Councils To-night.

The December meeting of the city councils will be held this evening at 7 o'clock.

A Large Jewelry Establishment. Of late numerous improvements have been made in the manufacturing department of E. J. Zahm's jewelry store, which is in the third story of the building in Centre Square. Formerly two rooms were used, but recently they were thrown into one. The engine, which was up stairs, has been placed in the cellar, making much more room above. The large room is used exclusively in the manufacture of jeweiry, and twelve hands are kept constantly at work. On the second floor the office occupies one room. while another is used as the engraving and en-smeling department. The clocks are also kept on this floor, and repairs are made by Godfried Zahm; seven persons are here employed. The store proper is on the first floor, where there are also seven persons. At present the room is check full of the finest kinds of goods suitable check full of the finest kinds of goods suitable for Christmas presents. "Michael Stroyof" To-morrow Night.-To-morrow evening this great Russian play will be given in the opera house by Charles L. Andrews' large company. They were in Reading for th past two nights, and the Temes says: "The per-formance of the principals was good. Michael was taken in a manly tashion by J. Hay Cossar. Marfa, his mother, was played by Cecil Rush, who has been thoroughly schooled in this role for many years, and who plays it almost without a flaw. Floring Arnold naively as sumed the sweet character of Nadia Feder. Th incidental features were the lightning drill of Frank Kissell, which was warmly applauded; the drill of the Amazonian guard, and some dancing by Signorina Gossi."
