THE BRICKERVILLE CHURCH.

A PANGUS CLERICAL LAW SUIT THAT IS FINALLY ENDED.

A Brief Account of the Litigation Begun Ten Years Ago-The Full Opinion of the Supreme Court Deciding Finally in Favor of the Old Synod Party.

The first proceedings in the Brickerville church case were begun in 1875, by a suit in equity, brought by W. I. Cutter, pastor, Levi Dreich, Samuel Elser, Rufus Kline, and others, as church officers of the new synod party, against Edward K. Seibert and others, church officers, and of the old synod party, to determine the right to the church. It was decided in favor of the old aynod party in 1878. The new synod party refusing to give ion of the church property, in June possession of the church property, in June 1878, the offiers of the old synod party brought this suit in ejectment against Rev. M. Fernster and others, then holding possession for the new synod party.

This case was tried four times in the court below and twice taken to the supreme court. At the first trial the jury failed to agree. At the second trial, after the jury was out for a considerable time, one of them took sick and they were discharged without a verdict. At they were discharged without a verdict. At the third trial there was a verdict for the plaintiffs, the old synod party.

The defendants took the case to the supreme court, where it was reversed and sent back for a fourth trial. This was had September, 1884, resulting in favor of theold synod party The new synod party then took the case for a second time to the supreme court—which was argued in Philadelphia last May—and the court delivered their opinion at their session in Pittsburg, October 4, 1886, affirming the court below, so that the controversy is at last finally settled in favor of the old synod party.

D. G. Eshieman and S. P. Eby, esqs., appeared for the old synod party, and S. H. Reynolds and J. L. Steinmetz for the new synod party.

We give the opinion of the supreme court

OPINION OF THE SUPREME COURT. M. Fernstler, Jonas Herr and Hannah Buchter vs. Edward Seibert et al. Error to the court of common pleas of Lancaster county. Argued May 18, 1886. Filed Oct. 4, 1886.

