

ARROW DAY. No mortal hand can destroy. The arrow—the arrow of life— And shelter of the paroled earth— But let new forests now have birth.

This wondrous earth of ours demands That nature have her share of lands, Whom her bounty nature's hand— May rise for the sheltering dome.

The highest gift of man must give— That he with nature can agree— Can use his mind and hand to give Assistance for the things he see.

With sovereign grace then let us all— Respect to nature's earnest call, Restore again her forest loam, And nature will reward the rest.

POINTS FOR THE FARMER. New Injuries to Manure May Be Very Easily Avoided. From the Gloucester Telegraph.

Among some farmers there is a complaint that their horse manure "dies fangs" or passes through the heating process which is so intense that the manure is well burned up. This is exceedingly injurious to the manure, and can, and should, be prevented.

From the American Agriculturist. Farmers are sure of good prices for carefully reared mutton, and it is to their interest to send to market only the best. It will pay. The same remark applies to all live stock.

Valuable Points Concerning Hay. From the Prairie Farmer. A bulletin issued by Professor Sanborn, of the Missouri Agricultural college, referring to the economy of keeping hay in stacks or barns, says:

A Life Made Miserable. By dyspepsia is scarcely worth the living. A capricious appetite, heartburn, puzzling nervous symptoms, increased action of the heart after eating, sinking and bloating between meals and flatulence after, are among the successive indices of this harassing complaint.
