LARCASTER, OCTOBER 28, 1886.

In City and Country.

We have been particularly impressed during this canvass, by the personal nature of the claims made, by candidates for Congress, upon the people for their support. This office of representative is peculiarly a party and political one and naturally confines the candidate to his own party in his solicitation of votes. Cer-tainly it is an anomaly to see him seeking not only the votes of his political opponents but even their nomination. It is bewildering to find a candidate for Congress who is the nominee of both the Democratic and Republican parties; yet there is one in New York who enjoys this distinction; and furthermore is the ominee of a choice assortment of other organizations. He has fairly gobbled them all; and yet does not seem to be happy or to have secured his election beyond peradventure, since there is a candidate against him, who runs as an "Independent," in default of any remaining parties minate him. The much nominated didate is named Campbell—Tim Campbell; he is at present a Democratic repretative in Congress, elected, we believe. by Tammany Hall. Afterwards he became a County Democrat," and now is both; and a Republican and a Labor man, and everything else but a Prohibitionist. He is not that; when he received the Republican nomination he was called into the meeting

" wet groceries." His rival, Mr. Tom Grady, has not taken up the temperance banner against him; there do not seem to be any temperance constituents thereabout.

and invited everyone down to take some

We incline to think that this idea of making a candidate for representative the unanimous nominee of all the parties is strictly confined to New York at present; though we find indications that it may spread, in the apparent relation of party divotion in the representative candidate. Iu staid old Chester Mr. Darlington and Mr. Everhart, Republicans, have each other by the ears in an effort to get to Congress; and upon the Democratic side, a defeated candidate for the nomination, one mayor of Chester, is said to b working for Darlington instead of for the candidate of his party.

He is evidently of the order of Hessians, and apparently this order is spreading. There are many of the kind turning up and interposing their personal desires against the party good. There is Rafferty, of Pittsburg, who has thrust himself upon Fayette and Westmoreland, displacing a very fit congressman, Boyle, while himself very unfit to be a congressman; yet not knowing it, or not minding it, if he knows it. He expected the Democrats of the district to elect him, because the conferrees chose him; but they will probably refuse to do it.

There is too much independence and selfrespect left in the voter of the country congressional district, to let himself be treated as unceremoniously as the city voter is, by nominating conventions and self-seeking politicians. There needs to be a veil of decency thrown over political operations in the country. It will not do there for a man to ask both a Democratic and Republican nomination for Congress. though he may buy or beg in a covert way votes from any source.

That Dreary Caravan.

Mr. Blaine had a long tour through the rain yesterday, and what was to be a very grand and effective stroke of the Republian state chairman's genius, was a dreary failure. The caravan has our sympathy. There is no contending against the weather. Enthusiasm in the wet is not a manufacturable article. It was not probable berause the performance was Republican that it was a failure ; we do not suppose that if Black had been there instead of Beaver that the weather would have been better. But Providence seems to we had Black in better keeping than Beaver, since it was their B and not ours that was drowned out. We are sorry that they are in such bad luck. We do not wish them had weather in addition to the other badness they are helr to, which is quite enough to beat them.

We should like the people to see Mr. Blaine. They have heard a great deal of him and have a big conception of his proportions. When they see and hear him they are disappointed. It is not the Blaine of a few years ago. The pristine vigor is not there, and would not be, even if the weary rain and railroad cars were not on hand to drain it.

The Bartholdi Statue.

Could some enlightened traveler from an lown land see the million gathered the waters and the shores of the harof New York, hear the acclamations of the people and the roar or the statue of the veil falls from the face of the statue of the veil falls from the World, would be Liberty Enlightening the World, would be ant say, "I have found a nation of idolaers, but their God is the greatest ever rought by human mind, and its symbol as In her left hand law, in the other light.

goddess is a worthy daughter of the tioe the right of all. For eighteen hundred years men strug-

ed for that enlightenment of all that wa their right; it came to France, and the restless nation half awake took license for liberty and the glow of dawn for blood. But America had heard the voice across the ocean. When the light came westward with the sun our people were awake, and with an earnest purpose they sought and found true liberty. They armed the goddess then with knowledge and the law. The first and greatest, held high above her in her strong right hand, is fast awakening the Christian world to bow before this maiden's noble majesty, and by its grace to win the last, the perfect law.

CHAUNCEY BLACK is gaining votes in the same proportion in which Gen. Beaver is losing them.

