The Cancaster Intelligence

LANCASTER, OCTOBER 18, 1886.

A Confession of Weakness. Mr. Blaine has arrived in Pennsylvania. He has been cheered to the echo by admiring thousands in Philadelphia. He has rung the changes upon the glories of the Republican party, lauded to the skies Pennsylvania's devotion to the protection system and vigorously declaimed about the cheap labor of the South.

But what have these issues to do with those that are now confronting the voters of Pennsylvania? Protection is not an issue in this campaign. and the new administration cannot originate any measures for or against it. Nor is the cheap colored labor of the South that which is now absorbing the voters of Pennsylvania. What they want to hear intelligently presented are the state issues These directly concern them, because they must live for four years under the administration of those who are chosen to place on the first Tuesday of November.

Voters will look in vain through Mr. Blaine's speeches for a single sentiment on the store order or freight discrimination question. Yet the laboring man regards the first as the vital issue to him. He wishes to know on what ground a man presents himself before the people, asking their votes when the industrial concern with which he is connected at Bellefonte pays its men, not in cash, but in store orders. The whole people of the state, and particularly farmers and business men, are interested in the enforcement of the constitution in the matter of freight discrimination. To them it is a question of dollars and cents as individuals, and to the state as a whole it is a very strong consideration in her material prosperity.

Since Mr. Blaine has come all the way from Maine to enlighten the people of Pennsylvania, why does he not shed the electric rays of his knowledge on these two vital issues, the store order and freight discrimination? Is it because the Pennsylvania managers have tied his mouth on these two issues, or is it because of his natural sympathy with the corporations?

It is for his silence on these two points that the Pennsylvania Democracy are gla of Mr. Blaine's presence in the state. It brings out more clearly the positions of the parties on the real issues of the campaign. It shows that the Republican claim of friendliness to the labor interests is a hollow mockery. It will inspire the Democracy to renewed efforts for the good cause in which they are working, and its general effect will be to cause thousands of now wavering voters to cast their ballots for Black and the whole Democratic ticket.

The New York Mayoralty.

In accepting the nomination for the mayoralty of New York, Mr. Hewitt has written a letter that deals most pointedly with the form of socialism that has suddenly become the issue in New York city. It is well that the movement has been met at its outset by so able a champion, as the energy, ability and sincerity of Henry George are as far beyond question as were those qualities in many of the leaders of France in the reign of terror; and though there need be little fear that Americans will ever follow the lead of the Commune, there is ample cause for caution in a city like New York. Mr. Hewitt takes direct issue with Mr.

George on the ground that his schemes are directly opposed to the spirit of free government by majority, for he arrays class against class, and the men on whom he depends for success are and must remain a small minority. The agricultural interest comprises nearly one-half of the population. and of the remainder a very large majority are owners of property. The strength of Henry George's work lies principally in his eloquent portrayal of the dark side of modera life; but in his horror at existing evil, he has overlooked the danger for more terrible of overthrowing the very principle of free government, by means of which all wise and cautious patriots hope to achieve in time the social and civil betterment of all. As Mr. Hewitt says, "evils are not corrected until they are acknowledged to be evils by the majority, and it is the chief merit of government by the majority that the remedy for grievances is prompt and offective."

If the followers of Mr. George look back but fifteen years they cannot fail to be astounded at the people's progress, and yet they make that very fact a ground for complaint that it has not been more rapid. They turn from the contemplation of good chieved to bewail the vast mass of evil that is yet to be overcome, and instead of crowding more steam on the locomotive, they propose to accelerate our progress with dynamite. That is, the schemes of Henry George are to the principles of free government as the power of powder to the power of steam; and though it may be granted that by the former the race would progress with fearful velocity, it would stop with a suddenness equally dreadful.

Feathered Pests.

A new division of the department of agriculture is devoted to economic ornithology and has already gathered a mass of useful facts relating to the value of certain pecies of birds and the barm wrought by ers. Toe English sparrow is, of course, classed as a pest and is increasing so rapidly, that the territory it invades is estimated at more than 130,000 square miles annually. It is essentially a town bird, nesting almost exclusively about and upon the projections of buildings, but it takes long vacations during the fruit-growing seasons and wreaks its fastidious appetite upon the largest and juciest of grapes and the daintiest of tree fruits, in which work of destruction its aggregate of damage is almost incomputable.

The bobolink or reed bird does much good to the farmers of the North, but the Southern rice fields suffer terribly from its ravages. The estimated annual loss to the rice planters from the depredations of this bird is between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Dr. Morrison suggests that hawks should be trained to protect the crops as were the falcons for hunting in the middle ages. The crow is a corn thief, to be sure, but he destroys so many field vermin, and is such a good scavenger that he is only mildly condemned.

GALUSHA A. GROW spoke in Strasburg on Saturday night. No good reason is given for this dreadful visitation.

THE injection of nitro-glycerine into the veins of a person who had been dead for ten minutes, is said to have restored life; but Beaver has been dead too long for the three R's to revive him. The brating of tomtoms over his corpse is entertaining but use-

MR. BLATNE, remembering that the early bird catches the worm, has forgotten that he also catches the rheumatism. In spite of Chairman Jones he proposes to begin his presidential canvass now and in this state. hoping that victory here will secure his nomination for the presidency. This nomination would give Democrats cause for rejoicing. But Mr. Baine has underestimated the quiet strength of the feeling in this state against monopolies and their encouragement by his party in the past and present, for sympathy and support will most surely be given to the party that has so courageously battled against them.

Who cares for Beaver? The milk in the eccoanut is Blaine for president in 1888.

