Types in Warm Wrather. From the Oil City Derrick.

We stop our new double cylinder, fast running press to apologize in the most apolo ic way to the Philadelphia editors, one and singular. In our issue yesterday we noted in a broad-minded, liberal way, for which we made no charge whatever, that the convicts in the state prison in Minnesota would start a newspaper. We said that it offered a fine opening for Philadelphia editors. That's what we said. But we hasten to place ourselves on record But we hasten to piace ourselves on record as asying that we did not mean it. We in-tended to say that it was a good opening for "political editors." During a warm spell ere is a great similarity between the words there is a great similarity between the words "political" and "Philadelphia" as written by some people. We have had a warm spell in Oil City, and we think we can prove it. We have no desire to hurt the standing of Philadelphia editors, and of our own knowledge have no reason to insinuate that they have any especial adaptability for conducting a newspaper run by convicts in a siste prison. The statement that they had was entirely due to the eccentricities of the types and the hot weather. We would say more, but our double cylinder, fast running press, which was stopped for the occasion, is becoming impatient and pawing the early morning air.

A Maine Woman's Horse Trade. From the Portland (Me.) Press

Last Saturday Mr. H. F. Thompson, the umberland street livery stable keeper, paid $110 for a horse and carriage. He bought the use for it. The woman first came to the stable without the team and proposed the trade, She said the horse and carriage were up on Fox street, but Mr. Thompson need not take the trouble of going up there as she would get the team and drive around to the stable. In about an hour the woman returned, driving a good-sized bay mare, and the sale was made. But the team had not come from Fox ing a good-sized bay mare, and the sale was made. But the team had not come from Fox street, for instead of going there the woman had gone to Hayer stable, on Plum street, and there hired the team. Mr. Hayes naturally suspected something wrong when his property was not returned and notified the authorities that the team was missing. Of course the supposition was that the team had been driven out of town, but yesterday Mr. Hayes was surprised to learn that it was still in the city, and Mr. Thompson was probably not so agreeably surprised when he discovered the facts in the case. Mr. Hayes got his team, but the woman and the $110 are missing. The woman gave the name of Annie C'Neil. She is about 35 years old, weighs probably 130 pounds, is of medium height and light complexion. She was well dressed and that she had lived near the park. But the team had not come from Fox

From the Toronto Meti. ong the curiosities of justice in Canada re these : A burglar pleaded guilty in Stay-er and was sent to jail for a month. Two or ner and was sent to jail for a month. Two or three days afterward a boy who declared he did not know he was doing wrong, pieced a coupling pin on the track and we cant to the reformatory for four years. Espaily the chatruction to the approaching train did no damage. At litten another boy placed a stone on the track. He was trought before the court and discharged after apending a night in jail. It is alleged that there is a grave disparity between the sentences pronounced upon the burgiar and the boy with the coupling pin, had it is obvious that the damage which might have been instinct by the boy was far greater than that of which the burgiar could possibly have been guility. There is a difference, however, between the treatment accorded to the first boy who dickered with the railroad tenst and the second, and the only explanation is that the name judge did not deal with its two cases.

"What was Burnell's great joy, therefore, when in a howling night of January last he was awakened from dreams of wealth in his rude bed in his cabin and told by one of the night shift that he had indeed struck it. Burnell thought if he had even made a $25,-000 raise he would forever shake the rough mountains.
