hrilling, Son this of a Pour Creaties

The editor of the Eastern Province Herald writes from Port Elisabeth calling attention to Hoar bratality in the Transvani. The accuracy of the account is vouched for:

My name is Sam. I am about 24 years of age. On Monday last I was discharged from the Pretoria jail, after being imprisoned for two months. I was sent to prison because I was said to have been impudent to a white woman. I was not impudent, but Mrs. D. said that I had enticed the girl Rachel to run away. The field corner came with a black constable and said: "Catch that impudent woman and take her to the prison." Marsha said that I should be taken to the landdrost. First I was taken to the landdrost. The landrost said that I must pay a fine of £3 or go to the tronk for two months and receive twenty-five lashes. Mrs. D. said that I had come to entice her girl away, and that Carriotte was the impudent one. Charlotte was fined £1 los, which was paid by S. Coetzee, and abe had to work it out. I was fined £3, but as I could not pay I was sent to the tronk and ordered to get twenty five lashes. I was locked up for three weeks, and then the landdrost came to the troub and ordered me out to receive the twenty five lashes. I was locked up for three weeks, and then the landdrost came to the troub and ordered me out to receive the twenty five lashes. I was locked up for three weeks, and then the landdrost came to the troub and ordered me out of my back while I was flogged. I had all my clothes taken oft with the exception of my chemise, which was held round my loins. It was after breakfast that I was flogged. I had all my clothes taken oft with the exception of my chemise, which was held round my loins. It was after breakfast that I was flogged. I had all my clothes taken oft with the exception of my chemise, which was held round my loins. It was after breakfast that I was flogged they sent for a doctor. He pulled open my mouth and put to me at uff to my nous, I think he came in the middle of the night. The next day I was told to go and finish the washing of er chemise being tied about her as mine ras. She was then flogged on her shout-ers. She was put in the tronk for two days in that occasion. When she got out she went to the landdroat's house, and as she refused on that occasion, when weng to dutam went to the landdrost's house, and as she refused to work in consequence of her back being sore she was sent back for four days and to receive a flogging of twenty-five lashes. As her back was too raw to be flogged again in the same place I was told to roll up her chemise so that she could be flogged lower down. That flogging took place in the women's yards. Mr. Van Heenen was present, and the women was flogged by "Jack." Van Heenen would not let me be beaten at first, because, he said, I was too weak. About three weeks after I was put in the trouk the landdrost came up in order to see that his sentence on me was carried out, and I was tied up and flogged in his presence, the landdrost standing in front of me. When the landdrost was told that I would not finish the washing of his clothes, he ordered me to be put in the atocks, and I was kept in the stocks for two days and two nights, and kept

WOMBN IN BUSINESS. A Female Advocace speaks Eloquently For

Business men and heads of government departments have semetimes said to me that sev have tried women clerks, found them in satisfactory, and have given up the experient. Their objections are, that women are clined to ask and accept favors, and to exhey, the employers, find it difficult or uneart to " bring women to time, " and de-pleasant to "bring women to time," and demand the exact and prompt performance by them of all their duties, such as would be required of a man in the same place.

There is no excuse for any woman who takes this line of action, when she has secured work. She should know that every time she sake for a half hour's leave of absence, every time she excuses herself, with a sinite, or worse yet, a tear, for some piece of carelessness, she is injuring not only her own chances of earning a livelihood, but those of all other women who have to go out into the world to earn bread.

But I have never falled, when opportunity

But I have never failed, when opportunity offered, to point out to those who so frankly gave me their objections to women cierks, that upon the employers themselves rested fully half of the responsibility for the failure. To my question, "Did you really take pains to engage an intelligent, industrious woman, expecting of her the same work your manito engage an intelligent, industrious woman, expecting of her the same work you would have expected of a man, and let her know it, and did you offer the wages ordinarily paid to a man, with the understanding that she should do the same work as would have been required of a man in the same place?"

The reductant answer has nearly always been the control of the cont

He who expects little of a servant will get intie, usually; and he who gives half pay will get half service. For the hundreds of women who have at some time in their lives worked, in a slipshod fashion, in some of-fice for a little white, all the time kindly nee for a little while, all the time kindly treated by their employers, but who found themselves suddenly dismissed some bright morning, without explanation, it may be, these objections to women clerks, made by friendly men, often, should furnish food for reflection. And as for the hundreds of officials and business men who have at some served to their lives engaged some women to icials and business men who have at some period in their lives engaged some woman to work for them because she would work chesper than a man, and then never clearly explained her duties to her, expecting and demanding very little of her, excusing her faults ane carelesaness, until at last, with patience worn out, they have discharged her wiffhout telling her the reason, and when ever after have vowed that "women are no good in an office"—is there not something for them to think of, too?

Langevity. From the Sanitary &rs. It has been many times said by intelligent writers that no authentic case could be ointed out wherein a person had really ived to the age of 100 years. The celebration some years since of the 100th birthday of the late Sir Moses Monte-The celevation some years since of the lotth birthday of the late Sir Moses Monteflore gave rise to not a little newspaper discussion of the question. A direct descendant of Dr. Thomas Parr, of London, says the records of the family will show that Dr.

