Dignity of the Teacher's Vocation, From the Student.

We remember a remark made some twenty five years ago by an intelligent lady in regard to the work of the teachers eur ployed year after year in graded schools. She said: "I think such work is belittling." Having in mind the constant plodding over the same ground, cramped by a time established adherence to the text-book, and enervated by the aid of poorly ventilated room, with small leisure for, and smaller incitement to, improving reading, there seems a degree of justice in the lady's remark. Indeed, there are few vocations, even smong those most laborious, which do no smong those most laborious, which do not offer greater stimulus to the growth of heart and mind than teaching under such circum-stances. We do not, of course, intend to say that all school teaching of twenty-five years ago could be thus described, but that these methods and circumstances by far too much

Some observations for the greater inducement given to the teacher by improved methods to use his own originality, and the greater facilities at his demand for bringing nteresting facts (and even wholesome sent ment) to bear upon almost every subject laught in schools, lead us to say—the teacher's alling is as broad, dignified, and ennobling as his choice and abilities can make it. We believe the assertion as true of primary scho teaching as of work of a higher grade. Rightly followed, it means rich and ever-increasing culture to his own mind, and the work of awakening the ambition for and laying the foundation of such culture in the minds of his pupils.

For the thoughtful teacher of to-day has For the thoughtful teacher of to-day has caught the infection of observing closely, and tracing results in both nature and art to their causes. He gathers help from common things around him in regard to which his pupils may be profitably informed. To this work he brings not only his own observation and reason, but stimulates his pupils to do the same, and so far as may be trings the do the same, and so far as may be brings the results to bear upon the subjects which he is required to teach, at once making them more practical, and teaching that all science and art are the servants of eternal truth. He will not allow these under his care to feel that their school study affects their material inter ests alone, but will show them that it touches infinite truth at every point, and is at all times made subservient to it.

times made subservient to it.
The variety, naturainess, and devout feeling which enter into such teaching cannot fail to inspire interest, enthusiasm, and reverence. The teacher is not led to respect the text-book tess, but more—as being the foundation and framework upon which he may build a structure of use and beauty, according to his taste and ability.

Tinting the Ears. Ciara Belle's Letter

A new trick, learned from the actresses. to tint the ears for evening occasions. The feminine mind has taken the notion that, so long as men speak admiringly of pink ears. an auricular deep blush may as well be put on to stay while desired. Therefore, when adorning themselves for ball, opera or other place of personal display, they rouge their ears inside and out. As the adjacent por-tions of their necks and heads are white, either naturally or from powdering, the con-trast is rather startling. Well, some of the that is rather startling. Well, some of the girls at Jerome Park had painted ears on their frivolous heads. Leonard Jerome, a boss committeeman, gazed for a moment at one of them, and then caught her in his arms, held her tight and kissed her. She was a distant relative and he was a veteran, but she got angry just the same, and asked "An old custom of looking bees," he

The Spiender of Dress

The spiendor of Dress and the artificial effects of cosmetius, no matter how defly applied, can never make be autiful or attractive one who is subject to emacistion, nervous debility, or any form of female weak ness. These must be reached by inward application, and not by outward attempts at concessionent, and the fadles may take hope from the fact that thousands of their sisters have made themselves more indicate and beautiful by the use of Dr. Plance's "Tavarite Prescription" than they could ever hope to do by the aid of the appliances of the toilet.

A QUESTION ABOUT

Brown's Iron Bitters

ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thou sands of times. "How can Brown's from Bitters cure everything I" Well, it doesn't. But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe 180N. Physicians recognize Iron as the lost restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will substantiate the assertion that there are more preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicine. This shows conclusively that iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice. It is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS no perfectly satisfactory combination had ever been found. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not injure the teeth, cause head-ache, or produce constipation—all other medicines do. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures indigestion, Billousness, Weakness, Dyspepsia, Maiaria, Chills and Fevers, Tired Feeling, senteral Debility, Pan in the Side, Back or Limbs, Headache and Neuralgia—for all these aliments iron is prescribed daily. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, however, does not cure in a minute. Like all other thorough medicines, it, acts slowly. When taken by men the first symptom of behalit is renewed energy. The muscles then become firmer, the digestion improves, the bowels are active. In women the effect is usually more rapid and marked, The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the checks; nervousness disappears; functional derangements become regular, and if a narring mother, abundant sustenance is supplied for the child. Remember Brown's Iron Bitters is the ONLY Iron medicines on wranger. TAKE NO OTHER. gustarecommend it.
