From the Germantown Telegraph. Cobs are good for smoking meat, as they give a good flavor. Keeping a mosil fire a longer time is better than quick smoking, as too much heat gives the meat a strong taste and injures its sweetness. It is worthy of note that sumach is the most valuable tanning plant known. Large quantities were gathered in Virginia during the past mession, and yielded handsome re-turns for the labor expended. Keeping the animals quiet promotes the storage of int, but health and the quality of the meat is best obtained when they are al-lowed to take exercise daily. If they cannot have the privilege of exercising they should at least be allowed in the open air daily. A remarkable improvement in the appear-snee and flavor of poultry which have been fed in coops or pens two before killing has been noticed by careful raisers. Clean corn and pure water have been found to be the only requisites for rapid and healthful fatten-ing.

A Western lady states that, as her experi-ence as a poultry raiser, that one bushel of corn, or its equivalent in corn mixed with other foods, will produce fourteen pounds of poultry in the form of growing cockerels. At the same time it must be borne in mind that something in addition to corn must be used as food. Contine a fowi in a yard with no other food than corn, and, as all the wants no other food than corn, and, as all the want of the fowl system would not be supplied, it would soon die of starvation in the midst of plenty. Kill your roosters for various reasons.

First, you are not so apt to have little chicks running about in the fall. Second, the old roosters are no longer needed, as next season you should get your young roosters from an-other flock, and the old ones you have are just eating teed for no use at all, and are just in the way of the other fowls. Last, but not least by any means, your eggs packed for winter market will keep much better if no roosters are allowed to run with the hens Clear out your old ones and try the experi

Keeping Winter Vegetables

It is too late to do some things for our winter supply of vegetables, yet as the proper preparations began in the spring we may e some hints of value.

Onions must be well ripened, secured without much frost, and stored in a dry cool place; shallow boxes like old orange boxes place; shallow boxes like old orange boxes, do well in a cool cellar. Squashes well ripsned, gathered before severe frost and stored in a chamber near a fire, so as to be kept warm and dry, will keep till midwinter or later. Hoets, late sown, so as not to get too large, and pulled before much frost, to check growth and before the warm autumn rains have started the new growth, indicated by numerous little rootlets—if topped not too closely and stored in a cool cellar in barrels, with a few potatees on top to prevent shrivel-ling, will keep fit for use all winter. Carrots need not be harvested quite as early, and will keep in the same way. Parsnips may be left in the ground all win-ter, to be dug as soon as the ground thaws, early, and will keep in the same way. Parsnips may be left in the ground all win-ter, to be dug as soon as the ground thaws, but this gives but a short season of use. Fig a part before the ground freezes and store in barrels. They are not injured by shrivelling, and by January will be ht for use. The qual-ity improves in the cellar as much as in the ground, and next to the potsto it is the most generally approved winter vegetable : plain bolled, mashed, or fried, it is always tooth-some and healthful. Turnips.—Common field turnips must be pulled before much frost, topped closely, and stored in barrels as beets. Though improved for immediate use by frosts their keeping qualities are injured and they speedily be-come soft and " pithy." The rock turnip, whith French and the yellow sweet turnip, all of the rutabaga family, will bear quite hard freezing without injury. Cabbages for winter use should be pulled before the heads are touched by the hard frost and planted in earth in a damp celiar. ## MEDICAL. BURGER & BUTTON. A YER'S SARSAPARILLA. A CREAKING HINGE Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body, are stiffened and inflamed by Rheomatism, they cannot be moved without consting the most excrueinting pains. Ayoff Sarsaparlia, by its action on the black, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good Sarasparilla, by its action on the birds, related this condition, and restores the joints to good working order. Ayor's Rarssparills has effected, in our city, many most fermarkable curve, a number of which havind the efforts of the most experi-enced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the parmes of many individuals who have been curved by taking this medicine. In my own case it has certainly worked wonders, re-lieving me of