On the former trial of this case in the court below, the learned judge of that court gave binding instruction to the jury to find for the plaintiffs, and this on the ground of the conclusiveness of the decree previously made upon a bill brought by the Rev. W. I. Cutter and others, styling themselves pastor, elders, trustees and deacons of the Evangelical Lutheran congregation of Brickerville, Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, against Edward K. Seibert, Samuel Miller and others, who in their answer claimed to be the only proper and lawful trustees, elders and deacons of the said congregation, hence, its legal representatives, and as such entitled to the exclusive use and control of its property. On a writ of error taken to the judgment thus reason for this disposition of the case, as appears from the opinion, was that, conceding the conclusiveness of the decree as aforesaid, made on the 15th of April 1878, yet as this decree was several months prior to the election of the Rev. Mr. Fernstler, and as there was a proposition to prove that he was regularly called by the congregation, and duly installed as its pastor; the proof thus proposed ought to have been received and submitted. The material subject of dispute was thus narrowed down to the single question of the election of the Rev. Mr. Fernstier, by the Evangelical Lutheran congregation of Brickerville. It s true, a doubt was therein expressed as to from the obscure and imperfect manner in which the case was then presented to us. Had it then appeared as it now does, that Mr. Fernstler was not elected by the congresat. Fernauer was not elected by the congregation; that he was put into the possession of the parsonage by persons who were not officers of the church; in other words, that he was a mere intruder, and that the question was one purely of the right of the congregation to have and use its own property, we deed, be but a sorry compliment to the intel-ligence of this court to allege that it had been induced to regard a purely ejectment bill as cognizable in equity, or to hold that any other than the ordinary common law forms of action must be adopted by a charity to remain the control of the contr of action must be adopted by a charity to remedy a trespass upon intrusion into its property. It is idle to say that this congregation has no such power because not vested with the legal title to the property. It was so vested by the deed of the proprietaries, dated May loth, 1744, and by the subsequent deed of Kline, Hoff, and others, to the trustees of the congregation, dated the 23th of February of the same year. As the act of 1731, gave to religious societies capacity to take and hold land, it has been held that a conveyance to trustees for the use of such a society, executes a legal estate in the congregation itself; Brendel vs. the German Reformed congregation, 9 Ca. 425; Griffitts vs. 5 Har. 96. It is, however, an extraordinary position congregation, 9 Ca. 425; Griffitts va. 5 Har. 96. It is, however, an extraordinary position to assume that only the holder of the legal title can maintain ejectment, when the only question directly involved in such action is the right of possession. As early as the case of Kennedy vs. Fury, 1 Dai. 72 it was held that the cestul que trust could bring this action in his own name. So, every lawyer knows that when the beneficiary is entitled to the possession of the property he may maintain ejectment even as against the trustee. The proposition is, therefore, of a very crude character which holds that the Bricker-ville congregation, by its trustees, cannot recover the possession of its property by the usual common law remedy, but must resort to a bill in equity against every trespasser or intruder who may choose to enter upon that property. Why not say at once that it has no remedy whatever; for if any thing is well cetablished it is that equity has no juriswell established it is that equity has no juris-diction of a purely ejectment bill, and so as to a mere trespess. Admitting that every question involved in the bill were to be de-diction of a purely ejectment bill, and so as to a mere trespass. Admitting that every question involved in the bill were to be determined in this case, yet as the main matter for settlement is the right of possession, we cannot see why ejectment would not lie. It was certainly so held in the Presbyterian congregation vs. Johnson, I. W. & S. 9; the chief justice, Gibson saying: the jury had been inaccurately instructed that this action could not be maintained by the congregation, and this though it had but an equitable title. The assertion, however, is that the case cited is not an authority in point because the congregation was a corporation, whilst the society involved in the present action is unincorporated. But the difference is effectively nothing, for the one is as much the peculiar subject of equity jurisdiction as the other. What remains has been fully disposed of by the decree of the 13th of April, 1878, and the verdict in this case. The very able report of the learned master makes a full disposition of the main point in controversy, and conclusively shows that upon no ground whatever can those by whom the Rev. Mr. Fernstler was put into the possession of the parsonage be regarded as representing the Lutheran congregation of Brickerville. Finding themselves in the minority in the congregational meeting of the 14th of February, 1876, they withdrew therefrom, and thenceforth maintained a separate organization. It is true that Mr. Fernstler was called by the votes, not only of a majority of the meeting which elected him as its pastor, but also without dissent; it was, however, a meeting exclusively of the seconders with which the old congregation had nothing to do, and with which it had, in fact, no right to interfere. This was the question submitted to the jury, and so fully and fairly submitted as to preclude exception; and it being so submitted the verdict has settled beyond controversy, that the defendant was not elected by the lawful congregation had full and lawful power to determine its synodical r rights of the congregation from which they had withdrawn. Nor can we withhold our commendation of the Christian spirit of forbearance exercised by the officers of the Brickerville church toward their seceding brethren. They avoided, as far as they could, all occasions of offence; they permitted them to use the church building for their meetings, and only moved in the assertion of their own rights when they were compelled so to do by an unlawful seizure of their property. Thus, however, the case may be regarded, the defendants have no just cause of complaint, and certainly not as against the court below, for it fairly submitted to the jury every fact that could properly be so submitted, and in

The Academy of Music, Philadelphia, Crowded With Enthusiastic Followers of Jefferson,

Branding the " Press " Falsehood. The Democrats of Philadelphia had a rousing ratification meeting in the Academy of Music on Saturday night. It was very largely attended and very enthusiastic. Attorney General Lewis C. Cassidy presided and made a speech counseling harmony and energy in the campaign. Speeches were also made by R. Milton Speer, of Huntington ; Chairman Hensel, Robert E. Monaghan of West Chester: James H. Hopkins, of son and Walter George Smith. Mr. Cassidy was warmly greeted and made an eloquent plea for the enforcement of the constitution, the people's charter, which had been fought for by the present administration. Concluding he said: "There is something more than this meeting, this music or these cheers needed to win There is not a man among you, nan either, but can help to bring a victory. There is not a man among you, nor a woman either, but can help to bring out the Democratic vote. You must bring out that vote if you hope to win, You have 80,000 Democratic votes in this town, and if you poil them there is no power on earth that can beat you. If your ticket is beaten it will be because you allowed it to be beaten, It is only the Democrats who stay at home that can beat the ticket. Why should you stay at home? A lot of people say: 'I'm not going to vote because my uncle or my aunt did not get a place.' Shall it be said that office-holding is the test of Democratic principles? For twenty five years the Demo-cratic party fought for its principles without holding office. Out of office for twenty five years, it is my opinion that the proper men fill all the places can be found in one year. is it to be said that with only so many offices to give out that the disappointed ones are going to stay at home and not vote? I have ust as much to complain of as anybody. I have not an office at my disposal, nor is there anybody holding office in my name.

