

LOUIS HANSON'S ESTATE. A ST. LOUIS DOCTOR GETS A PORTION OF IT UNEXPECTEDLY.

The son of a woman who married a wealthy New York tailor discovered and given over $50,000. The heir found by accident.

Richard J. Morrison, the New York public administrator, on Tuesday paid to William Preston Hill $40,241.48 in cash and turned over to him about $15,000 in bonds, stocks and jewelry, being his share of the proceeds of the estate of a man young Hill never saw and to-day the young man will start for his home in St. Louis with his windfall in his pocket.

The money belonged to the estate of Josephine E. Hanson, widow of Louis Hanson, the New York tailor who was killed himself or was killed by his wife July 4, 1853, on Storm King Mountain, near Newburgh, N. Y.

Richard J. Morrison was a man who was brought here as a tailor's cutter. He was a first-class workman and saved money enough to start in business. In 1861, he had been married to a woman who was a very rich woman with him as his wife, he advertised for a housekeeper and his advertisement was answered by a woman named Josephine E. Hanson, who was a very rich woman and a good talker, and Hanson was fascinated.

After her return she made herself so disagreeable that she was sent for a limited time. The suit was compromised after a time and he agreed to pay his wife $40,000. The money was paid to her and she was to be drawn up and signed July 5, 1865.

On the 3d, Mrs. Hanson sent for her husband and asked him to take her to the country for a few days, and she was to be drawn up and signed July 5, 1865.

Hanson died intestate, leaving an estate valued at $150,000. His widow put up the house and lot on the estate in the settlement and three months later before the estate was settled she started for Lancaster with a young man named Blair, who was a doctor, and she never returned.
