Now Oberly Became a History

From the Washington Critic. The Hon, John Oberly, civil service re former-beg pardon civil service commissioner—is generally known as Bishop Oberly and the manner of his acquiring the title is rather amusing. It seems that the Hon.
John bears a striking resemblance to Bishop McLaren, of the Chicago dlocese, and one day a tipsy friend of John's overtook the bishop on the street. It was John, of course, to Mr. Tipsy, and coming up to him he slapped him a sounder on the back.

"John, old man," he said, "dang your soul, how d'v do? Haven't seen you for four days. Didn't hardly know you. Come in here and let's have a drink. Best liquor in town right in this shebang," and he vanked the bishop around and pointed him toward a salcon.

Sir," roared the bishop, "you'are mistaken. I am not John, sir, I am Bishop MeLaren."

Tipsy was sober enough to understand the gravity of his error, and he was carnest in his apologies that he was let off with only a reprimand. He went on his way muttering to himself, slipped into one or two places and fired up again, and about an hour after meeting the bishop he met John. He went up to him at once, extending his hand.

"Bishop," he said, as straight as he could,
"I hope you'll excuse me for that bad break of mine awhile ago. I'm very sorry indeed that it occurred, and I wish you would forget it. You look very much like my friend
John Oberly and being somewhat confused
I mades natural mistake and—" I madea natural mistake and-By this time Oberly had recovered his

"Why, you durn fool," he interrupted, "what's the matter with you? Are you crazy or drunk, or both?"

Tipsy looked at Oberly, put his hands on his shoulders, turned him around, took a back view, fronted him sgalb, gazed into his face for a second and replied briefly:

"Both, and got'em bad."

Explanations followed next day and the friends of the parties called Oberly bishop after that. The title was generalized later, when at a public banquet, at which one of these friends presided, some one was re-quested to ask a blessing and he replied: "Bishop Oberly is the man for that duty,"

The medicine they applied was like fre to the sore, causing intense pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what S. S. had done for others similarly afflicted. I procured some at once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was healing up. My general health had been had for two or three years—I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had a severe pain in my breast. After taking six bottles of S. S. S. my cough left me and I grew stouter than I had been for several years. My cancer has healed over all but a little spot about the size of a half dime, and it is rapidly disappearing. I would advise everyone with cancer to give s. S. S. a fair trial
