Among the number were one of two specialists. The medicine they applied was like fire to the scre, causing intense pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what 8.5.8, had done for others similarly afflicted. I procured some at once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was healing up My general health had been bad for two or three years—I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had a severe pain in my breast. After taking six bottles of 8.8.8, my cough left me and I grew stouter than I had been for several years. My cancer has healed over all but a little about the size of a half dime, and it is rapidly disappearing. I would advise everyone there to give 8.8.8, a fair trial. St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 21.-A considerable commotion was observable around the Lin dell hotel yesterday, the guest, fearing that they would be obliged to wait on them The cause of the trouble was a strike of the waiters en masse. Desirous of following the example of their masters in the matters of profiting by the present rush of guests they demanded $3 per day—an advance of 50 cents. This was refused, and the waiters quit work. The manager put the bell boys in the dining room, but they soon went out also. The chambermaids were then ordered into the dining room. This might have been a satisfactory settlement had not the housekeeper objected and demanded that her force be re stored. This was done, and the manager finally had to grant the increase of pay to the striking waiters. The men went to work at once and everything proceeded as smoothly

In a frenzy of pair O'Fallen ran into the street. Several standers tried to quench the fire by wrap ping their coats around but in vain. A stre car came along and the driver had a blanket which he pitched into the mud and water of the street and wrapped the man in its dam folds. This extinguished the fire. A patro wagon was called and the man was taken to the hospital. At last accounts he was still unconscious. Monday night the city was beautifully illuminated and presented a grand spectacle. Shortly after 6 o'clock 100 men began lighting the gas jets and it was 7 o'clock before their task was accomplished. The effect was charming. The line of illumination covers seven miles of streets. The plan of the illumination is as follows: On Fourth street, beginning at the intersection of each curb line. position. The official report of the engage ment was made public, and numerous con gratulatory telegrams were received from tederal, state and municipal officials in the frontier states, all thanking Captain Hanora and Col. Feran for ridding the country of the terrible Coyote. El Coyote is a large, powerful man, with long, flowing beard. It is bening at the intersection of each curb line, leved by leading citizens here that the troop erected, each standard spaced 11 feet apart by 9 feet high to a segment of an arch composed closely resembled the leader, and the terrible of one inch gaspipe, with a rise of 18 inches

Over the middle of the sidewalk are trees placed, having artistically designed arches, 28 feet high, spanning the street at the intersection of Franklin avenue, Washington avenue, Locust street, Olive street, Market and Clark avenues, each having 300 burners fitted with variegated colored globes—the arch at Olive street being a grand design of ponderous size having the Veiled Prophet's comet star and surmounted by a circle with the word "Welcome" and flanked on each side by the initials "V. P." The star, "V. P." and "Welcome alone contain 2,000 gas jets placed close together so as to burn freely and continuously, and to form the star and letters by a flame of gas. The other streets are arranged in a slightly different manner, but are none the less attractive. The total number of burners fitted with variegated globes amount to 36,000, the tified. THE PROLING TO GIVE THEIR THANK ACTIONS TO THE PUBLIC.

However, It is Known That Considerable Les is Moving in the Local Market-Over 600 Cases Sold Here and More Than 2,500 Pounsylvania Sold in New York.

Dealers do not care to make known their transactions in leaf tobacco, and it is therefore difficult to give a report even approximating the true figures. It is known, however, that many sales are being quietly made of both old and new goods. Several buyers from abroad have been here and have no doub secured packings. The only sales reported are 160 cases '85 Havana by Skiles & Frey; 200 or 300 cases of seed leaf by Mr. Longo-necker, of Mount Joy, to Mr. Blumenstein, and 110 cases Havana to the same gentlema by a party whose name is not given The new crop new on the poles is said to be curing satisfactorily, especially the Havana seed. In a few instances we hear that the seed leaf is not doing so well. The weather has been too dry and hot, and the leaf burns and curis up. The cool weather now setting in will no doubt tend to better its condition. The New York Market.

From the Tobacco Journal.

A good deal of tobacco was sold again this week. The quantity does not compare with the one sold the week previous by about one half, but this does not detract from the gen eral activity noticed this week. It is a con tented market we are living in ; the profits are small, but everybody is thankful for small profits even. So many years have rolled by in which leaf dealers figured their profits by the extent of their losses, that nov when some small but real profits come in, i is, if not meat, some bone to gnaw at.

