HENRY GEORGE.

The Candidate of the Labor Party For Mayor

Henry George has been nominated for mayor of New York by the Labor party, and the contest is designed to be a particularly interesting one. Mr. George, whose works on Progress and poverty" or at least its theory of the nationalization of land, is familiar to everyone who follows economic discussions, everyone who follows economic discussions, counts on a desperate struggle, but he has full faith in his party, which he believes will soon control a majority of the votes cast in the city of New York.

At a meeting held in Irving hall, New York, some time back, where Mr. George addressed an audience of four thousand people, and many were turned away, he was received with great applause. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Central Labor Union. In his address Mr. George said that in England six hundred years ago laborers worked but eight hours a day and were far better off then than their fellows are now. The theory of Mr. George is that the soil belongs to the people irrespective of the rights of those who happen to possess it as individuals. longs to the people irrespective of the rights of those who happen to possess it as individuals. During a recent visit to England Mr. George was received with great enthusiasm and his lectures were, at first, well attended, but the interest in him and his peculiar views soon died out. As far as the labor question goes Mr. George is mainly in the right, but he does not voice the sentiments of the American people when he advocates the distribution of property. In concluding his address tion of property. In concluding his address at Irving hall, Mr. George said: The work-ingman labored that he might not starve. The speaker believed that the world would be richer if man worked less. One hour's work would be enough. If that seemed prepos-terous, he asked his hearers to think of the agencies waiting on man's intelligence. The intelligence that produced a telegraph could produce a social condition in which no one would be overworked and no one would be poor. He also said that the railroads should be run by the authorities and workmen should ride iree. "Stand together, but ask yourselves the causes of the things of which you complain and determine what to do to remove them. Once make sure your right and then raise the cry of the French Re-public—'audacity! audacity!!'"

-OF-

The following is from the report of the judges on Wines at the Lancaster County Agricultural Association Fair:

We desire to make special mention of H. E. Slaymaker's large and elegant exhibit of Domostic Wines, produced by the Piensant Valley Wine Company, of Rhelms, Steuben county, New York. Their Special dreat Western Extra Dry and Great Western Extra Dry Champagnes, Port, Claret, Dry and Sweet Catawba Wines, Which we consider, compare favorably with Imported Wines.
