Mr. Hensel to the Board of Trade. The address of Mr. W. U. Hensel to the caster Board of Trade, a lengthy stract of which is elsewhere given, will re absorbing interest to all who have at art the prosperity of the city in which rive. Mr. Hensel has a rare faculty of vesting dry details with a charm of inone that never grows tiresome to who are native and to the manner caster's historic past, teeming with ditions that are inseparably linked with e early life of the nation, were gracefully sched upon. From musty old documents was drawn the lesson of the public spirit at thrilled the men of those days. The ity's resources at present, its secure geochical position, its necessarily promisof future—all came in for their full share of attention.

And then the lecturer passed on to consider what Lancaster needs in order to keep ce with modern development. There vill be few to differ with the sentiment of the speaker that our city government needs reorganization on a non-partisan basis ; that the business of the city shall be adainistered by its business men. A Board of Trade that would carry to success such a movement toward political regeneration would earn for itself the gratitude of the ent and all future Lancastrians. Mr. Hense' scattered much good seed in his able lecture, and it is to be hoped that it will not fall upon stony ground.

Promotion From the Ranks.

The board of visitors to West Point has mended that the right to nominate a endet to the academy each year, should be mted to each senator, and that the present should be allowed to nominate four times as many "cadets at large." This recommendation is made because the academy does not furnish enough officers for the vacancies in the army, and the natural inference is that the board holds that such vacancies should be filled by graduates of West Point, History shows that many of the best soldiers have risen from the ranks, and it would seem a wise and just policy to permit a small number of vacancies to be filled from the non-commissioned officers. No doubt the board wished to put a stop to the pointment of second lieutenants from civic life by providing that there should always be enough West Pointers for the vacancies, but would they not at the same time cut off all chance of rising from the ranks? These appointments from civil life are usually the rewards for political services, and there is small chance that Congress will do anything for the direct remedy of that evil, but the method taken by the oard will not only choke the non-commissioned officers, but may result in the same surplus of officers that has prevailed in the navy through the annual graduation of more men than there is room for.

Provision should be made, however, for comotion from the ranks ; and it can not reatly matter how many young men are ducated as soldiers at West Point, for the modern officer must be an engineer and have a practical knowledge of many things that will make him a useful citizen.

The Reading Trouble.

There has been a very remarkable secretiveness maintained between the Reading railroad employes and managers as to the causes of the difference between them, and It is not abated now that the differences are settled. We are not told what the ubles were nor what the settlement is. It has been expressly covenanted by the parties that the terms of the agreement between them shall be kept secret. The desire for this was undoubtedly on the company, and the men, satisfied with their victory, were quite willing to abstain from public crowing over their success.

The result of the conflict is just what was to have been expected. It was quite impossible for the company to resist the demined demand of its united employes. The new management made a very great mistake in starting into its economical programme without considering that there were two parties to the bargain. The employes have thoroughly proved that they need to be consulted when it is proposed to decrease their pay and increase their work, and that the railroad's treasury cannot be made plethoric at their cost without their consent. This was doubtless the main point of the difference between Mr. Corbin and the lodges of the workmen; and It has been conceded to them.

The Honesty of Our Public Men.

The review of General Logan's life again is attention to the fact that in spite of charges so recklessly made against all lic men in the heat of political strife, large number of them cannot bribed by anything that has a ey value, but whether they are ambitions than conscientious is her question. Our history is full of whose methods were notoriously ked, and yet they would have recoiled borror from the thought of a cash bribe, Logan was so scrupulously honest and dehtforward that he scorned the wisus ways of statesmen of greater fame, and was known and respected as an open foe, if a bitter one. The number of men in Congress who are not to be bribed by touching either their avarice or ambition is not so great but that when occasion affords some effort should be made to increase it by showing that the people do not undervalue this quality in their public servants. Wealthy and poor congressmen are both open to the temptations of ambition, and when, by consistent record, they have shown that their work has been one of unselfish patriotism, the nation should express its appreciation by crowning their memory with all the honors that are the due of great men. For after all good men are more rare than great men and should easily win as gifts the honors that the abler men seize by force.

Many prominent members of Congress live upostentationsly and s' ow an absolute disregard for wealth. Some are strictly conscientious and cannot be influenced by touching their ambition; and taken as a whole, the honesty of our senators and representatives may be said to stand on a par with the average honesty of men in business. They are our representatives and our national integrity will be estimated by foreigners by reference to Congress as the standard.

