There was knother large andience at the many and dramatic company gave their second performance. A comedy, entitled "Taming a With," opened the performance and created a great deal of fun. The popular military drama, "The French Spy," was then given in an admirable cyle. The company is very strong in this play, and their noting was greated with the greatest enthusiasm. Miss Corn Nettern, the popular leading lady of the easystry, appeared as the Spy, and her work was of the best. She is a handsomely formed woman, and is very well adapted to the character. James R. Watte played the parts of Achmet Bcy and Mahommed with great success. His broad sword contest with Miss Netlson in the second act was very exciting. The remainder of the company did well. This evening they produce "Black Diamonda." to both the Democratic and parts, The candidates for the war warking bard during facets enough votes to assure and parts was been but to parts with the parties, and offices the transfer and ideases on both Democrate have secured the Laurer and Wilson on the countries, which is a gain of one members, W. The Little Doctor.

The neat, unique and most comprehensive little pamphlet is the "Free Advice" sent out by the Charles A. Vogeler Co., Baltimore, Md., to those using St. Jacobs Oil or need Star Cough to those using St. Jacobs Oil or Red Star Cough Cure, and can be had by patients sonding to them a statement of their case, with a two cent stamp. Nearly all such publications are in almanas form, cumbersome in shape and overburthened with matter entirely foreign to the treatment of disease. But the one noted is gotten up in a pocket edition size, convenient for the work basket or bureau drawer, and is brimful of useful counsel to the sick and afficted. It is of itself a little, traveling doctor, and is worth a thousand stamps to every home. It is intended as a helper to those using these remedies, to relieve suffering and to make a cure in each case certain.