"And yet I am not going to turn tail and desert the flag. Those that I am connected with believe that Democratic principles mean with believe that bemocratic principles mean more than place. I ask you in the name of Jackson and Jefferson, at this the first trial under a Democratic administration, to go to the polls, stay there all day, see that every yote is brought out and that it is counted. You will be proud someday to be able to say that you stood by the constitution, and by your work enabled the Democratic ticket to carry Pennsylvania. It is possible, nay probable, that you will carry the state. The dissatisfied Republicans and Independents will be there an election day, but what avail will it be if you do not get out your votes? The only way to win is to go from house to house and bring out every Demo-cratic voter and see that he votes the whole Democratic ticket. If you neglect it the enemy, who are always on the alert, will steal this

Mr. Hensel, by request of Secretary Sten-ger, explained the absence of that gentieman as due to illness. He than read a strong letter from Hon. Charles R. Buckalew, in which that gentleman said:

"It is a favorite declaration of side parties and factions that our great parties are not divided upon important questions of principle and policy; that the recurring struggles between them are mere struggles for the possession of power and office. By whomsoever asserted or accepted, this is a gross error, and it is an error to be strongly denied and repelled. We hold, and have always held, that overaction by government is an evil to be guarded against with constant ever and vigilance, while our opponents in the great contests of the past have inclined to enlarged government action and to free construction of constitutional power in order to secure it. It is a doctrine essential to the success of free institutions and to the weifare of nations, but institutions and to the weifare of nations, but it requires constant support against powerful

After the applause which greeted the name of the writer had subsided, Mr. Hensel said: "I have another and less pleasant duty to "I have another and less pleasant duty to perform. A Gala Day for the United Brothron in Mi Joy-Description of the Remodelled Building-The Dedicatory Services. Over Half the Debt Lifted.

pecial Correspondence of the INTELLIGENCER. MOUNT JOY, Pa., Oct. 11.—Rev. J. T. Schaffer, pastor of the U. B. church in this place, was happy yesterday and he had reason to be, owing to the fact that his house of wor ship which has lately been remodelled and im proved was dedicated to the services of God. The original building, erected in 1877, is two stories in height; the regular Sunday services are held in the up stairs room while the basement is used for holding the Sunday school and prayer meeting services. The window frames were large and long, giving it a very antiquated look. For more than a year the membership had in contemplation the remodeling of this house of worship but not until the middle of August last did they come to the conclusion that the improvements should be made. Workmen were put to work and the north end was torn out and a recess running from near the cove of the roof to the foundation has taken the place of the old straight wall on the second floor. Two small windows one on the east of the altar on the west side of the recess now let in ship which has lately been remodelled and im altar on the west side of the recess now let in the bright sunlight, and the minister can now have the sunshine in all the colors of the rainbow upon him as he stands at his desk expounding the great truths of Holy Writ. The window lights are all of stained glass as also are all the other lights, those in the upper room being of the gothic pattern.

Between the north wall and the wall of the restrum is a flight of stairs running to the out passing through the congregation, there out passing through the congregation, there being two doors leading from the restrum to the stairway. The room has been repapered with fine white paper stamped with gold. A broad colored border is used at the ceiling while from the lower end of the window sashes dark paper with a dark border is used to take the place of wainecoating, the ceiling is also covered with white paper and gold flowers; corner pieces with 3 shades of paper are used.

The seats have been repainted, the floor trum; two fine plated corrugated glass retrum; two fine plated corrugated glass re-flectors with 14 jets each are suspended from the ceiling. The reflectors are black, trimmed with old gold. The jets on arms covered with glass shades have been put on each side of the recess. As a whole the church looks as clean and bright as a new pin and reflects credit upon those who did the work.

Promptly at 10 a. m., yesterday, Rev. J. T. Schoffer, the pastor in charge, stepped to the iront of the rostrum and after a few common-place remarks, announced the following

At 7 p. m. there was music by the choir: prayer by Rev. Funk, and a hymn by the congregation.

The text from which the bishop took his sermon is found in St. John 21st, chap. 17 verse. He delivered an able sermon at the close of which he made an other appeal for funds and succeeded in securing another $100 in addition to the $800 received in the morning, making a grand total of $900, leaving a debt of $1,000 still unpaid. Circumstances point to its being paid in the near future.

