THE LANCASTER DAILY IN FELLIGENCER, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1, 1887.

Trance is new passing a crisis serious not only to Frenchman, but to all of Eu-rope. For the question involved is noth-ing less than whether peace or war shall be the order of the year, and the character of the answer seems to depend very largely upon the character of General Bou-If he is the unscrupulous and ambitious man that his enemies have described him, he will have very little trouble in using a Paris mob for the overthrow of the present ministry and the inauguration of a policy looking towards revenge as its avowed object. If his ambition is a worthy one and is dominated by patriotism, the present danger will be passed easily and revenge will become, as time goes on, less and less the popular dream of France.
