Michael Munkacsy's large picture of "Christ before Pilate" is to be exhibited in all the large cities of the United States. The attention and discussion. It does not follow in the old lines marked out by former

Looking for the Statue. From the Detroit Free Press.

I understand that there is an almost unani-mous desire on the part of the people of De-troit to erect a monument to me and to place the statue in front of the City hali. I do not deny that this desire is very flattering to me, and I wish to express my gratification, even though I beg to decline the proposed testi-monial. Of course I have not the false mod-esty to pretend that I do not know that I am worthy of such an honor. What I object to is that the spot selected is too public a place; people are too busy around the City hall to pay that critical attention to a monument that it ought to have bestowed on it.

This fact was forced upon me as I tried to look at the monument of Benjamin Franklin,

For the relief and cure of the inflammation and congestion called "a cool in the bead" there is more potency in Riy's of the states that in anything else it is possible to prescribe. This preparation has for years past been making a brilliant success as a remedy for cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever. Used in the initial stages of these complaints Cream Baim prevents any serious development of the symptoms, while almost numberless cases are on record of radical cures of chronic catarrh and hay lever after all other modes of treatment have proved of no avail.

attention and discussion. It does not follow in the old lines marked out by former painters of religious subjects, and there must be in it some quality which addresses itself strongly to the modern mind. Whatever else it may be charged with the picture is not a conventional one. With it will also be shown a collection of foreign pictures, gathered chiefly in Paris, and containing some work of an impressionistic character, and more that is not. Michael Munkacay was born at Munkaca, Hungary, in 1843; he studied painting in Peeth, Vienna, Munich and Paris, and began his exhibitions in Paris in 1870. Many years ago, it is said, Michael Munkacay bought some £3,000 worth of furniture and promised to give a picture in payment. The upholsterer did not press him for a settlement at the time, but waited for the artist to become more famous. Time passed and he went to the artist's studio and said: "Well, how about that little picture." The artist offered a check for the amount due, but the other insisted upon having a picture. Munkacay dashed off a sketch on the spot and gave it to him saying, "There, that is easily worth $3,000." The upholsterer accepted it delightedly, and hurried off to a picture dealer who refused to give anything like that amount for it. Back he went to the artist asking him to retouch the sketch and increase its worth, but this Munkacay decidedly refused. A suit followed and the tradesman lost it. Mr. Munkacay has had great numbers of pupils and some of the prominent painters among the younger New York men, including Harper; Turner and Gelden number among them.
