Young Alpheus Myrick, a handsome young sailor, kissell his fair young wile twentyseven years ago and departed for foreign lands. This was just prior to the outbreak of the civil war. After a certain lanse of time his friends received letters, but during the war all traces of his whereabouts were lost It was ascertained that Alpheus got on in his profession and became an officer, and test he cruised in different portions of the world on the high seas, but never did he re-

The "Flying Dutchman" was not more abiquitous. Here, there, everywhere sailed Alpheus Myrick, but his father and bis wife were not gladdened by a glimpse of his countenance. Finsily a report, apparently well suthenticated, came from over the seas to Cape Cod, which put an end to suspense. It stated that the lost son and husband, while serving on an English steam vessel, on a passage from England to the East, had gone to the bottom of the Indian occan with the steamer. The latter floundered in a cyclone. The poor wife, who had all along been fond and true, then gave up to the seeming inevitable. She wiped her fair face, down which the trickling tears had flowed, when Warren Loveling, a worthy citizen of the adjacent village of Chatham, asked her to be his wife. Happiness ensued, and the birth of two children fitted the measure of Mr. Loveling's joy. ubiquitous. Here, there, everywhere salled

Loveling's joy.

A short time ago the postmaster at Brewater received a letter of inquiry from Alpheus Myrick. Happening to be at Liverpool, he thought that he would write to his old home to ascertain if his wife was allve, and how many of the Myrick family were gathered to their fathers.

many of the Myrick family were gathered to their fathers.

The letter was passed over to a brother of Alpheus Myrick by the postmaster, to whom it was addressed. Charles Myrick was astounded by the intelligence. He supposed his brother long since dead. When he recovered from his amazement he told his sister the startling development and sat down to communicate with the wanderer. In the letter which Charless Myrick addressed to his communicate with the wanderer. In the let-ter which Charles Myrick addressed to his brother, the family history was seetched from the date of Alphens' departure up to the present time. The story of the second marriage of his wife and the reasons therefor were related in detail. After the letter was sent Charles Myrick enjoined secrecy as to the discovery of his brother's presence in the flash.

One night last week a gray-haired man over nity years of age slighted at the little station of the Old Colony railroad at Brewster when the evening train from Boston arthur the first particular to the Myrick rived. Repairing at once to the Myrick homestead the stranger disclosed his identity. It was Alpheas Myrick. He had journeyed from England hither to get a glimpse once more of the home of his boyhood and to see his old friends again. A person who knew him well and conversed with him, relates the following:

"I should have known it was Alpheus

"I should have known it was Alpheus Myrick the minute I clapped my eyes on him, even if I hadn't known he had come back to life and was expected home every day. It was the same chap he was twenty-seven years ago, only grown older, and he didn't seem to have grown old near so fast as we have here in Brewster. He said that when he went from London in that small stramer it was a stormy voyage they made. stramer it was a stormy voyage they made, and when they finally did get into port they were seventy-live days overdue. From the Indies he cruised about everywhere, taking good care to keep away from this country while the war lasted, as his father had while the war lasted, as his father had warned him. Letters were not answered which he sent, and he quit writing them.

"Finally, about seven years after he had left Brewster he was in a port in South America, where some Cape Cod fishermen were lying too, and he once heard several of them taiking about news from home, and one man from Chatham said: 'Well, they say that poor Alphous Myrick's widow has married again—a man at Chatham.' That was "On the strength of that he gave up follow-ing the sea and determined to settle down right there in South America and never go back to Cape Cod again. He never wrote any letters after that or tried to get communica-tion from home. He stayed there for a number of years without going to ses, and was but a few miles all the time from the South American port where his brother Charles was sailing to, back and forth from New York. After a while he took to the sea again, and became as great a wonder as before, going all over the world, but never near Cape Cod. Last winter he was in Liverpool and it was there he wrote from to find out if all hands in Brewster were dead and what kind of a reception be might expect if he should com-again-a man at Chatham.' That was Alpheus Myrick did not receive the letter sent to him by his brother Charles. Although he was aware of the marriage of his wife he could not resist the desire in his heart to return to the Cape once more. After seeing his brother and sister he returned to Boston never to set face in Brewster again. He has ere this left the country.

To Dislodge the Enemy,

When it takes the form of disease of the kidneys or bladder, is a task well nigh impossible of accomplishment. Renal and vesical maiadies are more obstinate than any others. Counteract, therefore, the earliest indications of inactivity of the imany organs with Hostet-ter's Stomach Bitters, which possesses, among other excellent qualities, those of an efficient disretic. The degree of stimulation apparent from its use reaches, but never goes beyond the bounds of safety. It invigorates always, never sirritates. Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, are diseases successfully combatted in their incipiency with this benign medicinal stimulant and tonic. Besides reinforcing and regulating the kidneys and bladder, the Bitters is a specific for fever and ague, constipation and dyspepsia.

le a necessity with nearly every one. This is the best time of year is which to purify the blood, to restore the lost appetite, and to build up the system, as the body is now especially succeptible to bonefit from medicine. The peculiar medicinal merit of, and the wonderful cures by flood's Sarsanarilla have made it the most popular spring medicine it cures serouls, eat rheum, and all humors, bilitousness, dyspepsis, headache, hidney and liver complaints, estarth and all affections caused or promoted by low state of the system or impure blood. Don't put it off, but take flood's Sarsaparilla now.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"We have found Hood's Barsaparilla to be an excellent blood purifier. In one case in particular, where other medicines failed, it took only three bottles of Hood's Barsaparilla to produce the desired effect." Sisyan A. Falsom, St. Anne's Anylum, St. Louis, Mo.

"I have been subject to severe headaches, and have had a humor on my face. Hood's Barsaparilla has done me so much good that I am almost entirely free from headache, and the humor has disappeared." Walter Gelbert, Islington, Norfolk County, Mass.

A fair, honest trial of Hood's Saraparilla will convince any reasonable person that this pseuliar preparation does possess great medicinal merit. We do not claim that every bottle will secomplish a miracle, But we do know that nearly every bottle, taken according to directions does produce positive benefit and makes a new and constant friend. This is thoroughly demonstrated in New England, where Hood's Sarasparilla has been known to the people for lo years, and where its sale is continually increasing.

Builds Up the System.

"I must say Hood's Saraparilla is the best medicine I ever used. List spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever to soon I folt as if I could de as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." Man M. V. Bayand, Atlantic City, N. J.

"It is with cheerfulness that I record a just verdict in favor of Hood's Sarasparilla as being the most satisfactory family remedy I ever used.
Three bottles cured me of dyspapsis of long

TRADE S.S.S. MARK

About twenty years ago I discovered a little sore on my cheek, and the doctors pronounced it cancer. I have tried a number of physicians. but without receiving any permanent benefit. Among the number were one or two specialists. The medicine they applied was like fire to the sore, causing intense pain. I saw a statemen, in the papers telling what S. S. S. had done for others similarly afflicted. I procured some at once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was healing up. My general health had been bad for two or three years—I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had a severe pain in my breast. After taking siq bottles of S. S. S. ny cough left me and I grew stouter than I had seen for several years. My cancer has bealed over all but a little opt about the size of a half dime, and is rapidly disappearing. 1 would ad-vise every one with cancer to give 8, 5, 5, a fair MES. NANCY MCCONAUGHEY, Ashe Grove, Tippecanoe, Co, Ind.
