COASTING ACCIDENT ON ANN STREET, A Sleigh With a Number of Boys on It Run Into

at Orange and Ann Street. Willie Stouch, age about 12 years, met with a very serious accident while coasting on the Ann street hill on Saturday evening about 8 o'clock. He was on a sleigh with a number of other boys and was going down the hill at a very rapid rate. A sleigh was being driven along Orange street, and as this sleigh resched Orange and Ann streets, the boys sleigh was passing. The horse tramped on the sleigh and fell. The boys all managed to escape without injury, except young Stouch who was struck either by the horse's hoof or the runner of the sleigh on which he had been seated, the rear part of the sleigh having been raised from the ground when the horse's hoof struck it. Several deep gashes were cut in the side of his head. The lutured boy was taken to his home at his grandmother's, Mrs. John K. Reed's, where his wounds were dressed by Dr. Henry Carpenter. The boy suffered great pain on Saturday and Sonday. surfered great pain on Saturday and Sonday, butto-day is somewhat improved. The wo-cident was witnessed by a number of persons, and taking into consideration the great speed at which the boys sled was running it is a wounder that a number of the boys were not seriously in jured.

While the danger of coasting on Ann street is not as dangerous as on "Dunab's Hill," it is still dangerous on account of the large amount of travel on Orange and Chestnut streets, and there appears to be nothing left for the authorities to do but to coat Ann street with ashes the same as Dinah's hill.
