LANCASTER. OCTOBER 29, 1886.

A Great Meeting.

There was a lesson for all citizens in the splendid outpouring of the people at Mænnerchor hall last evening to hear the discussion of the issues of this campaign from a Democratic standpoint. It was no mob of wild partisans ready to cheer to the echo a party cry. But it was a calm, deliberative body of men who had come to get the fullest possible information on the questions of the hour in order that they might most intelligently vote thereon.

The mechanic, the laborer, the farmer the business man were all there, and as the speakers touched upon the questions that affect the hearts and homes of the people, the ringing cheers of the audience showed that a responsive chord had been struck. For this is peculiarly a people's campaign. Labor every day is made to feel that its fate is in its own hands. Never will the ballot be more potent for the workingman than this year, when the Democratic party is making the fight in his behalf. Shall it be said that the great party of Jefferson in so doing labors in vain We much mistake the temper of last night's audience, if such is shown to be the case on Wednesday next. The cheers that greeted the forceful remarks of the speakers had the true ring in them, and the tremendous enthusiasm that shook the walls of the building when the name of Henry Drachbar, for assembly, was mentioned, shows that the Democratic party in this city is safely anchored in the laboring man's heart ; and that a great victory next Tuesday is certain. But let no Democrat lag because of this grateful assurance. The enemy are prepared to contest every inch of ground. Sleepless energy is required in order to win. and from now until election day let every effort be made to bring out the Democratic vote. For eternal vigilance will this year be the price of liberty.

Why They Were Angry. The Republican leaders are so much disturbed at the thought of damaging effect upon their cause of the assault made by their partisans upon the Bellefonte Watch office, which was placarded with the Belle fonte Iron company's store order and with Grand Master Powderly's denunciation of such means of paying workmen, that they hasten to send out by the telegraph affidavits declaring that P. Gray Meek, of the Watchman, had arranged the placard with express intent of provoking to violence the friends of Beaver in the procession which welcomed Blaine to Beaver's home. It is not very apparent wherefore this affords an extenuation of the Republican violence : and as the affidavits show that the obnoxious paper had been posted in the Watchman's window for some days before the procession, it is not clear how they prove that Mr. Meek put them there to provoke the ire of the procession. The fact doubtless is that they were posted for the genera information of the people of Bellefonte as they passed the Watchman's window and that Mr. Meek declined to take them down when the procession came along. Of course, he was right in that. The men in the procession were entitled to the benefit of the knowledge of Beaver's doings, even if they were determined to vote for him anyway. If the store order and Grand Master Powderly's denunciation aggrieved them so as to incite them to stone the Watchman's windows, it is a fair inference that they believed them to be damaging to their candidate or else they would not have been so angry.

In Bad Condition.

The condition of things in the Fayette-Westmoreland-Greene congressional district does not seem to have been improved by the intervention of the state committee. and its anointing Rafferty as the regular candidate. They buried Latta, but the dissatisfied voters have put up Donnelly in his place, who is a wealthy physician of Latrobe. It is not to be presumed that either of these candidates will be elected, and the strong probability is that this Democratic district will be represented in Congress by a Republican.

This is little less than a crime upon the part of the selfish interests that are responsible for it. There does not remain a question that this responsibility chiefly rests upon Rafferty, who should have declined the nomination when he found how unsatisfactory it was to the voters. His stubborn. ness loses the district, which he says he can stand if the people can. The devotion to party which such a declaration shows, is of the very thinnest kind. There is hardly a veneer of the thing on Rafferty. If he should be chosen by the Democrats of the district to Congress, they may expect him to vote Rafferty's politics right alongy whether Democratic or otherwise, and then to ask the people what they are going to do about it.

It is lamentable that the sensible course of nominating a Democratic candidate who can command the party vote has not been possible in this district ; but when passion drives folly rides.

AS A NATIONAL QUESTION The Strong Democratic Position Even Viewed

From That Standpoint.

From the Wilkesbarre Leader. The election is but a week cil, and the time for last appeals is almost here. Our iast appeal is and will continue to be : Vote for your state's best interest, which is your best interest. Judge by facts, not promises, This is a state election. State officers are to be filled ; state issues are to be decided The state constitution is brought to the fore The question is, shall it be enforced ? We have had four years of Democratic adminis-tration of the state and as to its entire hon-esty and efficiency there has not been and is not now a shatter of duty if is not now a shadow of doubt. The question is not now a shadow of doubt. The question is, shall we have four years more of the same kind of administration, or shall we restore the Quay-Cooper regime, with its riot bill bribery, its pardon board infamy, its treasury despoliation, its infamous recorder and de-linquent tax and other bills mercilessly op-pressing the tax payer in all directions. The Republicans are, however, not satis-fied that the election shall be decided on state issues. They insist that it is narrot the order fied that the election shall be decided on state issues. They insist that it is part of the great national battle for the presidency in 1858 Well, let us have it that way! What change do the country's interests call for? There are two changes possible—one will make the administration more completely Democratic, the other will make it Republican. Why should it be made Republican? Has the country suffered since Cleveland come in ? Is not business booming as it hasn't boomed in years? From and coal are the great staples of this state. As to iron, listen to the New York Heredic: "Plutburg is growing happier every day.

Pittsburg is growing happier every day, "Pittsburg is growing happier every day, and pig iron is the solid foundation on which she builds her prosperity. No more half time for the workmen. They can shake their fists at the coming winter, for all the millis are going, and the sparks are flying from under the triphammers so brightly that the stars are becoming ashamed of themselves." As to coal, listen to the Philadelphia Record; No better evidence of the increasing order. As to coal, listen to the Philadelphia Record: No better evidence of the increasing pros-perity of the country is needed than the enor-mous demand for fuel. The introduction of natural gas into Pittsburg, which was a great coal consuming market, and the use of other artificial fuels have not diminished the de-mand for coal. Bituminous and enthracite are being sent to market as rapidly as possible to meet the call for them, and so setting is the are being sent to market as rapidly as possible a to meet the call for them, and so active is the demand for coke that new ovens are being built and put in operation.
