VAGATION. Come, sweet Vacation, restful season, come i When, for the nonce, we kay adde our care To list the music of the bitthe book hum, And breaths the fragmance of the country air With curricus mind the hornet's nest explore, And find far more than we had bargained for.

Come, forest shade and breath of scented pine Metuge from garish giare of noontime's sun, Where rest is ours until the day declines, And starry become beam forth one by one, If 'mid the joyous dream our facty twines, No esterpillare amble down our spines.

Come, beautoous lake, wherein our forms lave, Pinding a baim delightful to each sense ; Piunging and sporting in thy limpid wave is, to the weary, pleasant recompense ; the ringing laugh and then the plerch exception.

Ains I we find we are but balt for lesches.

Come, then, Vacation, precious season, come ! Yield thou to life thy sweet recuperation Bring in thy train of joyousness the sum, Of all that figures in anticipation ; Come with the treasury with which thou a Singular Habits and Appoints of an Animal On in Michigan-Queer Taste. Silas Srort, living five miles from Hillsdale, Mich., on a far.s, owne a borse quite a uncommon, as horses go, as its master's name. The horse delights in such morsels as name. The horse delights in such moresism-apring chickens, rats, mice and dies, and is not average to fat out when it can calch cone. On a recent occasion the horse attacked and killed a half grown hog that had strayed into his fiesh-loving horseship's pasture. He is a very intelligent animal, showing remark able reasoning faculties in his method of catching rats. On seeing a rat disappear in a hole the horse approaches the hole quietly, lies down at tuil length and places his note a few inches from the hole's mouth. There he lies and waits for hours sometimes. The rodent is supposed to be finally strasted out by the smell of the horse tongue only to be anapped up like lighting and devourd. Sometimes while rat catching the out-stretched tongue become covered with files when the horse will withdraw his tongue and swallow a mouthill of bue bottles as a stimulater to his append. The horse recently endered angerous to feed but is otherwhe docile and a well behaved animal.

The flugs Likely to Starve.

From the Punxsutawny Spirit. We were very much gratified the other evening upon visiting our potato patch to ace how thoroughly our efforts to raise potatoes how theroughly our efforts to raise potatoes were appreciated by the bugs. They could scarcely find sitting room on the vines, and all appeared to be enjoying themasives first rats. We tooked at the large family of God's creatures depending on our labor for the comforts of life, and seeing that the vines were worn down to the sumps, folt and in-deed to think that we had not planted more restricted to the the works and not planted more deed to think that we had not planted more potators. It may be possible that those poor little innocent bugs have become so warmly attached to that peculiar spot that they will not leave after the supply of potato vines gives out, and some of them will likely periab for want of the necessaries of lifs. The man who undertakes to raise a large family of potato bugs and keep them well supplied with provender, assumes a grave responsi-bility.

The Greatest Fish Story From the Oil City Derrick.

As Captain Miles was rowing across the river opposite to the mouth of Horse creek the other evening, a bass weighing fally three pounds swam up against his oar with auch force as to carous off into the boat, land-ing in the lap of a young lady who was sitting in the storn.

A Multitude of Aliments. The ailments which afflict the hidneys and bladder are so numerous, that merely to name them would fill a space far outrunning the imits of this article. Suffice it to say, that they are both obstinate and dangerous. - To their prevention Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is well adapted. The stimulus which it lends to the action of the kidneys when they are lethargic, serves to counteract a tendency in them to lapse, first, into a state of permicious mactivity, and afterwards into one of positive inactivity, and afterwards into one of positive organic disease, which soon destroys their delicate integraments, poisons the blood and causes deraih. A double purpose is served by this depurent. It promotes activity of the kidneys, and expels impurities from the blood which have no natural channel of out-let, except those organs. Constipation, bil-lousness, fever and ague, rheumatism and dyspepsia, are also remedied by this medicing of thorourth action and wide scope. Se as an
