A Good Measure.

The House accepted the Senate's license II without debate and by a large majority It acted very wisely. High license is most sensible way of checking the will attending the liquor traffic; at least is so held by all who do not believe in that traffic; and these are a great derity of the people, who have been that by experience that men cannot be theid by the law from eating or drinkfrom smoking, snuffing or chew or from any like indulgences to h their fiesh inclines them, even agh they be hurtful. It is a fundaat sumptuary legislation, which binds and of the public peace, is wrong ; and one of these needs. They are useful properly used. It is only in their that they are injurious. The right at a man to enjoy a glass of wholesome near or whisky is not justly taken from him use his brother cannot exercise it at abusing it. The law must guard s public peace against the abuse by the thim ; but must not take them away. The high license principle recommends on who desires to see the use of liquot ined and protected but not prohibited. sh good people as Chief Justice Agnew, leve in prohibition, are or losed to high license, as shutting the door against prohibition. But their fear of this result is of iner a testimonial of their belief in te value of high license as a restraining uence upon the evils of liquor selling. The new law will lessen the number of places where liquor is sold. It will put the business into more careful hands. It will abolish unlicensed places. The law, while charging a high price for a privilege, will need to protect the privilege from invasion: and while doing this will demand and seours from those engaging in it a strict obedience to its behests. The man who has a costly privilege will be careful lest he lose it. We can look for nothing but beneficial results from the new law. The legislature should supplement it with one punishing the manufacture or sale of adulterated rerages; though high license will tend also to modify this crying evil.

That Growing Capital. The Funnylvania railroad increases its ital sight million dollary, at one jump, The P and the stock stool the shock very well, the price failing less than a dollar a share. The Pennsylvania has a patent method, all its own,of raising money, and it has proved very successful. It increases its stock by allotting the privilege of taking it to its stockholders, whenever the market price is high enough to make this offer a privilegs. The consequence has been that for years the price has not got above sixty, but it has staid up sufficiently to enable the company at divers times to unload new stock upon its shareholders. At a late annual meeting the stockholders gave it the privilege of increasing the stock fifteen millions, and so far about twelve millions of the additional amount have been offered It is said that the directors will hereafter ask for the privilege of increasing the stock at their pleasure, whenever they can dispose of it at par.

The Pennsylvania railroad has an unlimited capacity at present for swallowing money. It takes from the shareholders a large part of the earnings for improve ments and extensions, and calls for all the money it can raise on the sale of additional stock at par. Probably the money is wisely expended in most cases, and will add to the future income of the road. It has gone so far in the path of extension in the past that it has to keep going to keep up with the demands of the business. It has endless invitations to profitable feeders, and so long as it confines itself to building local branches, it will use its money well. But stockholders should know what is going to be done with it before they vote it. Voting an increase of stock is equivalent to sub mitting to an assessment upon their stock : though it has a very different aspect, because somebody else advances the money for them, if they do not want to give it.

Medern Alchemy.

The Pacific railway commission finds a rich field of discovery and is getting some very interesting evidence. It turns out that Jay Gould made over three million iollars by the consolidation of the Union Pacific and Kansas Pacific railway, which profit should have gone to the railway. It was done in a characteristic way and by the alchemist's power of turning water into gold, which these big Wall street pluckers have. A lot of worthless securities, costing Gould about an eighth of their par value, were traded at par by him for stock of the consolidated road which was worth its par value in the market. This consolidated stock was made for the purpose, by the simple process of voting an increase of the capital, the voting being done by the fellows who were to get it.

THE so-called American Exhibition in London seems to be pretty well condemned to failure, but the Wild West show is un doubtedly a great success, and that part of the entertainment may help to keep the rest of the enterprise affort The Exhibition sp-Petri to be a private speculation and its management has been distinguished by a degree of flunkeyism that has greatly dis-gusted true Americans.

A WRITER in Scribner's Magazine tells some very interesting stories about earth-quakes and the weather, which rather tend to revive our respect for the almanacs of our

Down in Central America, where earthquakes are frequent, the people have learned to connect them with a peculiar hazy appear-ance of the atmosphere, and it is quite a common thing before an earthquake to hear the natives observing, "It is earthquake weather." Scientific men have given this matter some attention, but it seems a little strange that the weather bureau has not made some use of this peculiar warning of coming shakes. The coast of Italy and France, the valleys of the Appenines, were enveloped in this peculiar haze for several days before the earthquake, and it has been entioned in connection with the Charlesto convuision. One theory accounts for it on the supposition that cracks in the ocean bed have admitted great volumes of water into the moltan internal department of the earth, and that the baze is caused by the steam es-caping through countless minute fasures in the rocks along the coast. It is said that the waters of the Mediterranean fell considera bly just before the earthquake, and that the Genoese fishing fleet at once put out to sea, fearing some trouble of the kind. Surely signs that are so easily interpreted by ignor-ant fishermen should be made use of by

But this writer appears to think that after all there is a vast amount of reckless guess-ing done by the weather-wise men in Wash-ington, and he mays that the farmer who follows a series of well devised rules about the weather, such as almanace give, is often as near right as the man who pins his faith to Old Probabilities. A cyclone, after following a certain curve for many hundred miles, may auddenly shoot off at a tangent without Docron BATTEN, senior physician of the Gloucester infrmary, has delivered an ad-dress before a branch of the British Medical association on the subject of physical educa-tion for girls. He boildy advocates boxing and gives what context to tion for girls. He boldly advocates boxing and gives what appear to be very good res-soms for his choice of a very unfeminine sport. Boxing or feacing, he says, give a symmetrical development of the whole body as do many outdoor sports and they can be induiged in spart from the gaping crowd where convenient costumes can be worn. He insists upon the necessarily of varying the games and notes in this connection "the contracted chest and the stoop of the mere cyclist." Pupils get very tired of the gymnssium and of the routine of calisthenics ; and he would have at least two afternoose a week devoted to games played in a large open space where every girl would be reuired to wear a costume that would not impede her movements. As he recommends football, cricket, tennis and other games of speed and endurance, the result of his system would probably be a very manly lot of young ladies. The doctor appears to be an extremist, but the general tendency seems to be towards more open air exercise for young people of both sexes.
