LANCASTER, JUNE 98, 1987.

The Summer's Crashes.

The summer has opened with crashes the coffee, wheat and stock markets. ich all have been strongly boomed by ing cliques and advanced to prices ere above the natural value. The s that have came to the movers are not national disasters. They indicate no weakness in the business condition of he country. They were wholesome failmen, and simply mark the collapse of a markle. Those who attempted to boom the market were found without the hand their claim, when they were d upon to do so, and they have lost heir stake. Some innocent people, who gave them credit, are involved in their fall. A bank has been cleaned out by the blers in their desperate effort to susmaelves, and is left a wreck. Others bly have been crippled and some more ay go to the wall eventually through their ds. But the disaster will have no m'er extent than this. It is not all a sign of business decadence. It upon the country when its business in in a sound condition. And emphasizes the fact, which has been long apparent, markets does not show the state of the buiness of the country. They have fallen uto speculative hands, and their prices are ed up and down independently of invalues or business conditions. is no doubt that the business of the country is good. The earnings of the railroads are great. Upon their good condition the prices of their stocks have been carried up, probably too rapidly. The flurry in the coffee and wheat markets and the failure of the Cincinnati bank have been seized as the occasion for a bear raid upon prices in Wall street, which has been sucsful for the time under the favorconditions. But the railroad business continues good, and offers fair promise of dividends upon their stocks. Mining, manufacturing and merchandizing are not affected by the troubles in the speculative centres. Their stimulation pidly growing. Its development cannot be checked by the failure of the ambitious efforts of a few rash men. This man Harper, who stands out as the shief figure among the fallen gamblers of nt, is a figure that constantly arises and falls in every country and time. John Bright, bold and unscrupulous; encouraged by success and led on by greed, Harper enjoyed a high repute as a financier and was held to be a wonder and a prophet. He was simply daring, and disregardful of the become of experience, and scornful of safe pathways. His successes were known and his failures concealed; and it is probable that his latest venture was taken in the attempt to conceal the narrowness of the

has not been excessive, and they are not likely to be flattened out for a while. The country is great and its population is ra-fortune which his speculations had left him and to recover the financial position he had lost. He had built up for himself a name and position which was not to be lost without a struggle. But it is all gone, and with it the respect of his fellow-citizens, who find that in his extremity the man they honored has proved both knave and fool. The lesson ought to be a wholesome one to the adventurous Cheerful Railroad Figures.

The Railway World reports a remarkable gain in the earnings of railroads during the month of May over the same month of 1886. Only nine roads reported a decrease and but two of these reported a serious ine. A report of the gross earnings of one hundred and two roads during May, 1887, shows that the aggregate amount was $26,132,332, against $22,594,531 in May,

1886, an increase of $3,537,301, their increase in mileage during the year being from 57,154 to 60,065. The Financial Chronicle publishes a table showing the earnings of 59 important roads in the first four months of 1887 as compared with the same period of 1886, and the total increase of net earnings is placed at $8,-476,791. In this table the roads are grouped in nine classes, and the six "coal companies" how the largest total increase of net earnings, $2,809,420. The coal companies include the Reading railroad and the Coal and Iron company ; the Allegheny Valley ; the Buffalo, New York & Philadelphia ; no Northern Central and the New Jersey ral. The seven trunk lines, including Erie and the Pennsylvania, show the ent largest increase, $1,349,228. The of the Atchison, Topeka, & Santa Fe,

This report affords the best indication mible of the steady advance of pros-city; for the business of the railroads is at reliable measure of the general te of business in the whole country, and it will be strange indeed if these prosperous figures of the early spring are not followed by an active advance in the summer and

A House of Refuge Lesson.

A House of Refuge tragedy is reported on New York which should set the philtropist to thinking. A boy killed a ger on Randall's Island, the weapon a being a base ball bat and the reason on that he was homesick and wanted to great city. His father is a well-to-do farmer in the interior of the state. It is shown that he was one of several boyish conspir-ators who had entered into a scheme to escape from confinement. He, as the bold-est spirit, was selected to knock down the keeper, and it is recorded that he fell asleep with club in hand waiting for the time to be ripe for his purpose.

Surely this is not a case of murder, but of boyish impulses running riot. Some one is to blame that this boy now occupies a felon's cell. He was very probably originally sent off to a reformatory institution because his parents were not patient enough to essay the task of moulding his character. He has now shed his fellowman's blood, and wears the brand of Cain upon his brow.

