They Voted Wrong.

We regret very much that twenty-six Democratic representatives voted with the Republican members of Congress against taking up the bill to reduce tariff taxation. The very remarkable character of the vote of these Democratic representatives is found in the fact that they-twenty-six in number-voted against the body of the nocratic representatives, one hundred and forty-two in number, and that but six Republican members votes while against hundred and forty-two Democrats, against iblican members voted with the one the twenty-six Democrats who voted with the one hundred and twenty-eight Republicans.

for that gentleman. It thus appears that the position taken by the very large majority of the Democratic members of Congress, upon an important political issue, was opposed and defeated by a small minority of the Demo-DOOT DOGL cratic members ; and that the party stands divided against itself, and has failed to execute any policy, in a matter where it is very apparent that the needs of the country require a party policy to be formed and executed. While i is conceded all around that reduction of revenue is necessary, the Democratic party in Congress has not united in a policy to secure this result; and so obstinate is a Democratic minority in its determination to defeat the views of the Democratic majority, that it has refused even to afford a bearing to those views and has united with the Republican party to choke them

Now, if that is not a remarkable political situation we have never seen one. If the action of the Democratic minority is not wrong, then we do not know what a factional party minority may not do. We do not ourselves entertain any doubt whatever that it was the duty of the Democratic members of Congress to vote for the consideration of the Morrison bill; and that they were wholly unjustified in seeking to prevent the success of that bill by a refusal to consider it. Of the twenty-six Democrats who stood against their party. five, we are very sincerely sorry to may, were from Pennsylvania ; and that are those who would be consid ered the flower of the Pennsylvania fock'; Randall, Curtin, Boyle, Ermentrout [and Sowden ; good men and Democrats, who have been led away from their clear duty by the ancient smell of the Pennsylvania idea which declares that nothing can be swallowed in Pennsylvania that has not the highest flaver of protection seasoning. But we say to these ntlemen that these are moving times, and that the old notion of Pennsylvania tariff needs is going fast to sleep ; and that they are sleepy not to have seen it. Mr. Randall has not been down among the people. Mr. Ermentrout has listened to the stupid Republican iron-makers of his district, who did not elect him. Mr. Sowden has been similarly inspired. Mr. Boyle knows the law, but not business. And old Governor Curtin, who has had the best business instinct of the lot, was born in a Whig garment and has returned to the instincts of his cradle. The interests of the Pennsylvania plg iron maker demand a reduction of the duty on ores and coal, which are the raw materials of his manufacture. We are using foreign ores largely now and will need to use them more largely hereafter ; and we will need to get them as cheaply as possible to keep down the price of the lake ores, to the miners on which the Pennsylvania iron producer pays an extravagant royalty. But whether this be or be not the interest of the Pennsylvania iron maker, it is the interest of the whole country; and the Pennsylvania Democratic representative cannot as little trouble as possible and shirk duty come back to his Democratic constituents whenever he can safely do so. It speaks well and say that he opposed the Democratic for our soldiers that they have retained their high soldierly qualities under this system. party and paralyzed its power in Congress by voting with the Republican party, in Brainerd is nominated "a second lieutenant protection of the Pennsylvania iron masin the Second cavalry as a recognition of the galiaut and meritorious services rendered by ters. That will not do. The Democratic him in the Arctic expedition of 1881 84." Serparty of the country is of more value to the Pennsylvania Democrats than is the Pennsylvania ironmaster ; and the Democratic voter ever demands party unity as the first consideration of his representative. We believe that the Democratic representatives of Pennsylvania in Congress have been faithless to both the interests of their party and the interests of the iron workers of the state, in their vote against taking up the Morrison bill and in their position against the reduction of the duty on the raw materials of manufacture. Certain Democratic representatives in New are too often troubled with a tack of sense, but as they are often also affliated with a York and New Jersey have gone off with our representatives on this iron idea, and lack of clearness the sense lack is not always seven Ohio Democrats have followed to conspicuous.
