LANCASTER, SEPTEMBER 27, 1886.

An Excellent Candidate. With a unanimity that argues well for scess of the party at the polls, the rats of the city have agreed upon Drachbar as their candidate sembly. From the moment that his was mentioned for this important rust, the fitness of Mr. Drachbar for the was universally conceded, and the set that not one dissenting voice was ed against him at the primaries on Satday night, makes assurance doubly sure hat he is the man for the hour in the local ocratic contest. The selection of members of the legislare this year is of paramount importance or the reason that the great question of the enfercement of the constitution in the ther of monopoly aggressions is going to ome to a head, and it is needful to re men at Harrisburg, tried and true, en arrives the time for the crucial contest. The selection of Lieutenant Governor Black for chief executive of the state now pretty reasonably assured, and overy effort should be bent to the securing of as strong a legislative cohort for him as Never before in the history of parties.

thaps, have the issues that divide them een more clearly defined than in the ent state contest. The Democratic party believes heartily in the protection of labor and in the proper restriction, without recution, of capital. On the prohibition question, it stands on the secure plat-form of its gubernatorial candidate, believing that the "denial of the right of ohibition implies the duty of regulation and though the just power of the state does not extend to the prescription of the drink, diet or dress of the individual man, it does and to the prevention of any abuse of his private right affecting his neighbor or society at large; and I favor the enactment of any laws, however stringent. those now in existence. Conscious of the terrible evils of excessive indulgence, we do not attempt to eradicate them by a species of legislation which has never falled to increase them, but which inevitably brings on the desperate resistance of the en, who feels himself deprived or a natural right, and with it a train of illiest crimes and ruinous disorders."

On this broad platform the Democratic candidate stands. He is a man of the people, whose hands have become hardened by the scars of honorable toil. An intelligent working man, he will fitly represent at Harrisburg the large industrial interests of the city of his birth.

Dear Beaver, Don't Write.

General Beaver opened his campaign in Pittsburg on Saturday night. He read from manuscript a speech that would take up more than a dozen columns of the In-TELLIGENCER to reproduce. As was to be expected, it is full of "sound and fury, signifying nothing." Its elaborate discussion of the tariff will cause a smile among those who know that the next governor of Pennsylvania will have as much to do with the tariff as caped Geronimo. He mildly says that labor and capital ought to be friendly, which all will admit; but we see no defense of the iniquitous and unlawful "store order system practised in Beaver's Bellefonte nail works. The laboring men of Pennsylvania know that this does not admit of explana-

On the liquor question he says nothing new, but blindly swallows the party platform medicine on the subject. He does not think the question of anti-discrimination is a state issue. He will find out in November that the voters of Pennsylvania differ with him.

It is, on the whole, a turgid, tiresome paper made up of excuses for his weak can-didacy. The voter who wades through it will come to the conclusion that it would be a wise friend of Beaver who would add to Quay's old suggestion, "Dear Beaver, don't talk," the now needful warning "Dear Beaver, don't write."

Too Beautiful to be True. From Dakota comes the curious story that the Sioux have resolved to get down to work. The lazy Indian of the northrn frontier is about to develop unknown mergy in the organization of a system of Somess, and under the advice and counsel of the old men, the young braves will do all be work on foot.

This tale is entirely too beautiful for ath. How sublime is the spectacle of the ers engaged in the destruction of Cusa's command, and who still preside over councils where all the Indian deviltry cocted, turning the force of their f-like minds to the consideration of so aborate a policy of industrial developent! It is further said that the athletic a traveler as the unrivaled Apache of the Southwest. It is barely possible that a guide and messenger service has been or ganized.

A Sick Lion.

If riots, famines and disorder were half as plentiful in any unconquered part of India, Africa, or South America as they have been for centuries in Ireland, England would long ago have made the fact a pretext for annexation on the plea of humanity and benevolence.

If a riot or famine is the penalty of misgovernment in any of the Turkish provinces, the British press is full of rabid denunciation of the oppression of the infidel Turk. If stories of sufferings in Siberia are brought to the notice of the public, Russia is denounced in terms of righteous wrath that would lead one to suppose that the writers felt the British nation to be the one great instrument under heaven for the succor of suffering bamanity and the spread of civilization.

The British lion resembles a beast of the variety brought to the town some years ago by a ten-cent circus. From the front his aspect was grand and imposing, with massive head and heavy tangled mane, fierce whiskers and formidable jaws; but when he turned, the illusion was dispelled and admiration gave way to pity. The gaunt thin body, the languid droop of the once powerful tail, the swaying step and bare patches on the skin, all showed that the poor beast was sick. This is the aspect of the British lion, for with the Irish question is linked the land question disestablishment, and many other things dreadful to the mind of English aristocracy.

Yet if any whisper of intervention should be ventured by any other power, in the name of humanity and benevolence, how fierce would be the anger of the lion at the echo of his own roarings!