There is food for thought in this tragedy for parents and for judges. No child should be sent to a public reformatory until all other means of bringing about a reform have been exhausted. It causes a severe pang to the right-thinking man or woman to hear of a father or mother thrusting their child into a public institution It tells a tale of family discord and parental carelessness, and bespeaks a gloomy future for all parties concerned. When parents weary of the crosses that their children often put upon them, let them not give up the struggle of reform to the state. Let them remember the New York lad who now occupies a murderer's cell because his parents permitted him to grow up like a weed and then tore up and threw him away when he most needed protection.

Why Can't They Row!

The University of Pennsylvania has every advantage of numbers, wealth and water for the production of first-class oarsmen, and yet year after year finds the University crew struggling for a place among the third or fourth rate crews of the colleges and with small ambition and less chance of the lead.

With the medical and scientific schools there is in the Pennsylvania institution an abundance of rowing material; and there is wealth enough among the students to supply boats and prizes for the encouragement of the sport. They have a grand stretch of water through one of the most beautiful parks in the world, and a racing course which, in spite of the growls of English visitors who were beaten on it in 1876, is far superior to anything England can boast of.

The University also possesses a most impressive and uncivilized college cheer These things being thus, many people are at a loss to explain why the Pennsylvania boys don't learn how to row. What's a university for, anyhow?

THE New York Tribune says that the aggregate population of the country July 1, 1887, would be 61,763,818, unless the increase by excess of births over deaths has been emailer during the present than during the proceeding decades. Without any allowance or Canadian immigration the population July 1 would appear on this basis to be about 61,700,000. The fact that all treasury estimates give lower figures is in the main ex-plained by their failure to make separate alowance for the immigration, which has been larger during the recent than in any previous decade. As the table shows, the additien by immigration alone has exceeded 83,800,000 in seven years, and has been a most half the increase from all other

THE Philadelphia Inquirer displays surprising ignorance of the facts concerning the electoral commission of 1876. It deprecates any attempt to investigate the history of the commission and says that its decision should rest unquestioned because it "heard all the evidence produced on either side and after due consideration of it decided in favor of the Republican candidate." The commission refused to hear evidence and cost a partisan vote of eight to seven.

FARRAGUT'S famous flagship, the Hartford, is by no means a wreck, as may be thought from the reported condemnation of her by the examining board. That board acts on rules which direct condemnation if the cost of necessary repairs should exceed a certain figure, and it is probable that in this case it will be exceeded. The figure is fixed low because yeasels of this class are of but little use in a modern navy, and the department believes that business and sentiment do not mix well. Perhaps they do not as a rule, but the business of navy and army building is singular in the fact that sentiment is a force of value in the construction of an efficient army or navy. Flags, music and decorations, and all the pomp and panoply of war give evidence of the value placed upon senti-ment by masters of the art, and it is natural to suppose that our sailor boys will be more proud of their country, and firm in their patriotism, if they have constant reminders of our giorious naval history in such relies of desperate battle as the Constitution and the Hartford. The former was rebuilt at great expense and is now in use as a training or recelving ship; although very few of her original timbers remain. The Hartford is not in bad condition, her live oak frame being as sound as when first cut, but there is a good deal of rotten planking that must be re-placed. Her original cost was $502,659, and the repairs are estimated by an officer of the Mare Island yard at not more than $175,000. The cost of building a similar vessel now would approximate $1,000,000. If the department must on business principles condemn her it is hoped that some way may be found of keeping the old ship affect some years ionger. If a collection for the purpose were started by some great journal it ought to stand fair chance of success.

New York has an act prohibiting the sale or gift of spirituous liquors on Sunday which was construed to mean that hotel proprietors could not serve wines or liquors at Sunday dinners. This view of the law was fought by the hotel-keepers and the supreme court has just decided that the hotel-keepers were right in their opposition.

