Butterine Factories Sout Down. The butterine factories of C. H. Robinson

& Co., in Pittsburg, and of the Pittsburg Melting company, in Allegheny, closed down Wednesday morning on account of the state law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of electronargarine being declared consti-tional. Over 100 persons are thrown out of employment. There is $80,000 invested in the two factories. What electronargarine the companies have on hand is being packed and shipped to points outside the state. There was a commotion in the market. Some of the dealers were still selling oleomargarine, but will discontinue as soon as the stock on band is sold. They run the risk of being prosecuted. "You will hear a how! from the people in a few days," said one of the largest retail butter dealers. "I am seiling darry largest to 25 and 40 cents a pound. It will butter for 35 and 40 cents a pound. It will advance to 50 cents in a very short time. The sale of oleomargarine in this market has been enormous. Over 1,500 tube, averaging fifty prounds to the tub, have been sold weekly in Pittsburg. The poorer classes will feel the effect of this decision keenly." Mr. Farrester's Account of the Ratiroad Horror.

On Wednesday the INTELLIGENCER noted that Harry Forrester, of Baltimore, brother of A. Forrester, who is well-known here, was a passenger on the train wrecked near Tillin, Onto. In an interview Mr. Forrester, said: "I can't tell you much about the way the thing happened. It was as quick as a fissh, and how I got through the millions of spilnters and falling timbers I don't know. When I got up the cars were on fire, and I could hear the people, all crying out in agony for help. I was somewhat dazed, but these cries brought me to a realization of the agony for help. I was somewhat dezed, but these cries brought me to a realization of the calamity. The sights were terrible. There seemed to be wounded people everywhere, and all were crying for aid. I was covered with blood from the wounds on my head, and could not do much to resist. The greans of those in the burning car were awful. I was near the express messenger who was killed and the baggageman, Gates, who had all the flesh nearly torn off of one of his legs. There were only four of us, I think, out of eighteen, who got out of the smoking-car."

Mr. Forrester has a very severe contusion on his left shoulder, made, he thinks, by striking some timber when he and his seat were forced through the noof of the car. The skin on the back of his head is also loosened and forced forward. In addition he has bruises all over his body. He was very nervous, and not able, he said, to recall all the incidents that occurred. se cries brought me to a realization of the

A Widow's Ortof Causes & Tragic Suicide There was tremendous excitement Tuesday night in the Rue de Varennes, a most fashionable street in the Faubourg Saint Germain, Paris. The excitement was caused by the suicide of the Marquise de Roys.

Mine, de Roys was a charming blonde of thirty-four years of age and was a fashionable beauty. Dressed in a mauve silk robe de chambre, trimmed with point d'Alencon isce, she jumped out of a window of her apartment on the third story of No. 35 Rue de Varennes. In her fail she struck against the top of a lamp-poet, breaking her thigh and smashing the glass panes of the lamp into a thousand pieces. She then came down with a crash upon the stone and her skull with a crash upon the stone and her skul with a crash upon the stone and her skull was fractured.

It was a fearful thing to see the marquise as she lay on the pavement, with her beautiful blonde hair matted with blood and brains. This terrible suicide was due to over-excitement from which the marquise had been suffering since the death of her husband last week. The Marquise de Roys had been deputy for the department of Aube since 1872. The marquise leaves four children the eldest of whome is fourteen years old. Her death has cast a great gloom ever royalist society, and puts many families of the Faubourg into mourning.

Complaint About Coasting on Dinah's Hill, The Reading railroad authorities have complained to the mayor about the danger of dedding on Dinah's hill. Their trains are running constantly on Water street, and they use every precaution to prevent accident, but they fear that some one will be injured if the coasting is not stopped. The mayor will make an effort to prevent it. Dinah's hill is well-known as one of the favorate coasting hills in the city, and the boys who frequent it will not take kindly to the interference of it will not take kindly to the interference of their sport by the authorities.

From the Bradford Argus, Some genius gives us this definition: A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is that in which the sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is that on which the sleeper which carries the sleeper while he sleeps runs. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper the sleeper carries the sleeper over the sleeper under the sleeper until the sleeper which carries the sleeper jumps off the sleeper and wakes the sleeper in the sleeper by striking the sleeper under the sleeper, and there is no longer any sleeper sleeping in the sleeper on the sleeper.
