COLUMBIA'S PROSPERITY.

ONE HUNDRED BUILDINGS ERECTED THIS YEAR.

Sixty-Three Dwelling Houses and Some Public Buildings.—Installation of Officers. The Burning of a Shed.—A Horse Gets Two Men Into Trouble.

Regular Correspondence of INTELLIGENCER.

COLUMBIA, Oct. 7.—The contractors and builders of Columbia have enjoyed a very brisk season from the time the building season commenced until the present time. On almost every street in town can be seen newly erected buildings, and a number are now in course of erection. During the present year ninety-three dwelling houses, two church buildings, for the St. Paul's P. E. and the United Brethren congregations, the mill for the Columbia Iron company, and the very handsome store room for Messrs. Geo. W. and B. F. Haldeman. This is an excellent sign of the prosperity of Columbia

Installation of Officers.

D. D. G. M. E. J. Erisman, of Lancaster, was present at the meeting of Orion Lodge, No. 876, of Odd Fellows, last night and installed the following officers for the ensuing term: Noble grand, Wm. E. Madden; vice grand, Jas. A. Allison; assistant secretary, S. W. Gulies.

Burning of a Shed.

Joshua Sourbeer, living on the farm north of Columbia, was engaged in boiling apple butter in a summer shed yesterday afternoon, when the shed caught fire. After considerable difficulty the fire was extinguished, after damaging the shed to the amount of $50.

Held for Court.

Lincoln and Samuel Yelletts, residents of Springville, had a hearing yesterday afternoon at the office of Squire Frank, on the charge of getting a horse from Samuel Weaver, living in the country, without paying for it, but giving the owner a promissory note. The matter will be settled by a trial at court. During the trial the horse was taken from the yard at Wagner's hotel by the first owner and the Yelletts were compelled to walk to their home.

Town Notes.

The Shawnee Fire company will hold their regular monthly meeting to-night.

Jacob F. Bender, contractor for the erection of the fire escapes at the opera house, has completed the work. The escapes are very substantially built, but it is a question if the people in the opera house will use them if occasion requires.

On Friday and Saturday the London Dime circus will be in town and exhibit on the base ball grounds.

Over two hundred people left town this morning for York, where they will attend the county fair.

Yesterday afternoon, Charles Smith, working at the stone quarries was attacked with a hemorrhage and had to be conveyed to his home on Manor street. Dr. Markel rendered the necessary attention to the man.

The safe in the express office of the Reading & Columbia railroad, which robbers attempted to blow open on last Friday night, has been sent away for repairs.

The owner of the small steamboat now on the river is trying to dispose of it by chancing. The chancing will take place on October 17.

The repairmen of the Pennsylvania railroad are busily at work in fixing up the tracks in the Columbia yards for the annual inspection, which will take place shortly.

On Friday evening the members of the Prohibition club of town will hold a meeting.

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

How a Young Lady's Presence of Mind Saved Her From a Violent Death.

George S. Scott, the New York capitalist, is one of the most popular men in Wall street. Everybody knows him; everybody likes him. Yesterday, though, his hand was shaken with even unusual earnestness by friend after friend who called at his office. And there was a good cause, too, for the congratulations that were showered upon him.

Mr. Scott has a country home down at Seabright, and one of the attractions of that home are two pretty daughters. Miss Lulu Scott, who is eighteen years old, is a most accomplished and daring equestrienne. On Saturday, accompanied by two gentlemen friends, she mounted one of her favorite horses, a thoroughbred cross-country hunter and set out for a pleasant ride down the Oceanic road. The little party were going along pleasantly when suddenly just around a bend in the road appeared two Jersey buggies, each with a man and a whip in great activity. Jersey was having a race. Down the road at the maddest sort of a pace came the wagons pell mell. A collision seemed inevitable for Miss Scott and her friends on horseback, so recklessly came the plunging buggies.

The young lady turned her Lexington colt's head to the side, but the man in the buggy on her side of the road, suddenly discovering what was ahead, lost all his presence of mind and wheeled with a rush to the left, aiming fairly at the imperilled young woman. Too late he gave another wrench at his reins and brought his excited animal sharpjy to the right, but there was no escape now, and Miss Lulu's friends sat transfixed on their steeds too far distant to be of any service, and waited through moments that seemed hours for the sequel of the reckless racing. Down suddenly crouched the intelligent hunter at a word of command from the brave girl on his back—crouched to make a desperate leap to carry, if he might, his burden over the danger that threatened, to safety. While they waited breathlessly, Miss Lulu's friends had no doubt of what the result would be to the rider, if but the Lexington's powers were sufficient to enable him to clear the obstacle before him; for in all this country round there are few young ladies who can compare with Lulu Scott on horseback. She rides across country, reckless of ditches, careless of fences, regardless of hedges, daring everything—a rider as brave as she is graceful.

