A BAR WITH MAST SAME.

A crooked stranger, who is known under a number of aliasts, was arrested in this city on Saturday night by Officer Leman. Several days ago the man arrived in this city with a days see the man arrived in this city with a woman. They stopped at the Morrel Horse hotel, West King street, where they registered as C. F. Althouse and wife, of York. The man informed the hotel proprietor and others that he was a horse dealer. On Saturday evening he and the woman were walking around town, when they were observed by Robert Easton, a well known business man of Williamsport, who happened to be in the city. He at once who happened to be in the city. He at once recognized the man as the one who had been operating in Williamsport recently. It ap-pears that the stranger while in that city pur-chased a carload of scrap iron of Mr. Easton's firm without paying for it. Before he got away with it his character was discovered. himself, he knew that he had beaten several other parties in Williamsport and the police of that city were anxious for a look at his face. He told Officer Leman about the man and complaint, on the information received, was made before Alderman Spurrier. Officer Leman kept trace of the man and woman and dogged their footsteps until they returned to the Sorrel Horse. Here the officer took the man into custody. He was placed in the station house where he gave his name as C. B. Bartow. Word was at once telegraphed to the authori ties at Williamsport. Last evening a telegram was received by Chief of Police Smith telling him to hold the man. At 2:27 this morning Chief of Police Warren, of Williamsport, arrived in this city and at 6:27 left for home taking the prisoner with him. The man i wanted there to answer two charges. It is said that it is Engle, although he claims that it is not. He has been a dealer in scrap iron, and one gentleman of this city did business with him under the name o Engle more than ten years ago. He was it trouble with a Columbia girl named Ida Raight in Philadelphia some years ago under the name of Engle, and at that time he came in contact with Officer Leman, who re-membered him well. He admits that he is the man who was in that trouble and that he then gave his name as Engle When he purchased the watch in Wil liamsport he gave his name as Henry Fisher. Last week he bought a suit of clothing at Myers & Rathvon's and then said his name was Irwin Cline. On his person, when arrested, was found a postal card, in regard to some scrap iron, which was addressed to Fitz Hugh Ashby. The accused says that he has an object in changing his name, but it is not because of anything crooked. The woman who was with him did not accompany him back to Williamsport. He Is Fond of Horses. Saturday afternoon H. W. Hammond, who lives at Blue Ball, drove to this city and put his horse and buggy up at the Franklin house. Shortly after Mr. Hammond had left the hotel a boy appeared and said that he had been sent by his uncle for the team. The hostler believed the story and gave the horse and buggy to the boy. When Mr. Hammond returned he said that no one had permission to take his team. The police were then notified and they were put on the track of the thief. They traced him around the town and suburbs, and finally Chief Smith took him into custody on the street with the team. The boy proved to be John Hoover, who on the day that Barnum's show exhibited here. stole the team of another man. That case is yet pending against him, and he will now have to answer another charge of horse stealing. Alderman Fordney committed him for a hearing.

packed with people to see a good performance, and they all went away satisfied with their in-vestment. The only serious fault we saw with the show was that there was not enough of seats the show was that there was not enough of seats for the people who were under the tent, as a large number of persons were compelled to stand, but they were repaid for this inconventence by what they saw. The trained horse in the first act was something which surprised the audience and the trapeze and horizontal bar performing was excellent. Charlie Maurrittia, familiarly known as "Humply Dumpty," delighted the audience in the character of a clown. He has been in York before, and it is worth the price of admission to see him in his performance. The whole show was well received. The order was perfect. This evening another performance will be given, and no one should miss formance will be given, and no one should miss this show, as the price of admission is within reach of all. - York Dispatch, June 11.
