The professor has been thalf a dozen men to assist him in his coderful work. The professor does not sim to have any power over the animals, or has he any secrets. Everything he does right before the eyes of the audience id be will show any one how the cost horses can be subdued by a man ith both strength and courage. THE PIRST HORSE.

The first horse last evening was a big sor-rel, that had been in the habit of shying, away, &c. The professor worked ith him but a short time until he had him inquered, and he was able to stand almost aything. Before Giesson finished his ork with the horse he was hitched up in a work with the horse he was hitched up in a light buggy, and to try him the professor's was endeavored in every way to frighten him. One followed him with a bass drum, which he beat all around him; another had the cymbals, sieigh bells, &c., while a third shoved a parasol in his face at every turn, the band at the same time was making hideous noises. The horse was driven under waving flags and banners, and he showed no sign of fear. The next animal was bay that was nervous and hard to harnessed without a particle of trouble. He was put through a course and could be harnessed without a particle of trouble. He was also compelled to listen to the horrible solves and strange sights, but he did not ile noises and strange sights, but he did not righten. The two horses were finally hitched opether and driven right up to a barrel a which fire crackers were exploding. The prooms tried to frighten them by throwing sper, do, in their faces, but all to no pur-BUBDUING A VICTORS BEAST.

The last animal handled was a fine, powerard to manage in every way and fond trunning away. The professor first caught be animal by the tail and head and turned aim around very rapidly. A bridle was been easily placed upon him. The professor next undertook to throw the animal, then easily placed upon him. The pro-fessor next undertook to throw the animal, but he found it a big undertaking, as the house was very strong and made a desperate light. He was finally overpowered, how-ever, and came down. While lying on the floor he was serenaded by all kinds of rude lestruments, after which he was put upon his legs and salety straps were placed upon his feet. By these the professor is enabled to call the animal's front iest from under him. The house was worked some time and at the orse was worked some time and at the sound entirely subdued. Tin pans, a bells, &c., were tied to his tail and he although to a wagon with tin pans on the life. Sticks, &c., were run between his legs but he made no attempt to kick or tan. Before the close he seemed as righten. Before the close he seemed as hough he would not frighten at anything. he owner and gentlemen acquainted with he horse say that he had a very bad disposition and they could not have been paid to ride behind him. This horse will be given a lesson this afternoon and will be made to do several tricks this evening.

The professor's work is the most wonderful of its kind ever seen here, and it must be viewed to be appreciated. This evening four or five very vicious horses will be handled. The price of admission has been reduced from 50 to 25 cents, so that all persons will be enabled to witness the startling exhibition.

Among the horses to be handled by Prof. Glesson this evening is one that is hard to ahoa. The owner is willing to wager $500 to $100 that no blacksmith in this city can shoe him without putting in the stocks. Glesson will attend to his case.

A MOTHER'S BECKLOSS CRIME. Sad Ending of a Qurrel Between Husband and Wife, Adeibert Fairfield and his wife, of Putnam onn., on Sunday went to visit A. A. Clark, Mrs. Fairfield's tather and the superintendent of the town farm. For some reason or other the pair fell into a dispute, and as there seemed to be no chance of getting them into better frame of mind Clark sent them to their own home, which was not very far away. There the quarrel did not come to an end, and after an angry altercation Fairfield put on his hat and left the house. It was then early in the afternoon, and he did not return for two hours. Mrs. Fairfield became despondent, and she, too, started out of the house. Before she went back she precured some morphine. She did not find her husband at home on her return and became more depressed than ever. Pouring the poison into a glass of water she made her young child drink part of the mixture and swallowed the rest of it herself. Both took enough of the morphine to kill a dozen men. When Fairfield reached home he found the child lying on a lounge and nearly dead. Mrs. Fairfield's father and the superintend the child lying on a lounge and nearly dead the child lying on a lounge and nearly dead.

His wife was lying unconscious on the floor, and the empty glass told him what had happened. Fairfield brought dectric to the rescue as soon as possible, but in spite of every effort that was made to save its life the child died in a few minutes.
Then the physicians directed all their attention to Mrs. Fairfield, and, after long and hard work, successful in restoring her to conhard work, succeeded in restoring her to con-sciousness. The woman, however, seemed to have partly lost her mind, and what she could say was broken and almost unintelli-gible. The doctors believe that she had lost control of her reason when she poisoned the child and herself. Both Fairfield and his wife are almost 30 years of age. They had quarrels before, but nobody dreamed that that troubles were seriously. their troubles were serious. The coroner is avestigating the case.