Parr, who died in 1885, was 152 years old.
The father of this man is said to be living in Liverpool at the age of ninety-eight. The grand inther died at 102 years, and the lather's great uncle, issac Parr, is said to be living in Regent street, London, at the age of 130, and again the brother of this uncle is living in Noho street, London, at the extreme age of 132 years. There are many instances reported in this country wherein persons have lived for 100 years or more. A press dispatch to the New York Sun from Syracuse two or three years ago spoke of Thos. Van Vailin as having died in that city at the age of 105. He was a pensioner of the war of 1812. His father, Abel, was accidentally killed when he was 105 years of age. His grandisther lived to the street of the strendisther lived. was a pensioner of the war of 1812. His father, A bel, was accidentally killed when he was 105 years of age. His grandfather lived to be 115, and a brother of his grandfather lived to be age of 112. The latter left three sons, each of whom lived to be a centenarian. A few years since Mrs. Lucy Luther, of Hadivne, Ut., celebrated her 102d year. Mr. Nash, of Westport, Conn.—in 1881 we believe—interviewed not less than ten thousand people and discovered twenty-three centenarians in that state. We have a clipping from a New Hogland paper to the effect that over thirty persons had been traced in the New England states who attained the age of 100. The names and residences of twelve of them were given with minute detail as to place and date of birth. There was lately living in Marshifeld, Wis., a man who was born in 1778, his father having been one of Astor's far traders, and his mother a squaw. To the above hig stories collected by Dr. Foote in the Health Monthly, we may add that mortuary reports of Baltimore, Unlosso, and other cities bring us instances every week of decease at or over 100 years.

Fourteen more centenarians, making sixtysix in all, are now reported upon by the Collective Investigation Committee " of the British Medical association.

One public perusages are threatened with a new penalty—the entreme celebrity. It is maded that photographe have been taken of the president of the United States and Mrs. Cleveland on Stundays, while they sit in their pow at church, by indestigable artists, who, armed with "detective" cameras, lease themselves in the gallery. If this presides he universally adopted our celebrities will be afraid to go to church, because it is obvious from the enforced stillness which one is expected to charve in a place of worship, that a photographer has a good chance of securing a likeness, even when the light is bad. It is, we are afraid, not possible, even with the sensitive plates, to secure portraits of the preschers while pouring forth his impassioned elequence. This is a pity, from a commercial point of view. Portraits of Spurgeon, Dr. Parker, Camon Farrar, and other popular men, taken while in the pulpit, would have an enormous sale. The first-named preacher we indeed taken some twenty years ago in the set of preaching; but then he pessed himself for the purpose, and a fax simile of the restrum in the Tabernacle was erected in the studio.

A Tribute to a Wite,

A Tribute to a Wife.

Robert J. Burdette publishes a paper of reminiscences, entitled "Confessions of a Reformance of the Wife of the gentle pathon which has always tempored and purified his work and breathing the fondest love for his dead wife, to whom he pays the following tribute in closing:

"As I close this paper I miss the loving collaboration that with so much grace and delicacy would have better prepared these pages for the reader. The first throb of literary ambition, my earliest and later successes, so far as I have been successful, whatever words of mine men may be pleased to remember most pleasantly, whatever of earnestness and high purpose there is in my life, whatever inspiration I ever had or have that enters into my work and makes it more worthy of acceptance. I owe to the greatest, best and wisest of critice and collaborators, a loving, devoted wife. And if ever I should win one of the prises which men sometimes give to those who amuse them, the wreath should not be placed on the jester who laughs and sings, but on the brow of her who inspired the mirth and the song."

On the ocean, cares little about a storm. He overboard or not. But, set right by a wineglassful or two of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters he feels renewed interest in his personal safety. This fine corrective neutralizes in brackish water-often compulsorily drank on shipboard, to the grievous detriment of health-the permissions impurities which give rise to disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. To the mariner, the tourist, Western pioneer and miner, the Bitters is invaluable as a means of protection against malaria, when its seeds are latent in air and water. To the effects of overwork, mental or manual, it is a most reliable antidote, and to the debilitated and nervous, it affords great and speedily felt relief and vigor.

Oil, at 12 cents.
Wm. H. Vanderford, Esq., Editor of the Demo-cratic Advocate, Westminster, Md., writes that he like used Dr. Buil's Cough Syrup and knows it to be a good medicine, Try it, Try it, E cents stocks for two days and two nights, and kept without food the whole time. I know of six women being flogged while I was in the tronk. All were flogged with the cato'-nine-tails, and all were beaten by "Jack," who does all the flogging in the jail.

"I never took any medicine that did me so much good in so short a time as Hood's Sarasparilla. I was very much run down, had no strength, no energy, and fait very tired all the time. I commenced taking Hood's Sarasparilla, and before I had used one bottle felt like a different person. That extreme tired feeting has gone, my appetite returned, and it toned me up generally. By brother and sister have also received great benefit from it." Clana W. Puntre, Shirley, Mass.

"I must say Hood's Saranparlia is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did intigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Saranparlila, and soon I felt as if I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." Mas. M. V. Bayanp, Atlantic City, N. J.