FROM various quarters come emphatic nials that revolution is threatening in the Sandwich islands, and the whole rumpr of civil commotion is blamed on Claus Spreckles, who is a bitter enemy of the king. HERE are some interesting figures of the production of coal : The total production of all kinds of coal in 1886, exclusive of that consumed at the mines, known as colliery consumption, was 107,682,200 short tons, val-ued at $147,112,755 at the mines. This may be divided into Pennsylvania anthracite, 36,696,475 short, or 32,754,710 long tons, valued at $71,558,129; all other coals, including bituminous, brown coal, lignite and small lots of anthracite produced in Arkansas and Colorado, 70,985,734 short tons, valued at $75.554.629 The total production, including colliery consumption, was: Pennsylvania anthracite, 34,803,077 long, or 39,035,446 short tons; all other coals, 73,707,957 short tons, making the total absolute production of all coals in the United States 112,743,463 short tons, valued s follows : Anthracite, $76,119,120 ; bitumi nous, $78,481,056; total value, $154,600,176 The total production of Pennsylvania anthracite, including colliery consumption, was in 1885, but its value was $552,828 less. The total production of bituminous coal was 1,086,408 short tons greater than it 1885, while its value was $3,896,592 ices. The total production of all kinds of coal shows a net gain of 1,785,881 short tons compared with 1885, but a loss in spot value of $4,419,420. The total spot value of the coal mined in Pennsvivanja was : Anthracita, $71.558 198 : bitu minous, $21,016,233 ; total, $92,574,361. The value of the product of the entire country was $147,112,755.

It Was a Hot Day.

From the Buffalo Courier, "Hot day," said a stout gentleman to a stranger on a crowded Main street car yester-"Hey?' said the other, "Hot day," said the first somewhat louder. "Excuse me I'm somewhat deaf and hardly caught your meaning. What did you say?" 'I say it's a hot day!" how led the fat man, glaring at his neighbor and getting red in the face and cars, as everybody in the car looked up from their papers. "Ah, yes, yes, how much must you pay? Five cents; that's the fare on this line." Whereupon the corpulent individual caid some bad words uneer his breath and got off the car. "Yes," said the deaf man gently, "that's the tenth man within an hour gently, "that's the tenth man within an hour got off the car. "Yes," said the deaf man gently, "that's the tenth man within an hour that told me it was a hot day. P'rape they imagine I don't know it," and he smiled sweetly and fanned himself with his hat.

A Reminiscence of the Queen.

Leslie, in his reminiscences, relates that 49 years ago, at the time of her coronation, Queen Victoria had a pet spaniel, which was always on the lookout for her return when she was away from home. On the day of her coronation her majosty had, of course, been separated from her pet longer than usual, and when the state coach drove up to the palace steps she heard him barking joyously in the hall, and exclaimed, "There's Dash," and was in a hurry to doff her crown and royal robe and go and give dash his bath. "I don't know why," said Leslie, "but the first sight of her in her robes of state brought tears into my eyes, and it had this effect upon many people: she looked almost like a child." Thomas Campbell, the poet, who was present, said, in his application for a ticket to the earl marshal, that "there was a place in the abbey called Poet's Corner, and perhaps room might be found in it for a poor living poet." she was away from home. On the day of her

Yale Defeats Ponneyivania. The four-mile straight-away race between the Yale and University of Pennsylvania crews took place at New London, Conn., on Friday, and, as was expected, Yale won Friday, and, as was expected, Yale won easily. The race caused but little excitement, and was witnessed by less than a thousand persons. This small attendance was probably due to the fact that the race was postponed from 4 o'clock to 7 and a fear that a further postponement would be made to some next week, as the Yale Pennsylvania freshmen race is set down for to-day.

The official record is as follows: half mile, 3:05, Pennsylvania ahead; mile and a half, 8:08, Pennsylvania ahead; mile and a half, 8:08, Pennsylvania ahead; two miles, 11:10, nearly even; two and a half miles, 14:08, Yale ahead; three miles, 18:12, Yale ahead; three and a half miles, 18:12, Yale ahead; four miles, 22:20, Yale ahead. The time set for the Yale-Pennsylvania freshmen race is 5:30 to morrow atternoon. to morrow atternoon.

Gold Seer Bunbury.

Thomas McAdams has demonstrated, it is said, that gold and silver is to be found in more than ordinarily paying quantities within a mile of Sunbury. He sank a shaft fitty feet deep on his claim and then found ore or quartz that fairly glitters with the ore or quark that fairly glitters with the shining gold, and that has actually two dollars worth of pure gold from one pound of the best samples. It is believed by all who have been to the mine that the yield will average $300 to the ton of rock. Silver is found in paying quantities as well.

New York's Dwellings.

"Are there too many houses?" is a question "The Real Estate Bulletin" propounds in speaking of the building prospects in New York. Considering that the city has 25,000 tenement houses, about 10 per cent. of which are wretched sflairs even for teoe neat houses, the question would seem to be somewhat superfluous. If the city had 100,000 more houses it would not have enough.
