CARS AND CONTENTS BURNED. Freight Trains Collide and the Wr ck tches Fire-Very Heavy Loss to the

A very destructive freight wreck occurred at Dillerville, on the Pennsylvania railroad Monday night. About ten o'clock the train drawn by engine 198 pulled over from the Columbia track to the track leading to this city. Just east of the station the train stopped do some shifting. There is considerable of a grade towards the west at this point and as the train was heavy the engine was not able to bold it. The cars ran back to the cut off track and just at that time an eastern bound freight train drawn by engine 579 came along. The rear of the train on the ancester track ran into the other, causing the wreck, which was one of the worst seen in the vicinity for some time. Three of the cars on the train of engine 579 were loaded with coal oil and they took fire from the lamps in the caboose of the other train. In a few minutes the oil cars and four others on the same train, loaded with flour and feed, were in a blaze. The engineer of 579 had great presence of mind, and when he saw that a big fire was inevitable he quickly up the cut-off some d rond the reach of the buildings or bridges There the fire burned furiously all night, and the cars with their contents were completely destroyed. The caboose and one car of engine 198, was also burned while lying near the station. The fire made a great light and burned so brightly that an alarm was struck in this city. The department quickly responded and ran their apparatus to the place, but were unable to do anything. If it had been possible for them to get a stream on the fire it is doubtful whether they would have been able to do any good, as the fire had gained such a great headway. This morning there was nothing left of the cars but the wheels and other iron parts, and the contents had been swept away. The ties of the track were burned at the place and the tracks for some distance were so badly damaged that they will have to be taken up and replaced. The south track was blocked until shortly before noon, and trains were obliged to pull around the wreck. A large force of men were kept at work on the wreck all night and have been there the whole of to-day. The loss to the railroad company will be very

A Slight Wreck. This morning another wreck occurred at Dillerville, but did not do a great deal of damage. The trains were running on the track on account of the big wreck. Engine No. 228 and one car jumped the track and were slightly damaged. They blocked e Excellent Thoughts on the Modern Tor denctes of Education Given to the Puptis of the State Normal School-The Great Need of the Present Time.

MILLERSVILLE, July 5.—The commencement exercises of the Millersville Normal school were formally begun on Sunday in the chape! of the institution. The service was opened at 3 p. m. with an anthem by the choir of the school, which, under the leadership of Prof. Lansinger, saug with remarkable spirit and precision. Then followed a hymn, the scripture lessons for the day and a prayer, after which Prof. Shaub introduced Rev. J. Max Hark, D. D., of Lancaster, who preached the baccalaureate ser

Dr. Hark took as his text the closing words of Romans, 11th chapter and 15th verse: "I magnify mine office," and based on them a plea for culture as distinguished from mere technical training as the only legitimate work and end of our public school. He said that we are in the midst of a tendency whose effect to degrade every hopement. effect is to degrade every human activity into a mere means of money-getting. Our popu-lar education has been caught in this same short-sighted utilitarian current. Our educa-tors above all others need to realize the wrong and evil of it. They need to see clearly that it is a narrowing and degrading of their work to make it only a means of getting a living for themselves, and its aim nothing more than to drill and train the rising generations into skillful arithmeticians, grammarians, penmen, measurers of drygoods and calculators of profits into machines for the making of money. Education, and especially our common school education, is something higher and nobler than this. If not, it had better be abolished altogether. It is for the true abolished altogether. It is for the true teacher to realize this, and to magnify his office by lifting it out of the degrading current into the noble and lofty sphere which of right it is meant to overny.

it is meant to occupy.

Education is not a cramming of cut and Education is not a cramming of cut anddried facts into the mind of a child as into a bag, not a mechanical drill for a few of the ordinary occupations of "practical life"; but it is a developing of human functions and faculties which God has implanted in the child, which exist there in germ and need only to be unfolded to develop into beautiful blossoms of womanhood and grand fruits of manhood. Later in life special technical preparation will be in order; but in the stage of life with which the common school teacher has to do, the work that is needed, that is essential even to the later "practical" training, is far more fundamental and comprehensive. It is nothing short of the task of developing little human animals into the higher stage of men and women; to swaken higher stage of mon and women; to awaken to life and activity the germs of true manhood that lie latent in their breasts; to inspire and form their distinctively human characters. They will learn to do things correctly afterwards, if only first they have been made to be right beings.

afterwards, if only first they have been made to be right beings.

The preacher then dwelt upon how the teacher, and how alone, he could thus magnify his office. He laid most stress upon the necessity of first curseif being what you want your pupils to be. The greatest educators in the world, the Thomas Arnolds, or in our own county the John Becks, teachers whose infinence keem on growing even after whose infinence keem on growing even after. in our own county the John Becks, teachers whose influence keeps on growing even after they are dead, were not the most learned scholars the most scholastically trained: they could perhaps scarcely have passed the final examination of this Normal school:—but they were true men, pure, large hearted, whole-souled, with noble well-rounded, symmetrical characters. It was their fulness of manhood that impressed their personality so wholesomely and ineradicably upon every pupil who ever came icably upon every pupil who ever came within reach of their influence. And it is just this quality, not taught in any normal curriculum, not to be had anywhere but in the perfect man, the divine ideal of humanity, it is this "measure of the fulness of the stature of a perfect man," this true and complete maniftess and womaniness, that is the great need to-day among our educators, and he secret of success as a true teacher. With a few words of direct counsel to the thirty-one graduates Dr. Hark closed his ser-mon, which had been listened to with close attention by the large audience.

Cangle Saleznan.—Cangle sell you some mackerel, this supering. Notesman.—Can i sell you some mackerel, this morning?

Grocer.—No, sir. We wont buy from any one who sells to Clarke. We now have a good profit on these roods. He will cut prices to pieces. He sells for cash on a small profit. We can't compete with him on account of doing a credit business. He is selling mackerel that we got $1.50 for at 60c. a bucket.

Solesman.—I am sorry, but have sold him a large quantity of these mackerel under special instructions from my house. He is one of our best cash customers, and of course can give him our best discount. After he gets them we don't care if he gives them away.