It is painful to see such a high historical authority as the Philadelphia Press go wrong on a historical fact that every school boy in the state doubtless has trippingly on his tongue. An inquirer C. A. O. asked the Press of the birthplace of President James Buchanan. To which the answer was given : " James Buchanan was born near Lancaster. Pa." Mr. Buchanan was born near Mercerburg, in Franklin county, Pa, April 23 1791.

ONE of the most powerful corporations in the United States, the Standard Oil com pany, has purchased the plant of the Empire and American oil refineries in the western part of the state for $1,225,000. There are other independent refineries in the oil fields of this state it is about scooping. This gigantic concern has since its organization absorbed all rivals, large and small, and will continue to have a monopoly of the market. Its plant is in Cleveland, Onlo, and all the oil it refines comes from wells on Pennsylvania soil. Very little it any tax is collected from it; the state nor the public get any benefit of the millions and millions of dollars worth of oil it produces. Railroads within the borders of the commonwealth earry but a small fraction of this commodity. The transportation is given to railways in New York state which connect the sea far from the excellent port of Philadelphia This corrupt corporation has shamefully usurped public and private rights, and vio lates without fear of punishment the laws of the state. The Democratic platform says we pledge ourselves to the enforcement of articles XVI and XVII of the constitution, relative to private corporations, railroads and canals by appropriate legislation." If the Democrats control the next legislature this and other rapacious corporations will have to observe and not defy the much needed laws

How desperate are the straits of Beaver when he has to shrink under the shadow of Blaine, and how unworthy is such a man of the dignity of governor of this great state.

MR. BLAINE's speech in Philadelphia is called "a maste rly and eloquent discussion of national issues." The issues now before the people are not national but state. The issues discussed by Mr. Blaine are not even entitled to prominence as national issues, and his discussion of them was not the able treatment of a statesman, but the language of a partisan, appealing to passion and not reason, to the bitter memories that survive a fearful war, and not to the glowing hopes that should replace them. He spoke of the tariff. he spoke of prohibition, and of the colored man in the South. What did he say of the war of the people of this state with monopoly, and the irrepressible conflict of labor with the store order system, approved in principle by General Beaver?

MISS CLEVELAND IS Said to have been tired of Literary Life, because of poor salary and hard work. These are the necessary attendants of literary pursuits.

THE exports of wheat and if her since September I have been far larger than they were last year, and it is estimated that the European crops have fallen 25 per cent, below the figures of 1885. Europe will need about 80,000,000 bushels of our wheat. The shipment rate of grain to Liverpool is now eight cents on a bushel, whereas in the summer months it tell as low as two cents. All this grain must be paid for and the natural result must be a revival of prosperity unprecedented in our annals, because not speculative but natural, and it is to be hoped permanent.

Chauncey F. Black. Lieutenant Governor Black, accompanies by John H. Fow and James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, arrived in Williamsport on the noon train, Saturday, from the West, and were received at the depot and escorted to the City hotel by a large committee of the most prominent citizens. A reception was held during all of the atternoon, at which many Democrats from all over Lycoming county were present. A rousing raily took place in the court house at 8 o'clock. Governor Black, in amouncing the unavoidable absence of Colonel Ricketts, the candidate for lieutenant governor, who was called home by important business, paid a glowing tribute to the latter's distinguished military service, and acknowledged the I onor he left in his association on the ticket with the gallant so dier, whr, he said, made a speech something like a quarter of a century ago, down at Getlysburg, the report of which to the City hotel by a large committee of the

These, gentlemen, are some of the questions you are to consider. Read my letter of acceptance and read General Beaver's speech and dechie between us. If you think that the man presented to you by the corporations and bosses of the state is the man to vote for, vote for him. If you think that the critizens who were elected in 1882 and who have endeavored in wrest back some of the stolen privileges of this wate are entitled to your franchies, then vote for me. I say to you, fellow citizens of Lycoming county, that if the whole Democratic vote is polled in Pennsylvanize-1 mean a reasonable proportion of it, as large as was polled in 1882—if that vote is polled the ficact of which I am the head will be elected sure as the sun will shine to morrow.

Hopeful Luzerne County Democrats, The Luzerne Democratic county committee was in session the greater part of Saturday. Considerable business was transacted. Reports from all the districts indicated an in-creasing Democratic vote. The Democrats are confident of electing their whole county ticket. A Maryland Town in Claimes.

A fire which started in a small frame stable in Salisbury, Md., about 7 o'clock Sunday night, swept over the entire business portion night, swept over the entire business pointed of this village. A brisk wind from the southeast spread the flames raphily, while the inhabitants stood by powerless to prevent the destruction, as the dry frame buildings burned too flercely to be checked by the small fire apparatus. Assistance has been asked from Crisileid and Winnington, bell, but at a late hour it looks as though the entire village would be destroyed. It is impossible to enumerate the projecty lost at this late village would be destroyed. It is impossible to enumerate the property lost at this late hour, but a rough guess places the damage at over $1,000,000. Source with their contents were licked up by the flames, and the streets are full of people whose hounes have been destroyed. At midnight the first is still burning flercely, and there seems to be no hope of staying its fury. No lives have been lost as far as can be learned.

DECAUSE it is so unusually handsome and attractive in appearance, many persons think the Ivory Soar is intended for toilet use only. While it may be used for the toilet with pleasant and satisfactory results, it is a laundry soap in all that the name implies. Prof. Silliman, of Yale College, says: "As a laundry soap the Ivony has no superior."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it. Convenient 1886, by Proctor & Gamble.
