We Wonder. New York jury has convicted Jacob per of bribing New York aldermen. s, and during which quite enough has a done that was unjust to the prisoner. care the nullity of his conviction when appeal reaches the supreme court. The on was determined that Sharp cald be convicted upon his trial, and did ot seem to care a great deal how it was se. The case was not proved against in, at all, but he was convicted on the al assumption that he was guilty, and obably the guess was a correct one. he aldermen were bribed, or at least a at of them have been sent to jail upon the dicts of juries that they were bribed ; ad it follows that some one bribed them. was no one around but Jacob Sharp, neticiary of the aldermen's grant, to out the bribery upon; and if there was any bribing done, it is clear enough that Jacob

And he was doubtless equal to it. There thousands upon thousands of men in W York who would have done the same hing. The jails of the country would not sold a tithe of the men who would bribe legislators for a franchise that they thought would pay them many times the on of their bribe. We have them in my thousands in Pennsylvania. They are everywhere. The law recognizes this weakness of humanity ; but we fear that it s a vain hope that threatened punishant will check it. Jacob Sharp's fate may wholesome effect for a while, but the men that are caught are so few and the hances of escape so many, that a high ope of profit will always prevail against

And while we do not doubt that Jacob Sharp paid the New York aldermen for his d franchise, we know that he could not have got it otherwise; and we know that the road he built is a useful public work. Jacob sharp while making money for himself, has done it by benefitting the public with the product of his capital. This is at least to be said in his behalf. It not enough by any means to excuse him; but we cannot escape knowledge of the fact that Jacob Sharp is not worse than perhaps the majority of his fellow-citizens in elding to this temptation; and when we look upon the scenes in New York transpiring at the date of his conviction, and see an unscrupulous combination of the richest men of the city to depress the price of stocks and raise the cost of money, deliberately robbing those of less means; and doing this with no fear of the law; we wonder; knowing them to be baser and wickeder men than Sharp, who goes to jail because he wanted to lay a rail-road and could not get the privilege without wibing those who held it. There would be a wondrous company gathered with im within jail walls, if all who did as he did, and worse than he did, suffered with

The Close of the Schools.

The closing of the city schools to-day with the elaborate commencement programme of the high schools marks an im-portant epoch for many a young man and an. It means the close of their edunal career and the beginning or coment of the real work of life. Here bre they have been equipping themselves in a miniature world for the actual duties of a real life beyond. Now their work of preparation is finished and its quality is to

There are among the forty-seven young men and women of the high schools who sceive their diplomas to-day, some who will reach positions of trust and responsi-bility in this city and elsewhere. Some will be cut off in the bloom of youth by ander the benumbing influence of evil. th and others may fall by the wayside sech distribution of the prizes and blanks of life is inevitable for this more than two score of happy-hearted young men and

But let not their thoughts rest too long spon this sombre side of life's picture. It will do them good to keep it near at hand onal inspection; but to-day of days, let their thoughts be none but me. Let them enter into their nture work with a noble ambition to lead the lives of honorable men and women, to the ever for the cause of right, to have be courage of conviction to strike down error in whatever form it asserts itself. In solves and the city within whose imits they received their education.

The Case of Craig Trolliver.

The stirring events in Rowan county, cky, which culminated in the tragic min of Craig Tolliver, might any day be ted in other parts of the country, more remote from centres of civilizaand law. The principle of revenge, on h rested the feuds of the Tollivers, is accepted in remote mountain coun-ere the arm of the law is not supby an enlightened people and are the opportunities for cluding formal dehment are unusual. There is in these sees a strong temptation for men to coard the forms of law, and fall back that primitive measure of public its, the principle of revenge. Craig liver failed to see anything surprising the reason he gave for his career of mur-regime will except that reason as all sufficient, and have nothing but admiration for his desperate courage and fleroe spirit of revenge. There is a strange survival of barbarism in the midst of our civilization; and it is high time that the civilizing forces of which we boast so much, were brough more thoroughly to bear on the brave and manly, but benighted race, that hold the mountains and poor lands of the West and outh. It is not claimed that the Kentucky desperado was merely the victim of circumstances, but that the conditions are favorable to the successful establishment of a race of brigands. Already we see the same local sympathy with the outlaws that is found in Italy. The people of the region have little to say of his murders, and much to tell of his bravery, kindness of heart and love of family; and even of his honesty, although it is admitted that he had plenty of money and hardly ever

We already have a full fledged outlaw hero, whose deeds will grow fabulous as time goes on, and if great care be not taken may inspire many to emulate his defiance of law and establish a system of brigandage that will be difficult to uproot.