The dedicatory services being the next thing in order the pastor asked the church vestry if they were willing to assume the responsibility of the debt; they answering in the affirmative the dedication was proceeded with and consisted in the singing of the nymn "Nearer My God to Thee" followed by an address of the bishop in which he invoked the blessing of the Almighty God on the vestry and on the house of worship.

After counselling the vestry and members of the church to hold fast to the faith once delivered to the saints, the bishop and the congregation repeated the Lord's prayer in concert.

Rev. Schoffer made his usual announce-ment and the event of the day was at an

Michael F. Gorman is in a critical condition sult of a row, on Sunday morning between 12 and 1 o'clock. It appears that there was sociable at Excelsior hall, which Gorman and a young man named Matthias Henkel at Both were somewhat under the nfluence of liquor and they left the ball about the same time. In front of the hali coording to the statements of some parties Henkel accused Gorman of talking about him This Gorman denied and walked up the street According to Gorman's friend he had walked According to Gorman's friend he had walked but a short distance, when Henkel pulled a revolver from his pocket. This was taken from him and he then ran into the street and picked up a brick. Some one called to Gorman to look out, and as Gorman turned around Henkel threw the brick at him. It struck him on the face, at the left eye, and Gorman fell to the street unconscious. Private Watchman Messenken happened to be struck him on the face, at the left eye, and Gorman feil to the street unconscious. Private Watchman Messenkop happened to be present, he arrested Henkel and called on William A. Norbeck for assistance. Henkel resisted arrest and gave the officer and his assistant great trouble. On Duke street Watchman Messenkop took charge of the prisoner, and when near Grant street Henkel broke loose from him and ran away. In the meantime Gorman had been taken to his home and Dr. L. F. Siegler was summoned to attend him. He found that the man was very seriously lnjured. He removed the dirt from the wound and dressed it. Gorman at first refused to make complaint, but on Sunday afternoon he sent for Alderman A. F. Donnelly and preferred a charge of felonious assault and battery against Henkel. Officers went in search of Henkel but he could not be found at his house. Officers Leman and Lewars were on duty at Zahm's corner on Sunday evening and was issued for his arrest, passed that corner. He was arrested, taken to the station house and locked up. Henkel's friends say that if they had known that Gorman intended to bring suit he would have skipped out. Henheld denies that he was the aggressor in the fight. He claims that Gorman was drunk and followed him out of Excelsior hall, and when he tried to get away from him Gorman followed him up and struck him, and in self-lefense he threw the brick at him. Henkel's friends were ready to enter ball for his appearance, but Dr. Siegler said there was danger of Gorman's death. Alderman release Henkel until the doctor pronounce him out of danger. Both Henkel and Gorman are well known residents of the eastern part of town. The former is but 21 years of age and resides on Plum street. He has figured in a number of serious rows and has always been very quick to throw stones and other missles. The last time he was arrested was for hitting John Utzinger with a stone. The injured man died afterwards. Henkel on another occasion hit Ed. Bender on the head with a beer glass. Gorman resides with his parents and is employed at the Penn rolling mill.

The Late William G. Gibbons A career peculiarly marked by intelligence probity and fidelity was closed by the death of William G. Gibbons, who died last week in Wilmington, Del. From Lancaster counhis parents removed to Chester county, and in 1854, he entered the shop of Betts, Pusey Jones & Seal, predecessors of the Pusey & Jones company. Twenty-five years ago the establishment covered about two acres. Largely under the sagacious management of Mr. Gibbons, who was its president, the business of the Pusey & Jones company extended until it now covers sixteen acres and has built vessels and machinery (some of the lat-ter his own invention) not only for the United States government and firms and in-United States government and firms and individuals in this country, but for foreign parties. It is mentioned as an illustration of the fairness of his ways in general that, upon becoming a member of the water commission in Wilmington, he, though a staunch Democrat, reinstated Republican employes who had previously been discharged for partisan reasons. A friend, in characterizing his private character, said: "In him were found the keenest sense of honor, unvarying modvate character, said: "In him were found the keenest sense of honor, unvarying modesty and delicacy, purity of thought and act, a generosity which took in every age, condi-tion and class and yet hated to make itself known; great tenderness to dumb animals fidelity in friendship, tender affection for those he loved and sympathy for the un-fortunate everywhere."
