DIRECTIONS FOR WASHING

Dissolve thoroughly in boiling water some Ivory Soap, shaved fine. Add sufficient warm water to wash the flannels in one by one. Don't rub any soap on the flannels, but knead them well in the solution.

Don't rinse them in plain water, use a fresh supply of the solution, warm and well lathered, for the purpose. Don't wring tightly with the hands, use a clothes wringer. The freer from water you get these garments the softer they will be.

Hang them out immediately, if the weather will permit; if not, dry before the fire. If left to stand wet, the flannel will certainly shrink. Never wash flannel in water too hot to bear your hand in.

Never rinse them in cold water. Always use Ivory Soap, it is the best, much experience has proved this.

A WORD OF WARNING. There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory," they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR.

PERFECT HAIR

Indicates a natural and healthy condition of the scalp, and of the glands through which nourishment is obtained. When, in consequence of age and disease, the hair becomes weak, thin and gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will strengthen it, restore its original color, promote its rapid and vigorous growth, and impart to it the lustre and freshness of youth.

I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a long time, and am convinced of its value. When I was 17 years of age my hair began to turn gray. I commenced using the Vigor, and was satisfied at the good effects it produced. It not only restored the color to my hair, but so stimulated its growth that I have now more hair than ever before.—J. W. Edwards, Coldwater, Mass.

If you are afflicted from debility and loss of appetite; if your stomach is out of order, or your mind confused; take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine will restore physical force and elasticity to the system, more surely and speedily than any tonic yet discovered.

For six months I suffered from liver and stomach troubles. My food did not nourish me, and I became weak and very much emaciated. I took six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla and was cured.—J. M. Foster, Springfield, Mass.

LANCASTER INTELLIGENCER

Black's Aggressive Leadership. The letter of Lieut. Gov. Black, formally accepting the Democratic nomination for governor and stating his views of the issues involved in the campaign, is a ringing, fearless and explicit document. It will fully satisfy the most advanced demand for aggressive leadership in the pending contest; and no just conservative interest has any right to be offended with its tenor.

It fully declares that the nominee of the party for the executive office of the Commonwealth should be concerned about questions relating to the state government and none other, in his candidacy. General Beaver and Chairman Cooper may howl and wail, and they may import Blaine and Logan to do the same most vociferously; the people have not forgotten that Mayor Smith, of Philadelphia, was elected on that issue. The result of that experiment hardly justifies another. What Pennsylvanians are concerned about in this struggle is questions of state policy. Upon then its decision rests.

With respect to these Mr. Black is plain, straightforward and clear; and yet every line of his declaration is in strict accord with his previous record and utterances; and he is, no doubt, right in his inference that he is the nominee of his party chiefly because there was no doubt where he stood on the great questions of land and labor and of constitutional rights and duties which concern the state and all of its people.

While he declares anew with vigor for the enforcement of the constitution by that appropriate legislation which has been denied the people by faithless representatives he proposes to interpose the shield of the constitution before all the subjects of the law, and he proclaims that "behind it there is no place for extortion on the one hand or for confiscation on the other." If the corporations of the state or any other influence take issue with this statesmanlike statement of the question let them boldly avow; and the people of the state will settle the question once and for all.

Upon the labor question the letter is trenchant and comprehensive; it points out specific ills and suggests specific cures. Who will gainsay this part of the candidate's deliverance? He throws down the glove; let him who dares pick it up.

Mr. Black agrees with his party, and is in accord with its platform in declaring against prohibition and for regulation of the liquor traffic. He recognizes "the terrible evils of excessive indulgence," but "would not attempt to eradicate them by a species of legislation which has never failed to increase them, but which inevitably brings on the desperate resistance of the citizen who feels himself deprived of a natural right, and with it a train of illicit crimes and ruinous disorders." In this he will find himself entirely in accord with the great body of conservative people of the state; and if the Republican candidate hopes to profit from these declarations of his competitor he cannot do it by the evasions he has resorted to heretofore on this question.

It is the chief subject for congratulation that the candidate has opinions and the courage to avow them. His declaration is a novelty in Pennsylvania politics. It marks the strong man. It lifts the canvass to the level of his leadership, and where he goes no Democrat need fear to follow.

The anti-saloon movement in the Republican party is a weak strain on which that organization hopes to escape drowning. One esteemed, but often behind-the-scenes contemporary, the New Era, is to be congratulated on the announcement of its purpose to catch a little of the spirit of progressive journalism and add to its other features that of local illustrations. The enterprise of the INTELLIGENCER in this regard for some years past has been rewarded with the high appreciation of its patrons and the steady increase of its number. To be sure, some of our teemed contemporaries presume to compete with the variety, the excellence, the aptness, and the cost of the INTELLIGENCER's ventures in this field. But as an advance upon the "cheap and nasty" notions with which too many newspapers of today disgrace their columns, in connection with the worthless stereotype matter, to be bought by the square foot and fit only for the junk shop, the New Era's project is to be commended.

It is said that there is great danger of a future in the supply of natural gas in West-central Pennsylvania. There has been a general impression that the sources of supply were inexhaustible, but Professor John F. Carl, in a paper in the last geological survey report very clearly establishes that these gas fields are subject to exhaustion. Gas in Pennsylvania is only found in sand-beds of medium thickness and restricted geographical limits. Such beds cannot, in themselves, be inexhaustible. Their productive duration depends entirely upon the drafts made upon them—a simple problem: if one well can exhaust one of the beds in 100 years, how long will it take 100 wells to do it? To make such pools permanent they must be constantly replenished from an unlimited source. This source, it is claimed, is some deep-seated laboratory of nature capable of responding to all demands that can be made upon it. The gas deposits of Pittsburg are evidently large and well stored, and capable, no doubt, of supplying a remarkable number of wells many years. But if so copiously drawn upon—as they are likely to be under the present contagious excitement—they will be given out. Those who are responsible for the large waste in this product ought to be made to realize these patent facts before it is too late.

PERSONAL. NEGRO FRENCH. Dr. Williams speaks wisely for the people when he says: "The race will rise when the individuals of the race rise."

JOHN HUNTER, Philadelphia's tax receiver, has paid into the city treasury $10,000, commission on all tax receipts, under a recent opinion of the city solicitor. He had been keeping it as a special fund and no blame attached to him.

CANDIDATE WOLFE'S scalp is sought for by the friends of the cause of the Temperance party in Luzerne county. It prints a call for another convention, to meet at Harrisburg, September 30, to nominate a governor. It says that Wolfe is doing a loss as any in the Democratic or Republican parties, and requests him to step down and out. The call for the convention is signed by the executive members of the state central committee.