After all, new Pennsylvania has stolen After all, new Fennsylvania has stolen a bitter march on new state, and in the number of sales is superior to the latter. The state seed holders do not seem to view this with any degree of alarm. They want buyers to wait for cold weather to see the Pennsylvania shrink and shrivel up as Pennsylvania was wont to do these many years. It has been frequently pointed out in these columns that a shealills necessity a vists of preventions. necessity exists of preventing an absolute necessity exists of preventing new tobacco, especially Pennsylvanis, from being subjected to a sudden change of warm to cold weather. Sumatrs—After the close of last week's report, several transactions were effected which raised that week's showing to about 800 bales, one of the largest weeks in the his tory of the trade. This opened sluggishly, but at the close the demand became quite lively. About 450 bales were sold, partly old, partly new. Notwithstanding the indifferent character of the new tobacco, it finds buyers, when not too bad and amenable to the 35 cent claim. The difficulty of getting stock that will pass at 35 cents retard business materially; price $1.20 to Havana—There is virtually not the slightest change in the condition of the market; old sells, new is neglected. Prices for old range from $1 to $1.35.

The leaf trade continues very satisfactory particularly the '85 crop, which, so far a sampled, agreeably pleases the holder, and is freely taken off the market for consumption Buyers do not confine themselves to any particular state growth, but seem to feel confident they have use for all kinds; at least their purchases would so indicate, Judging from the past few weeks' business, the future outlook is very hopeful. It is believed the year 1886 will prove advantageous to the leaf dealer. The change has not come any too soon. Sumatra sells in moderate quantities. DECAY OF A LYCEUM.

The J. G. Holland Literary Society Crosses the WHITE ROCK, Sept. 2L-At a called meeting of the members of the J. G. Holland Lit erary society, the trustees were ordered to sell all the property of said society and after paying the debt to distribute the balance equally between the school boards of Little Britain and Colerain. This society was a few years ago in a flourishing condition, and they bought and had nearly paid for the old Methodist church, known as "Crowfoot," hence the name by which they were best known was "Crowfoot" lyceum. But finally all interest seemed to die out, and as the building was fast going to rack it was thought best to sell it and it was so ordered. Hurt By a Horse.

The three Newark pitchers are the best in the Eastern League. Their standing: Knowlton, 983; Smith, 981; Pyle, 975. Pyle has pitched more games than either of the others and the impression among the majority of base ball people is that he is a better pitcher than Smith because he has better staying qualities. His arm has been sore this year for the first time in a long while.

The Manheim base ball enthusiasts say that the score publishedin ye-terday's INTELLIGENCER, which was kept by a Columbia man, is incorrect. They say that the Keystones had eight hits instead of three and the Columbias had three instead of four. They also say that Rhodes struck cut eighteen men and Melcher but ten. There seems to have been a great deal of difference in the work of the scorers and one or the other must possess little knowledge of the game.

The great gathering of the Sovereign grand odge of the Independent Order of Odd Felows, in Boston, Mass., this week will make the founder and originator (Thoma Wildey) of that order, of unusual interest to the reader at the present time. Thomas Wilder was born in London, England, Jan uary 15, 1782, and came to the United State when he was thirty-three years of age. He settled at Baltimore as a coach-spring maker. and there instituted, in the year 1819, the firs lodge of Odd Fellows in America. No much can be said of his personalities, although curiosity, which has been busy with him cannot be said to be in any manner ever tolerably gratified. His station in life was s little elevated and his private life so uneventful as to leave him much in obscurity. eventful as to leave him much in obscurity. He was characterized as a true specimen of the English John Bull, with the bluffness, sincerity and pluck of that nation. He was an initiate of Lodge No. 17 of the Odd Fellows order in London, and rose from the lowest to the highest office. On coming to this country he made the acquaintance of John Welch, also an Englishman, and an Odd Fallow in 1818. The two talked much Odd Fellow, in 1818. The two talked much of old days and times and Wildey concluded to publish a notice for the meeting of such Odd Fellows as might be residing in the city Odd Fellows as might be residing in the city. The meeting took place on the 13th of April, 1819, five gentlemen being present, including Thomas Wildey, who informed them of his intention of establishing the society of Odd Fellowship. The lodge was established and opened on Monday, the 26th of April, 1819, under the title of Washington Lodge, No. 1, of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in the United States. Wildey spent ten years in making addresses and writing letters, many of which are of acknowledged excellence, and was grandsire of the lodge from lence, and was grandsire of the lodge 1825 to 1833. He died at Baltimore O 19th, 1861. The enterprise thus started pros pered slowly but surely, and to-day the order ranks among the greatest in the country. A Total Membership of 517,310.

