DI-INBRUITAD FOR HIS RABE. An Angry Grandinther's Disposal of the Proporty in New York

Judge O'Gorman, who is a life long De erat, listened with great interest yes the trial of a will case in New York in which a child was disinherited by his Democratic grandfather because his Republican mother seisted in naming him atter President

In the fall of 1880, when the presidential campaign was at its height, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamburger had a boy born unto them. Mr. Hamburger, as well as his father, was an ardent Democrat, and it was only after a bitter quarrel that Mrs. Hamburger succeeded in having the baby named Aribur Chester, in honor of the vice presidential candidate on the R-publican ticket. This not only made her her husband angry but it exasperated his father. The old gentleman was a butcher in Washington market and was worth about $300,000. August 21, 1882, he made a will by which he bequeathed $80,000 to his wife for life, and directed that $80,000 to his wife for life, and directed that $80,000 to his wife for life, and directed that $80,000 to his wife for life, and directed that $80,000 to his wife for life, and directed that $80,000 to his wife for life, and directed that $80,000 to his wife for life, and directed that $80,000 to his wife for life, and it the rest of his property, after paying some bequests, should be divided among his four surviving chilpren—Minnie, Emilie, Mrs. Josephine M. Poor, and Outo Hamburger. Frank Hamburger was dead when the will was made and the old gentleman, still outraged at the name given to Frank's child by its mother, left it $30 for the purpose of showing that it was not left out of the will by accident.

The old gentleman's wife died before he did. After his death the will was admitted to probate without opposition, but at the request of Arthur Chester Hamburger's mother, who hoped that there might be one chance left for her child, the executors of the will — Charles Dexheimer and Frederick Hoch began a friendly suit to determine the true construction of the clause which left the $80,000 to the old gentleman's wife for life with remainder to his four surviving children. The theory of Mrs. Frank Hamburger having died before her husband the bequest to her became void, and that therefore the $80,000 not having been disposed of at all by will her son, Arthur Chester, is entitled to one fifth as an heir at law inheriting his father's share. This would give him $10,000. Judge O'Gorman reserved his decision.

Mrs. Grant's Coins.

From the New York Graphic. Most people have read that Ferdinand Ward's absorption of the assets of the Gran family extended even to a few hundred dol lars' worth of gold keepsake coins which the general had given Mrs. Grant, but the casual reader is not aware that the precise circumances under which these were grabbed by the inastiable Ferdines I have ever been narrated. It is the usage of large corporations, whenever a meeting to the a $5 gold piece or present each director with a $5 gold piece or present each time crisp new bill. General whenever a meeting of directions is held, to its equivalent in a crisp new bill. General Grant was a director in several large concerns Grant was a director in several large concerns, and the gold pieces he received were always given to his wife, who kept them in a vase resting on a piece of furniture in the parlor. One evening, when Ward was visiting, somebody proposed a game of penny ante for amusement. It suited the mood of the party, but no counters could be found. "We shall have to get buttons or coffee beans or something else" suggested the general. Suddenly somebody thought of the vase with nearly a hundred $5 gold pieces in it. Amid general laughter the contents were empted on the table, and the party laughed merrily at using solid gold counters in a game for on the table, and the party laughed merrity at using solid good counters in a game for penny stakes. When the game ceased Ward gathered the gleaming coins toward him in a heap, and exclaimed: "What a shame, Mrs. Grant, in have so much good money lying idle! Le. me have it and I will double it for you." Realizing that her mode of keeping the money was not the safest, Mrs. Grant equipment of the safest, Mrs. Grant exclusives—and that was the last she ever acquiesced—and that was the last she ever

In all diseases of the masal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this Mething satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents or any similar applications. Decause they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than indigres. A multitude of persons who had for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can indict testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Kiy's Cream Balm.
