Dangerous Theorists. One of the results of losing sight of the sonian theory of government is sed by a letter that Mr. E. L. drews, of New York, has written to the secretary of the treasury. He prosee that the surplus revenue, estimated at about $100,000,000, shall be deposited in the national banks for each state in the ratio of representation in Congress; that the debt-paying states shall have their bare, which he places at about $80,000,000, discretion, but that the states that have States or other creditors shall have theirs only when they have come to friendly terms with the bondholders, and then the share of those states in the surplus shall be devoted to carrying out these terms of

Here is a very ingenious plan for robbing Peter to pay Paul. We would like to know how Mr. Andrews can defend the sition to exact money from one class people simply to pay it over to another We would also like him to explain that legal or moral obligation is upon the lebt-paying states to provide for the cies of those who don't pay their ebts. If it is not upon the components of the United States, it cannot be upon the on itself.

All sorts of wild schemes diametrically opposed to the theory of American institu-tions are bound to arise, so long as we keep up the iniquitous system of collecting more taxes than we need. If there was not an enormous surplus in the treasury. crack-brained theorists like Andrews and Senator Blair would never get a hearing for their dangerous schemes. Reduction of taxation is imperative, and the next Congress dare not ignore it.

Why They Default.

The two defalcations that are reported from Philadelphia in which the Times and News were made the victims of misplaced confidence, illustrates anew the sound theory that it is the honest and irreproachable official who most needs watching. Paradoxical as it may seem, the employe of spotless reputation in whom large trust is confided is the one who invariably gets away with money that does not belong to

And it is not hard to find the reason therefor. All men are human, and it is not well to subject them to too much temptation. They can stand it occasionally, but let them have it thrust upon them at all times. Let them think about it by day and dream about it by night, and it is not strange that they often succumb The only way to avoid the possibility of these occurences is to so arrange one's business as to provide for a natural auditing board, and not permit a clerk to have exclusive control of an important department. Such clerk for his own protection should be glad of this overseeing power. For with this ever in front of him, he will receive favorable answer to what ought to be his constant prayer, "lead us not into temptation."

The Question of Immigration.

There are a great many crude suggestions fosting around about the alleged immigration evil, and so sensible a man as Powderly is reputed to be quoted as saying that if he had his way he would require every foreign immigrant landing on our shores to show that he was able to support himself one year.

Who would be the judge of his ability ? If the immigrant himself, burning with high hope, the answer would be surely in the affirmative. If left to a committee the latter would have to inquire into the personal and pecuniary resources of the tranger. This would result in the admission of the rich and the exclusion of the

Had such a rule been enforced from the beginning, this country would not have attained its present greatness. The immigrants of the years gone by were the seed of the national glory of to-day, and these immigrants were often the poorest of the Bright for Ireland.

It is a very significant event when such an out-and-out Tory as Lord Randolph schill is found agreeing with Mr. Dilon in the discussion of the Irish land bill in Parliament. In particular is it notethy when he declares that he can not where the Irish tenantry would derive oft from the clause dealing with Such an admission from one of the most rabid opponents of Ireland was well calculated to start the Irish members booring. Churchill's action pretty plainly hows that the government proposes to ma-rially modify its original plan of dealing with the Emerald Isle. It shows, too, a at weakening on the part of those hitharts considered strong. This, taker in elyan has climbed down for good and all on the Home Rule side of the fence th Gladstone, indicates what progress e Irish cause is making in the minds of minded people. Just when it seemed it likely that the coercion bill would be ed, this indication of weakness in the hosevative and strength in the Glad-sales ranks comes to cheer the friends hashend, showing that the darkest hour just before the dawn.

Our own Fourth of July is a joyous occasion, which arouses no bad feelings anywhere, but the beathen way of celebrating it ts which occurred on the Fourth of July of the present year was very great. where, but the beathen way of celebrating it makes it almost as dangerous as the 14th of July in Paris. The 12th of July brings up the battle of the Boyne, and men occasionally fight about King William on that anniversary, both in Ireland and in this country. Then comes the 14th of July in Paris, always a time of danger, and especially so this year. The Germans in the city have been advised to remain indoors and Cassagnac is reported to advise all who can to leave Paris to-day. The 18th of July is the anniversary of the death of Jaurez, and the Mexicans are already getting into their aunual state of excitement over it, and attempting to stir up feeling against the Americans. Except in this country, all these anniversaries arouse controversies and are liable to cause riots; but our Fourth of July usually finds as many victims of misdirected guns and patriotism as any of them. In Boston twenty-seven applied for surgi-cal aid at the city hospital, and nine beds were occupied by injured persons. At the Massachusetts hospital the number was nearly as great. In New York and Brooklyn there were many more casualties. One of the saddest cases was that of a deaf-mute girl whose clothing took fire from a pack of firecrackers that she carried in her pocket. She was compelled to lie upon her face in bed and take nourishment in this position, but finally died from lockiaw on the third day. Science adds "It is to be hoped that the time is not far distant when the present barbarous method of celebrat-ing Independence Day will be prohibited
