Novel Advertising.

A novel advertising prospect was that of a Providence furniture dealer, Wednesday night. For the prize of a black walnut chamber set of furniture he secured the performance of a wedding ceremony in his parlour and invited about the reception and banquet, following in his waterworks.

Novel Advertising.

"I thought, what a heavenly could have from the flesh is better, what a good price they'd bring in the market. Well, twenty five cents will buy a passion—salvation!"

A merchant down town sells more of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup than all other medicines together. It relieves the throat, soothes the lungs, breaks up colds, and other similar ailments. Price, 25 cents.

Novel Advertising.

"There doesn't appear to be much agricultural activity here?" Poasant replies, "No sir." Tourist—"How do the people live—on 'praises and butter milk, I suppose?" Poasant, quickly, "Oh, no, sir; on the visitors."

Novel Advertising.

"Did you get the sugar, darling?" were the words I faintly heard.

How I cried. You can't imagine how I felt to hear him speak.

Or to see his look of wonder as I bent to kiss his cheek.

Well, I've told a long, long story—Ezra's coming up the walk.

But I've had a purpose in it—wasn't just for idle talk.

Don't you think, my dear, you'd better make your quarrel with—

It may save a world of trouble, and it's near Thanksgiving Day.

IN WOMAN'S WORLD.

The Latest Fancies in the Ever-Changing Cycle of fashion. The fashion editor of Harper's Bazaar advises those wanting black silk dresses to get ottoman and basket-checked satin stripes for the skirts, with a blouse of similar checks without stripes. Other very handsome black dresses are of black net, either quite plain or else dotted with jet, made into stripes, by many rows of jet gossamer being sewed upon it. This is usually made over black satin, but is also worn over white satin as a reception dress, when the toilette is completed.

Some of the new styles of black dresses are of black net, either quite plain or else dotted with jet, made into stripes, by many rows of jet gossamer being sewed upon it. This is usually made over black satin, but is also worn over white satin as a reception dress, when the toilette is completed.

For plain black dresses diagonal wool draped over a pinked skirt of black Bengaline is a stylish combination. The foundation skirt is first edged with a narrow pinked band or a box-pleated Bengaline skirt, which is also pinked. The diagonal wool drapery may be a fan apron or a round apron of striped or the left side, with deep pleats on the right. The basque has a V of the silk set in pleats down the front and up the sleeves about the wrists; revers edge the front V and are covered with silk cord or stripes. Vests must be very narrow when long, and some new short vests, scarcely more than pinnacles, are rounded out below in V shape instead of in the popular point or Y. Square-necked dresses are again in great favor for bridal and other full-dress toilettes, and the square is left open, to be filled in with a festooned necklace instead of having tulle or lace gathered there.

Striped wool dresses are made with the deep apron over-skirt already noted caught up by a fold or tuck which curves across, following the outline of the lower end of the apron. The back then falls in very full pleats or jabots, and is caught up in bouffant folds or by side pleats. For the foot of wool skirts a band of velvet, or velvet four to six inches wide is a favorite trimming. Others have a hem turned up on the right side five or six inches deep, with rows of stitching near the top, or a band with many rows of stitching in the middle, or the pinked bands are used as a finish. These pinked bands are made of velvet, or velvet cloth and tricotine, while velvet or plush is used on the more silvery-striped woollens. The basque for striped skirts is a plain cloth position of severe shape, fastened with small crocheted or velvet buttons.

Proper Fashion Caps.

Velvet covered hats promise to be very stylish the coming season. These will be beautifully trimmed with ostrich tips.

In millinery the last novelty is in flowers made of India rubber. Fruit for millinery purposes is also made of this accommodating material.

It is late vagary in fashion to have the basque as well as the skirt of striped material, if any is used in combination with a plain fabric.

Old rose is the new color. It is neither pink nor purple, but between them, and it will be very fashionable the coming season. Handkerchiefs show a decided tendency to become fanciful again. Lace trimmed, fine mill handkerchiefs are the most stylish of all.

Smooth leather turbans in black and color are in style for young girls. The brim is covered with fringe and corded and are in higher favor and more extended use.

Underskirts of striped, barred, plaited, bayadere and figured stuffs are worn with all the other parts of the dress of plain stuff.

A lady who says she has suffered much from scratches induced by trying to fasten elastic cord dresses with pins, has devised a simple method for keeping them in place by elastic cord. Make a loop of this cord, using round, not flat, elastic. Sew it on the inside of the sleeve so that the end of the loop does not quite reach the bottom edge, and fasten the loop over the cuff buttons, when your cuff will remain secure in place.

The Mighty Hair Pie.

Man has nothing in his pockets that can in any way compete with its uses. This little instrument holds a woman's own hair and her false hair in place; it answers for a crimping-pin if no better offers; it cleans
