THE CHURCH STRES Two conturies of steps, and then A field of graves : With many a sculptured tale of men Lost in the waves.

You climb and climb, with burs and there A seat for breath, To find amid the loftisr air

A realm of death And thus it is with buman life-Mon toll to rise

And lo' above the strain and strue A graveyard lies.

Two conturies of stops, and then Amid the graves, A holy house that telis to man Of Illin that saves.

O weary men, and women worn. That there have found. And find, bright hints of heavenly motin, On earthly ground !

And so atop the steps of time, If climbed aright, Beaven's glad and everiating chine And home of light

Wonderful Mechanical Inventions Tha Delight the Little Folks.

From the Baltimore Sun. An evolution in the toy business has made itself apparent. The purchaser of to-day calls to mind the box of soldiers he invariably got on each Christmas morn. Stiff old fellows they were, made of German kindling wood. They wouldn't stand up, and couldn't lie down without being disarmed in both a military and an anatomical sense, and when one attempted to place them on the little criss cross concern that came with each box, the round pedestal upon which they stood always bursted, and the noble army was put on a bursted, and the noble army was put on a peace footing. Toys for girls in those days were also fear-fully if not wonderfully finite. To have a jointed doli was to bask in luxury. For the little mother to kiss her wooden child was to damage its complexion irreparably and to transfer alloky paint from dollie's nose to her own; unless, of course, she got a china doll, and that always fell on the hearth and got smashed the next day. Santa Claus has learned much since those days. His factories in Germany and France have had a successful competition in the United States, and toys in the last ten years have been produced on a rapidly-rising scale of beauty and mechanical togenuity. A wholesale dealer, when asked whether the wholes at dealer, whon laked whether the tendency of the times was to demand the cheaper or more expensive goods, replied that the proposition could not be stated that way. "There is," he said, "a proportionate lemand for both kinds, but there is a tenden cy towards getting the same goods cheaper each year, and to getting a larger article of the same kind for the ruling price. There is one thing about our business not generally known. There will shortly be no jobbers in whown, There we import and sell goods we never see. That is to say, parties purchase goods of us and the goods are consigned to nem directly from abroad.

The great staples that always find sales are ctoils for girls and horses for the boys. Dolls are only made in inferior quantities and qualities, in this country. There are hun-dreds of varieties of them-china, wax, wooden, composition, juma, bisque, rubber, leather, drossed, undressed, unbreakable, in endless procession. Some plebelans have an inter consciousness of sawdust, which is por doubt through their flinny cuticles on slig provocations. Some are covered with French white kid and have flowing blonde locks of flax. They are flied with pride and wool because they are French kids.

wool because they are French kids. Dolls are made which walk, crawl and cry. Some can say "mama" and "papa" nearly as naturally as the real article of flesh and blood, but when the talking gear gets out of order the sound is like the distant wait of a lovethe sound is like the distant wall of a love-lorn tomeat. The latest novelty is a sleep-ing baby with a cap that fits closely to the face. When the breast is pressed the head revolves quickly and a wile-awake face is shown, while the word "mama" is twice re-peated. When you want it to go to sleep again a string is pulled, and nearly every real mother who sees it wishes in hor heart be could rig no an attachment like it at she could rig up an attachment like it at

Horses are of many kinds. Some are in the shape of propellers, some rock and some gallop. The toys covered with natural skins are great sellers, and the domand on certain izes cannot be satisfied. These are all im-ported. Many of the wooden ones are made lown East. In fact, large wooden toys are mostly Yankee products. An experienced dealer can tell at once whether the goods are imported or domestic. On tool chests, black-boards, desks, picture blocks, building blocks and cut up puzzles. America beats the world. To make ten pins interesting they are made to represent soldiers, generals or men of different nations, and a ball is fired at them from miniature cannons. These games are mostly made up so as to cost one almighty dollar. Germany on lower grades of toys but they are so firmsily made that one gen-erally gets more pieces than he wants. The erally gets more plettes than he wants. The American goods are solid and are mostly adapted to children too old to play trivial games and too young to go to work, and desks, etc., are reproductions of grown up furniture, with drawers and cylinder desk tops, costing as high as five dollars. There is a Baltimore maker of such toys in all sizes who makes the best in the country. He cannot furnish goods enough.

The important point is, that a cod in the head is a genuine rhaining influence of the nose, which, when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition-for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which mature is no longer abl to "resolve" or throw off. Ky's Cream Raim has proved its superiority, and sufferers from cold in the head should resort to it before that common aliment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh. "Evaded a w supply the place of the choral top of 1885, or the nickle watch which sold by thousands last year. But there are elephants that walk and swing their trunks, birds that hop along the ground, squirrels that skip about, and tom cats that get their backs up, stiffen their tails, sneak along the ground and yowl as natural as life. There are bows and arrows for boys, jugglers that balance things on their chins, men and monkeys that smoke real cigarettes just like a dude. Then there are baby carriages, velocipedes, steam en-gines, scientific toys, such as electric batteries. The glittering generalities that are hung on Christmas trees are in great demand. They consist of glass bails and pendants variously colored and shaped, and are all imported. The paper ornaments for trees are mostly made in Baltimore, which is headquarters for their mathematical particular and the starters for their manufacture. Enough cannot be sup-plied from here to fill orders. The toys are made in Philadelphia. They sell as well or better than the foreign articles sell as well or better than the foreign articles, and the railroad trains and wagons look much more like the real things. Planos are made here, and the more expensive ones have the chromatic scale, with black and white keys just like "righty" ones. Besides the articles commerated there are thousands of gifts, big and little, for all, including sport-ing goods, which are all American. Some hows will, of course, crave a base ball, but boys will, of course, crave a base ball, but they will get tired of playing with it in the parlor after the mirror is broken, and they will go into the street and get it lost in a sewer. Then they will save up and buy another next spring. From present appear-ances this Christmas will be a happy one, and the storekeepers will not be behind in the general hilarity.