BEAVER is luminous on the tariff, but dark on "store orders." Why?

GENERAL LOGAN and General Beaver indulged in a grand verbal war dance on Saturday night. It was a very entertaining performance, especially to their political ene-mies, who rejoice in the lack of intellectual vigor the two great chiefs displayed, and are delighted to find that no argument was advanced that has any connection with the questions now before the people. They made a vast noise about the tariff, which is suggestive of the Chinese method of waging war with the beating of tom-toms to scare the enemy. Tariff has nothing to do with state government and the people don't scare worth a cent. Great care and trouble was taken to define the mysterious position of the Republican party on the liquor question : the labor question was lightly touched upon by reference to the platform, but the past record of the party has so damaged the strength of any platform that they may build that no one cares to place much reliance on the fulfill ment of any promises made by their platforms or speakers. The chiefs seem to ap-preciate this and vary their chesinut promises with whoops about the tariff as they dance about their dying council fire.

ALL Democrats rejoice at the excellent selection that has been made for the assembly nomination.

THE naval architects, Lundborg and Beautoy, have spent a great deal of money in the building of experimental models of vessels, and as a result of their experiment have reached surprising conclusions. They claim that a submerged body can be propelled more easily than one that floats on the surface and as an illustration point to the cutter Galatea which displaces 50 per cent more water man the Mayflower, carries 25 per cent. less canvas, and yet holds a good race with that steep when well handled. They say that a fish has to use more force when swimming with its back out of water than when wholly below the surface. But the Galatea is so unstable and the wind that its sails do not receive as much force as those of a sloop like the Mayflower. The sloop, they say, has a cross section like the letter U. The cutter has a cross section like the letter V. The model which they would build is like the letter N, with the water line at the smallest part of the letter. The building of a yacht on this model for next year's races, is being seriously considered, and if successful there will be a revolution in naval architecture.

____ THE Democratic and Republican chairmen of Dauphin county and Harristory have mutually agreed not to pay any money for voters' taxes, tiood!

Titti famous artesian well of Belle Plain, Iowa, which was said to have burst out with tremendous force on the day of the earthquake, turns out to be nothing very marvelous after all. Instead of being several hundred feet in height the jet of water was about waist high when uncontrolled and shoulder high when a pipe was forced in to control it The volume of water makes the sight impres sive, but the flow has fallen of rapidly from 9,000,000 to 5,000,000 gallous a day, and othe wells in the neighborhood have ceased to flow; showing that the source is being drained. It is estimated that the waterbearing sand that supplies it is not greater than four hundred acres in extent. It broke loose three days before the earthquake because of the attempt of the drufers to make use of the force of the water to enlarge the bore of the well.

EVEN Democratic school boys know that October 2 is the last day on which a voting tax may be paid.

Our esteemed contemporary, the N_{vx} Ern, is publishing as a social the history of the battle of Gettysburg, with what purports to be illustrations of the text. This "history is said to be copyrighted by "William Bala ton Balch, all rights reserved." installment of it was rendered interesting by a graphic account of the charge of the Louisiana Tigers on Cemetery Hill and their repulse by the battery commanded by Col. R. Bruce Ricketts, now the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

Interesting and graphic as this narrative is and true to the facis, we regret to say that our esteemed local contemporary has again, been imposed upon in the advertisement that it is copyrighted and "all rights reserved" by William Ralston Baich. If the New Erg will turn to the very beautiful book of blog-raphies issued by the Democratic state commillee, some days before the Balch history appeared, it with lind in the sketch of Hicketts' appearing there, its entire account of this charge of the Tigers and their repulse by Ricketts, verbatim et literatim, credited to John M. Butler's history of the battle.

From that work Balch seems to have taken it bodily, without credit or quotation marks. The only right the New Era's author seems to "reserve" is the right to steal other's host thoughts and, not even like gypsies with stolen children, change their dress.

Moreover, if the New Era will compare the cut which it prints as a portrait of Ricketts with the accurate likeness of that galiant Democratic soldier, published in Saturday's poung Sioux are now in training for their part in the enterprise, which item provokes samile at the placid innocence of the inventor of it.

Not long ago these same savages held their annual sun dance, undergoing the most painful of self-inflicted tortures as a proof of their endurance; and the life of the sioux from beginning to end is such as to make him almost as enduring and tireless.

Democratic soldier, published in Saturday's INTELLIGENCER, and made from a photograph of the last thirty days, it will again see how its confidence has been abused. The New Era's picture has seen long service as the purported likeness of many different soldiers in various wars; and its publication for little sufferer immediately—depend upon 15; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will release the bowis, and give rest to the facther, and reite and health to the callet, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and leasts, and is the prescription of one of the state. Sold everywhere. Execute the safe and health to the callet. Sold everywhere.