It Does Not Apply.

A cotemporary is satisfied that no sensible person can expect the real estate owner to give up any part of his property to public use without compensation but though such expectation would not be sensible, the statement has no applicability whatever to the case of the l'eople's bank to which it is applied.

East King street has had its building lines straightened and the avenue slightly widered, by general consent after long consideration, and the result has been laid down in the map of the city, and all property owners are expected by the law to conform to it in their building; if they do not their property may hereafter be torn down without entitling them to recover damages.

The People's bank directors in building outside the established line of East King street, give up all claim to damage, not only for the ground that may hereafter be taken from them, but for the building as

Again; the damage that they will suffer now by their surrender of a foot or two off the front of their lot, is offset by the advantage to them of a wider street. The value of the ground taken from them is almost nothing, as they have no use for the whole depth of their lot.

The claim made for damages is a subterfuge. All the damage they will suffer is from the receding of their building behind the line of the adjacent buildings; and this is a damage which the city has a right to impose upon them, in pursuit of its policy of a gradual widening of the street as new buildings are erected. It is done by Philadelphia in widening Chestnut street, where property is of many fold more value than on our East King street.

THE report of Insurance Commissioner Forster, of this state, shows the aggregate capital of fire insurance stock companies of Pennsylvania to be $12 535,000. The compantes have admitted assets amounting to $38,096,083.12, against liabilities, including capital stock and uncarned premiums, or $28,383,395.72, leaving a net surplus of $9,651, 687,40 over all liabilities. One foreign insur-ance company withdrew from the state, and twenty new ones established offices here. During the year the total fire, marine and inland risks written in the state was $10 817. 63,927, on which $89,564,645.64 premiums were received, and $51,466,368.06 losses were paid. Compared with 1885 this shows an increase of $349,115,666 in fire risks written; an increased of $233 247,660, in marine and inand risks written; an increase of £3 574 268 1 in premiums paid, and an increase of $215,438 37 in losses paid. Fourteen new mutual companies have been incorporated since the last report.

THE twenty-five-dollar-a-week seaside hotel is now yawning for the ten-dollar sweek clerk.

AFTER Judge Barrett had charged the jury in the Jacob Sharp bribery case, Mr. Parsons, of coursel for defense, entered several objec-tions, but his honor overruled him and said the jury were already tired out. Jacob was convicted before the trial was begun. The old rule was reversed. He was presumed guilty until proved innocent, and the latter half of the proposition was not establi-hed.

MR. POWDERLY is treading dangerously ear the smouldering volcano of Know-Nothingism. He is recently quoted as saying : " I am utterly opposed to all forms of pauper emigration, and to a great deal of emigration pure and simple. I think a half should be called on emigration until this nation can consider what it is doing in allowing these nationalities to enter here and become a burden on our country and a menac to the American botne. As a ruiting to decide who should be excluded I would make it an almost inflexible rule that a man or woman who could not sustain himself or herself and their respective families for one year should not be allowed to land." Under this ruling many of this country's best citizens would have been turned back.

THE MOST SCIENTIFIC AND SUCCESSFUL BLOOD PUBIFIER. Superior to quinina. Mr. F. A. Miller, 630 East 157th street, New York, was cured by Kaskine of extreme malarial prestration after seven years suffering. He had run down from 170 pounds to 97, began on Easkine in June, 1884, went to work in one month, regained his full weight in six months. Quinine did him no good whatever.

Er. Gideon Thompson, the oldest and one of the most respected citizens of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "I am ninety years of age, and for the last three years have suffered from malaria and the effects of quinine poisoning. I recently began with Kaskine which broke up the malaria and increased my weight 25 pounds."

Mrs. T. A. Solomons, of 159 Halliday St., Jersey City, writes: My son Harry, eleven years, was cured of Malaria by Kaskine, after fitteen months illness, when we had given up all hope. Letters from the above persons, giving full details will be sent on application.
