The clerk was ordered to insert in the dally papers imforming the people where seles, &c., may be dumped. In no case will persons be allowed to deposit such articles as tinware, brush or any other rubbish of that kind under a penalty.

A Narrow Escape.

This morning an old Italian woman made a narrow escape from being killed by the cars of the Pennsylvania railroad. Shortly before S o'clock she and another woman, each of whom had a basket of cold vituals, were standing close to the railroad track on the south side of Bitzer's cigar store engaged in conversation. A freight train approached from the cast and it appears that the Italian woman did not move sufficiently far away from the track. She was struck by the bumper of the engine and thrown over. Her face was slightly scratched by the tumble but her injuries were of no consequence what ever. The provisions which she carried in be basket were scattered in every direction.

vented by Neighbors From Kliling Hor-He Then Secures a Carving Katfe and cots His Throat From Har to Ear.

CINCINSATI, April 26 -Henry Heile, aged 31, of 616 Sycamore street, committed suicide at 5 o'clock this morning after making a desperate attempt on his wife's life. Hetle and his wife were in bed, the woman sleeping soundly when Helle sprang up with a wild shrick, seized a hatchet which he had secreted for the purpose, and struck a savage blow at his wife, who was, by this time, fully aroused. The blow was a glancing one, and the woman seized the hatchet and began fighting for life. Her screams meanwhile awakened the neighborhood, and to this the unfortunate woman owes her life. Her husband had wrested the hatchet from her and dealt her a frightful blow on the head laving open the scalp, almost fracturing the skull, She fell to the floor stunned and Helle was bending over her prostrated body to finish the bloody work when neighbors broke in the door. Heile fled into the dining room and seizing a huge carving knife, rushed through into another room, shouting that he would kill the entire family. Seeing that his capture was inevitable, Heile suddenly drew the carving knile across his throat, severing it from ear to ear. He fell to the floor and died in a few minutes. Mrs. Helle may possibly recover. The saddest feature of the affair is that Mrs. Helle is enciente and the shock has precipi-tated a premature child birth. Mr. Heile was a shipping clerk in the office of the Big Four ratiroad company. He had long been troubled mentally, and was undoubtedly insane when he awoke this morning. Deceased is a son of B. Heile, a wealthy and well-known business man of this city and had been mar ried six years and had two children.

Henry Frysinger, editor of the Chester Democrat, was accested Monday on a capias charged by William Gibson with slander. Gibson was an applicant for a position in the Crosser postoffice, and asked Mr. Frysinger to sign his petition. The editor refused on the ground that the applicant used intoxi-cants, and after a few words the men parted. Mr. Frysinger informed Postmaster Ashmead of his action, and Gibson lost the chance of appointment, whereupon he instituted suit for slander. The Democrat's editor furnished
