The rns show a very small vote.

In Morrison's district there was a full rote polled and the result is attributable to he capture of the labor vote by the Re lican candidate through the active exrtion of the protection interest. John Jarrett, who is the Pittsburg leader of the workers, was sent into the district wo weeks before the election and was saful in arraying the labor element sinst Morrison as a free trader. He es great exultation over the result d has cause for it. The striking down of Morrison is a feather in the cap of the ction intertest. Whether it will really beneficial to their views is however ubtful. The iron-workers of Pennivania, whom Jarrett will be very tly considered to represent, will we the credit of the stroke, and the ne also. The question is whether they have done wisely for their interests in nviting this distinction. We think that bey have not. We believe that a majority of the interests of the country are in tility to the Pennsylvania doctrine of a high protective tariff: and that it is not safe for the Pennsylvania interests to aggravate this hostility, as has undoubtedly been done, and was seemingly intended to be done, by the assault upon Morrison.

A most extraordinary incident took place yesterday during a burial service held in the Larsretto at the quarantine station. While the Rev. Father Wilson of SL Mary's was the forms, columns of description would be reading the beautiful burial service of the nescessary to give an idea. From the tiny, closely petalled pompones, looking like a vel-vet button of red and gold, to the straggling Roman Catholfe church, and just as his lips had given utterance to the words, "And the earth shall open and give up its dead," &c., the mighty and deep roll of the earthquake was heard approaching, the house began to rock, and even the dead captain in his coffin Japanaise, with its ragged bronze, petall's natching and seeming to reflect the light as though of burnished metal on a Japanese vase, seemed to respond to nature's throe, as the coffin swayed as though in response to the mighty voice. eduction which handled very gently th iron interest of Pennsylvania.

The attack upon him by that interes seems to show that nothing is to be gained by handling it tenderly ; nothing at least by the Democratic party. Pennsylvania is Republican and is likely to have hereafter but a moderate influence upon a Democratic Congress, after its distinguished feat in sending an iron worker into a distant field to defeat a congressman who stood as the exponent of the general Democratic sentiment of the country upon the tariff insue. The defeat of Morrison and the sneak upon Carlisle, which will be charged to the same influence, is likely to go far to shape future political issues ; and in the next canvass the issue thus locally raised may be the issue generally.

British Rule in India.

It has been a matter for wonder to many that the British have been able to rule the numerous people of India with a comparatively insignificant force, but the secret of it may be found in the fanatical hatred between the Hindoos and Mohammedans. The people of India well know that if the English did not rule them they would be flying at one another's throats with all the ferocity of tigers of the Bengal jungle ; and the only peace that could follow years of desolating war would be under conditions far more oppressive than those now imposed by the British. The riots that have cently drawn attention to this question ere the result of a simple coincidence of the Moslem and Hindoo calendars, which brought it to pass that the great annual festival of both religions happened this year on the same day.

They both had religious processions and the Mohammedans interfered with the Hindoo devotees, the result being a riot of Beltast prepartions. Then any part as of a pig was found in a Buddhist temple and the riot became so serious that it severely taxed the military power to suppress it.

As long as these two religions hold their mainve proportions in India, the country must remain under foreign dominion, and at present no indications of a change are cernible. Christianity is progressing slowly, and in all probability will continue to so progress until some native of ability be found to act as its upostle.

The Zeal of the Board.

The zealous attention with which the nombers of the Lancaster school board levote themselves to the work of keeping he local schools in the highest state of efclency was amply illustrated last evening by the discussion that was elisited by the ace of the superintendent from the bea granted in due form.

It may on its face seem like hair-splitting to go into such a controversy over a matter pparently so small. But it is the little hings in life that cause trouble, and small dations of rules are those which should ost promptly checked.

The new board of directors go into office ler the most favorable auspices, and proc edings of their first meeting indinote that they will labor to put in a still higher state of efficiency Lancaster's ex-culient public school system.

BURDEN, proprietor of the Burden iron works at Troy, N. Y., is convinced that natural gas is not confined to any special locality, and can see no reason why it may not as well exist in the vicinity of Troy as Pittaburg. He will soon begin prospecting for gas in the neighborhood of his works. A cheaper fuel than coal has become a necessity for manufactories in the East since natural gas has been used to such advantage in Pennylvania and Ohio.

JEHU BAKER, the congressman-elect from JEHU BAKER, the congressman elect from the Eighteenth Illinois district, who has de-teated Mr. Morrison, is a gentleman of the old school, neat in dress and personal appear-ance, polite in manners, slow and deliberate in speech and dignified at all times. He has nothing in common at all with the typical Labor candidate. There is nothing magnetic about him, and he is considered more of a theorizer and Utopian dreamer of the Plato school than a man of practical ideas. He is given to long lectures and atdresses on ethics, speculative philosophy and abstract reas-oning.