THE Quarryville Post, which is growing brighter and better every day, has an article in its last issue on the subject of railroad liserimination. It severely criticizes the management of the Quarryville branch of the Reading railroad, and says the latter by its high rates is driving trade away from Quarville. After speaking of the high rates im-posed on lumber and phosphate, the Post says: "Besides putting an unreasonable freight on coal (75 cents a ton from Lancaster, 15 miles) this corporation, when they sell a dealer coal, give him no security as to what he pays or when he gets it at all, reserving the right to cancel all orders without notice (which they always do on a rising market)."

THE Democratic wave is getting bigger as election day draws near.

TURN out to-night at Mænnerchor hall and hear a brilliant discussion of campaign issues from a Democratic standpoint,

A DISGRACEFUL Republican exhibition of campaign teeling was given at Bellefonte on Wednesday. Mr. Blaine was to speak there and a number of his and Beaver's supporters were gathered in the neighborhood of the office of the Bellefonte Watchman, in the window of which hung a fac-simile of Beaver's store order. This greatly excited the Beaver mob and when they had been worked up to a violent pitch, stones weighing several pounds each were thrown through the window, tearing the placard and breaking the large glass to pieces. These were immediately followed by other stones, scattering the glass over the floor and breaking things generally. One of the stones came near hitting P. Gray Meek, the proprietor of the Watchman, and went through an open door into the composing room, where the compositors were at work. It is stated that the secretary and treasurer of the Beaver Nail mill company incited the lawless proceedings. The occurrence has had a bad effect on Beaver stock there. Quite a number who had put on badges favorable to the store order candidate, with the intention of participating in the Blaine reception, tore them off and declared that they would vote the entire Democratic ticket.

YALE COLLEGE will bereafter be known as Yale University. Plain people will fail to see the need of the change.

THE steamer British King has lauded over 300 Mormons at Philadelphia and a great many people have been wondering what the authorities would do about it, as it has been darkly hinted that the "city of brotherly love" would be found too hot for them. The authorities can do nothing whatever, the religious belief of emigrants can not be questioned, and in spite of its name and fame, Philadelphia has about as large a proportion of wickedness as New York, where the Mormons have been wont to land. There s some talk of prohibiting the landing of Mormons, but no sensible man can entertain the idea as it is evident that they might land in any capacity and become Mormons afterwards. If the good people of Philadelphia who are so scandalized by this passage of Mormons, would abandon all notions that make the remedy of this evil the care of the state, they might accomplish something by meeting it on its own ground; but first they had better make their city such a model of virtue as Penn and the Friends designed that it should be.

He then entered upon a three-years course of study at the Lutheran theo-logical seminary at Gettysburg, and was or-dained a minister in 1875. He was a frequent contributor to "Scribner's" and other magazines and periodicals, and furnished sketche to illustrated humorous papers.

BILL NYE, who has written a new book, has also written a prospectus for it. We quote: "The book will explain a good many things that have heretofore remained unexplained, such as spots on the sun, how to make a good paste for wall-paper that will not shrink the room when applied, how to win the affections of capital, how to write for the press, how to set bread, how to with the anections of capital, now to write for the press, how to set bread, bow to purify the fiver without removing it. Personal reminiscences, experiments with starvation; in all, over six hundred pages of thinks that I have thought."

Spalls Had Riz.

From the Indianapolis Journal. One day a North Meridan street man on his way to his office noticed a colored man oading spalls, cuttings from stones, from in front of a neighbor's new house. The colored man told him be had been hired at twenty-five cents a load, to haul them off to a dumping ground. The North Meridan street. man thought he could use a couple of loads of them, and, going to his rich neighbor, said of them, and, going to his rich neighbor, said if he would let him have a couple of loads he could use them to make a walk in his back yard, and he would pay the colored man for hauling the two loads. His neighbor said, "All right." The loads were hauled and the colored man was paid fifty cents. Next day, meeting his neighbor, the North Meridan man thanked his neighbor for the spalls. The neighbor didn't appear satisfied, and said:

"Why, Mr. —, that doesn't pay me."
Much surprised the N. M. street man said:
"But you have been having them hauled off and thrown away."

off and thrown away."
"So I was," said the awfully shrewd business man. "That's one thing; it's another thing in your case. They're worth something because you need them." Suppressing his rising indignation at this unneighborly exhibition of acute thrift, the N. M. street man desired to know what the spalls were worth. He was told $5, which he promptly paid, and now the two old neighbors don't speak as they pass by.

There are a number of other unsecured creditors. The assets, it is believed, will about cover the executions. Mr. Epler came from Elizabethtown, Lancaster county last January.