loston's Chief Executive Extend the City Hospitalities to the Members of the Order. Massachusetta is celebrating a gala week is s principal town of Boston, by the assem bling there of the members of the Sovereign grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. Mayor Hugh O'Brien has ex-tended the hospitalities of the city to them and has arranged numerous festivities to en-liven the occasion of the first general meeting of the order there since 1823. An excursion of the order there since 1823. An excursion has already been enjoyed by the Ood Fellows at the invitation of the mayor, which included among its guests, many of the most prominent city officials. The Sovereign grand lodge will sit in conclave during the coming week and faithfully transact its business, leaving the leisure hours to be given to pleasures bithe and gay. Representatives of the order from every state in the country, and from many European localities, will be aggregated in Boston during the week; Mayor O'Brien is a deservedly popular man, both socially and politically. He is an Irishman by birth and is about fifty-five years of age. He was brought to this country by his both socially and pointeauty. He is a trishman by birth and is about fifty-five years of age. He was brought to this country by his parents, who were in humble circumstances, when only five years of age, and made his way steady by industry to a position of respectability. He was a member of common council, and then of the board of aldermen in Boston, being re-elected to the latter position several times. He was nominated for mayor of the Democratic party and was elected by an overwhelming majority. He was assiduous in the performance of his duties and was popularly called upon for a renomination, which he accepted. Of his election he is quoted as saying "the best elements of both parties and all parties, men who believe that the public office is a public trust to be administered, faithfully and on business principles, are the men who stand behind me.

No Use Playing a Double Game.

If the attempts of the Republicans to pla-cate the Prohibitionists are not successful, it would still seem that the anti-saloon move ment, in spite of its obvious political inter tion, might be considered as a serious busi ness by the saloon element in the Republican party. It would be very disappointing to the Republicans, but wholly natural, if, in their effort to ride on two stools, they should fall to the ground. Too prohibitionist for the saloon Republicans, not prohibitionist enough for the Prohibitionists, they are playing the old double game on the temperance question with rather more than usual recknessness. It may chance to end dissistrously.

at the beginning of the proceedings made the first start in the attempt to defeat the impeachment resolution reported by the investigation committee by offering a resolution that the chamber had no right, legal or constitutional, to impeach the mayor. This brought about two hours of argument, which was indulged in by the lawyers and which was indulged in the first favor.

Defeated in the first and most radical attempt to save the mayor, the next venture looking to his relief was in the shape of resolutions of consure alone. Mr. Maloney, of the First ward, offered the first resolution, which condemned the mayor in three special clauses—the first for retaining and using money which he had no right to receive; the second for his want of personal supervision over the subordinates of the department, which permitted them to collect and retain the city's money, and third, for gross carelessness and neglect of duty.

Mr. Smith, of the Twenty-seventh ward, followed with a resolution which, in brief, censured the mayor for the loose, careless and negligent manner in which he performed many of his duiles, but held that the general New York Democrats, SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 21.-The Demo and negligent manner in which he performed many of his duties, but held that the general belief was that the mayor had no dishonest purpose or corrupt motive in his use of the city's money. Therefore, a resolution of cen-sure, would serve, under all the circumstaneratic state committee met in executive see sion at one o'clock to-day. Reporters were excluded. A letter was presented from Mr. John O'Brien, resigning the chairmanship of the committee. The letter stated that Mr. O'Brien did not wish to hand up the work of the committee by any shortcomings of his own. The communication created quite of stir among the members. The resignation was finally accepted and resolutions were

Mr. Maloney accepted Mr. Smith's resolution as a substitute for that he had presented and the battle began. Mr. Maloney charged that the investigating committee was biased and prejudiced and was met with such vigorous language on the part of President Lawrence that Mr. Maloney was compelled to deny that he had any such intention. Mr. Zane, of the Twentieth ward, read a prepared speech which acquitted the mayor in every respect and held the committee up to ridicule because of its finding. Henry Clay, of the Sixteenth ward, made a strong and powerful argument in favor of the report of the committee and Mr. Smith pleaded for mercy in behalf of the mayor. Mr. Smithers furnished a score of legal reasons why the chief executive should be impeached and Mr. Loeble, of the First ward, asked for an opinion from the city solicitor whether the common council had authority to impeach or to pass a vote of censure. adopted thanking Mr. O'Brien.