But just then the buggy horse turned with a leap further aside even as Miss Scott's hunter sprang upward and forward. There was a sad collision. The buggy horse was hit fairly on the head by the hunter and fell instantly dead; his neck broken. Miss Scott's horse, impeded by this collision, strained too much, his back broke, a blood vessel at his heart broke—he, too, sank dead on the moment.

And Miss Scott? Through the air she was shot headlong squarely at the front of the still moving buggy. She fell upon the dashboard; it smashed into bits beneath the weight of her body. Then she fell below on the whiffletree of the wagon and at the feet of the horse lying there prone and dead. Had that animal been but maimed, the end would have been her death sure; as it was not a scratch, not a bruise did she suffer. There seemed a miracle in it.

Will Break Stones.

Michael Kelly is the name of a well known character who has figured in our police courts for the past ten years. He ostensibly peddles notions for a living, but he does not sell enough goods in a year to keep him in tobacco a week. Heretofore he has managed to spend a greater portion of his time in jail, where there was no work for him. This morning the mayor made a new departure as to Michael, and as he was an able-bodied man, he was sent to the workhouse, where he will earn his board for the next thirty days breaking stones.

Railroad Officer Roy's Mishap

Railroad Officer Roy met with a mishap on Tuesday evening, by which he will be disabled for some days. While descending the cellar steps at his home, No. 115 South Duke street, he made a misstep and severely sprained his ankle. Dr. L. A. Warren rendered the necessary surgical aid.

School Board Meeting.

The October meeting of the Lancaster city school board will be held this evening at 7 o'clock. Fire escapes for the school buildings; providing accommodations for the children of the northwestern section of the city and other matters of interest will be discussed.

Prosecutions Withdrawn.

W. W. Nissley, of Strasburg, who entered suit on Monday before Alderman Barr against Jacob Taylor and Jacob Kaebler for maliciously breaking the lock of his hotel door and assaulting him, withdrew the suits today. The defendants paid the costs.

Maennerchor Rink.

Hiram Croome, the vocalist, will entertain the patrons of the Maennerchor rink on Saturday evening by some fine vocal solos.

Was It Heart Disease?

H. F. Coon, a dealer in wall paper in York, died suddenly Wednesday evening, as is supposed, from heart disease. In the early part of the evening he was in a saloon and got into an altercation with Francis Selak, who struck him. The coroner will investigate the facts to ascertain whether the injuries from his assailant had to do with his death.

Catholic Priests at York.

Among the Catholic clergymen present at the close of the forty-hours' devotion at St. Mary's church at York, on Tuesday evening were Fathers Pieper, of Columbia, Kaul, of this city, Breckel, of New Freedom, and Christ, of Lebanon.

A Meeting to Consolidate.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Cornwall railroad company and the Cornwall & Mt. Hope railroad company is called for Tuesday, October 26, to consider the consolidation of these two roads. The meeting will held at the offices of the companies in Lebanon.

A Philosophic Editor.

Centreview, a little village in Missouri, has a publication called the Centreview Mugwump, "edited by a philosopher," who calmly announces this as his motto: "We will say what we please and publish at our leisure."

The Busy Bees.

Thousands of bees swarmed at Clarke's tea store, West King street, this afternoon. They came to rob Sam of his supply of honey now on exhibition in front of his store.

ADELAIDE MURDOCH, of Philadelphia, sister of James E. Murdoch, the well known tragedian, will lecture in the court house at an early date for the benefit of the worthy poor of Lancaster. Subject, "The Present Day."

Amusements.

James Owen O'Connor, the Tragedian.—On Friday and Saturday evenings this talented actor will appear in the opera house on Friday in "Richelieu," and on Saturday in "Othello" supported by his excellent company of fifteen artist of recognized ability. Mr. O'Connor, after an extended tour of Europe, now comes as a full fledged star tragedian, and if the many managerial and newspaper encomiums are ever proofs of one's ability, he possesses that ability to the greatest extent. Nature endowed O'Connor with many gifts; culture has developed and perfected them. As a tragedian, O'Connor has but few equals.

Talmage Coming.—This clerical orator who has delighted large audiences at the Brooklyn Tabernacle and throughout the country will appear in Fulton opera house on next Thursday night to discuss the entertaining topic "The Bright Side of Things."

Mantell To-Night.—Of the play "Tangled Lives" to be presented by R. B. Mantell in Fulton opera house to-night, the Boston Advertiser says: "Mr. Mantell led, of course, with his assumption of Raymond Gorth the hero. He acted carefully and zealously, and in his quiet passages showed that exquisite refinement and charm, that smooth depth and restrained earnestness which makes his performance in its best moments indescribably charming."