LANCASTRIANS must be proud of the showing that was made of it at the Board of Trade lecture last evening.

MASSACHUSETTS may be pardoned for blowing her horn at the present time. The total valuation of the state is $1,847,531,422, a gain over last year of $65,182,279, and a gain of $7, 278,721 over the next greatest aggregate, which was in 1875. The total is made up of $507,037,749 personal and $1,340,493,673 real property. The total valuation of Boston is $710,621,555. The amount of deposits in the saving banks of the state is $291,197,000, an increase of $15,199,488, over last year.

THE Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, gives an exhaustive review of the industrial progress of the South during the past year, and proves that more has been accomplished than in any year of which there is a record. The amount of capital, including capital stock of incorporated companies represented by the new manufacturing and mining en-terprises organized or chartered in the South during 1885, including the enlargement of old plants and rebuilding of mills, aggregates $129,226,000, against $66,812,000 in 1885. Kentucky shows the largest amount of capital invested in new industrial enterprises during the year, $28,404,000; an increase of more than ten millions over 1883. Tennessee omes next with $21,240,000, an increase of nearly nineteen millions. Alabams is only third, in spite of all the noise over her iron and coal, $19,848,000; twelve millions more than the amount invested in 1885. Arkansas has added over fifteen millions to her capital for industrial development.

The iron interests have attracted wide attention from the colossal proportions of the enterprises that have started to develop this field. The Tennessee Coal Iron and Ratiroad company, with a capital of $10,000,000 has five great furnaces in operation and is building five more, besides coke ovens and opening new coal mines. Other companies are not far behind this giant, and iron and steel works are being rapidly built; while tactories of all kinds have been started all over the South. The wide diversity of the new enterprises is taken as the most gratifying feature of the industrial development.

The Chattanooga Tradesman goes into an equally thorough investigation of the matter, comparing 1886 with 1880 with wonderful results. It shows the gain in annual product of pig iron in six years to have been 565,200 tons, of which early half was in Alabaura, and 219,000 tons in Tennessee, Kentucky, Maryland and Missouri having lost together 143,000 toms, and Georgia, Texas, North Carolina and Virginia gained. The rate of gain of capacity in Alabams, Tennessee and Georgia, the three central Iron states of the South, was 233 per cent. since 1880. The Tradesman claims that these figures will be trebled before 1800 in the thermometer goes down, THERE seems to be no doubt about the genuineness of the war spirit in England. and the reason for it is found in the answer to the question—where are John Bull's financlai interests imperited? They are most seriously imperiled in Turkey and those countries bordering on Turkey that might be locked up by a Russian control of the entrance to the Black Sea. The value of the annual shipments between England and these countries is estimated at $25,000,000, and it is feared that the seleure of Constantinople by Russians would mean the extension of Russia's protective policy so as to drive away the English merchants and encourage Russians.

There appears to be little doubt that Russia is bent on war in the early spring, and that Constantinople is the real object of it, whatever may be said about poor little Bulgaria. If war comes from Russia, it will be hard for France to keep out of it, and the military preparations of England look as though she was "loading for bear." An admiral of the fleet is reported to have said that Great Britain would have to maintain her supremacy in the Dardanelles and the British Channel. Though the necessity of controlling the latter is apparent, it is hard for Americans to see what right Great Britain has to supremacy in Turkish or Russian

He suggests an arm chair with metallic arms. The condemned would be seated in the chair and at the proper moment receive a full electri charge through the metallic arms. This would pass straight through his body across the chest and death would be instantaneous, A dynamo of torty-two horse power would so sufficient to accomplish the work with neatness and dispatch. ATHLOPHOROS,

General Logan's Sudden Death

Is a great shock to the nation. Few knew that he was even indisposed when the news of his death flashed over the wires and thousands of people stood aghast at the sunder, change from health and vigor to cold and shout death. For the post twenty-five years there has been no nan more constantly before the public than nan hore constantly before the passic tran-deneral John A. Legan. Through all his career be has been noted for his featlessness and purity of character, both in public and private life. Loved by friends and respected by enemies he will be moraned by all will be mourned by all.

His death adds another to the long list of vir tims to sudden and acute theumatism. Proba-bly no disease is so common as rheumatism, none is more sudden or dangetons, and there is certainly none which so completed haffles med-

Only one remedy has yet been discovered which is a sure and safe cure for theuratism and its twin disease, neuralgia, and that is Athiophoros. It all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by three terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered.
