Tobogganing in Canada. Edmund Collins, in Brooklyn Magazine The scene upon a winter's evening is ple uresque and gorgeous. Shortly after dusk the guests begin to assemble, young and old, men and women, being for the greater part apparelled in proper costume, and bringing with them skates and toboggans. The lady wears a suit of blanket cloth, 'white, blue, myrtle, or magenta, the same being fancifully trimmed with colors to match. Upon her feet she has buff moccasins, and upon her ed a toque of rich color with a long stream ing tassel. The men wear similar costumes mee breeches, and long black stockings. It knee-breeches, and long black stockings. It frequently happens that neither moon nor star is to be seen upon one o' these festive evenings at the ball, and then an enormous bonlire, constructed of many cords of dry logs, burns in the midst of the grounds, its gusts of flame playing among the pines, and waking a thousand shadows into mad revel. Those who are afraid to descend the dizzy slides stand in the glare of the giant fire, and the ear furthest from the flame may turn white, while the nigh one is red, for the mercury is at the moment probable twenty degrees at the moment probable twenty degree below zero. It is seldom that a more gor geous spectacle is presented than when couple of hundred coatumed guests gather about this fire, the colors of their garment brightened by the glare, and gloomy deep of the pine woods forming a background to of the pine woods forming a background to the picture.

But all the excitement is in another direction. From the head of each of the slides, already referred to, descends an loy trough, already referred to, descends an loy trough, and along each slide hangs a row of Chinese lanterns, whose sober, unwavering glow is a constant rebuke to the mad reveling down the slippery steep. Each toboggan accommodates from two to four persons, the steerer throwing himself upon his side, and steering his conveyance in its lightning career by a quick touch of his moccasined tos. The speed of the toboggan is equal to that of a lightning express and during my first descent I imagined that I was falling sheer down a precipice; and my heart and complete interior economy seemed to rise into my throat. No object is distinguishable during the downward plunge; Chinese lanterns, returning toboganners, the key bank, and the motionless spectators, all being mingled like the example of a kaleidoscope. No one seemed to enjoy this exciting passage on much as the Canadian girl and a picturgled like the cusemble of a kaleidoscope. No one seemed to enjoy this exciting passage so much as the Canadian giri and a picture-que sight it is to see her as she is shot past, her to que and head wrap streaming behind, her eyes glesming with excitement. But either by night or day there is only the space of a heart-beat given you to note her look; for she goes past, bravely reliant upon the gallant steersman, with the impetuosity of a shot bolt. mpetucsity of a shot bolt.

The Effects of Mental Exhaustion. Many diseases, especially those of the nervous ystem, are the products of daily renewed mensystem, are the process a vocations often involve an amount of mental awar and tear very prejudicial to physical health, and the professions, if arduously pursued, are no less destructive to brain and nerve tissue. It is one of the most important attributes of Hoetetter's Stomach Bitters, that it compensates for this undue less of tissue, and that it imparts me energy to the brain and nerves. The rapidity with which it renews weakened mental energy and physical vitality is remarkable, and shows that its invigorating properties are of the highest order. Besides increasing vital stanning, and counteracting the effects of mental examination, this potential medicine cures and prevents lever and ague, rhoumatism, chronic dyspepsia and constitutions, kidney and uterine weakness and other complaints. Physicians also recommend it as a medicated stimulant and remedy. dexhaustion. Business avocations often in
